FREDERIC STEIWER
FOR
U. S. SENATOR

Would you scrap Oregon's direct primary law? Would you surrender the important committee chairmanships now held by Senators, McNary Smoot, Borah, Johnson Jones, Warren and Oddie, all Western men? Would you repudiate the policies of President Coolidge?

The fight for the U. S. Senate ship is between the democratic nominees and Frederic Steiwer, republican. No independent has ever been elected to the U. S. Senate.

If you believe in the direct primary—if you want the west to retain its power, in national affairs by reason of republican control of the senate—if you believe in the policies of Calvin Coolidge—

I. L. PATTERSON
FOR GOVERNOR

The republican party is fortunate in having Mr. Patterson as its candidate for Governor. Successful business man and farmer he is equipped to meet and solve the problems that will confront him as Governor. Economy he has practiced in private life; economy he will practice as Oregon's chief executive.

The only real pre-election promise Mr. Patterson is making is that he will not follow established precedent and spend the people's time and money traveling about the state making speeches.

If you want a Governor who will be on the job attending to business—

H. J. Taylor,
Democratic candidate for Joint Senator.

Having been nominated at the May Primaries as the candidate of the Democratic party, I now offer myself for re-election to the office of Joint Senator for the counties of Union, Umatilla and Morrow.

I elected, I will, during my term of office, faithfully and honestly discharge the duties of with the least possible expense to the tax payers. I favor a reasonable and just income tax, the establishment of a normal school in Eastern Oregon, the completion of all state highways and the retirement of bonds as they mature, the perpetuity of the Pendleton Round-Up, proper legislation for the protection of laborers, reduced licences for used automobiles and the abolishment of useless commissions.

My Slogan is: Strict economy in all public business with due regard to the taxpayers.

Be Kind to Vegetables

If Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, Hindu scientist, goes on much longer with his piling up of proofs that something very much like consciousness extends far down in the vegetable kingdom, we soon shall be hearing of the formation of societies for the prevention of cruelty to plants.—New York Times.

Flies 815 Miles an Hour

A fly which travels 815 miles an hour is described by Dr. Charles Townsend in the Scientific American. The insect is known technically as Cephennemyia and is one of the lesser known flies. It flies so fast that it would be impossible to capture one while in flight. In appearance the fly resembles a leanly built bumblebee.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL UPHOLDS DISMISSAL

Who October 4 was placed on indefinite leave of absence by the University of Washington board of regents, is not entitled to compensation as president of the university after the date of his dismissal. Attorney-General Dunbar said in a letter opinion given to A. H. B. Jordan, president of the regents. The opinion was given in answer to a query of Jordan's asking if the state was liable for payment of salary that might accrue under employment subsequent to the date of terminating the employment.

Dunbar held that inasmuch as it was stated by law that employees of the university, including the president, held their positions "during the pleasure" of the board, it should be understood by anyone entering into a contract with the board for a year or more of employment that if the regents felt necessary to dismiss them their salary would lapse for the remainder of the contract time. Under this opinion, President Suzzallo would be unable to enforce payment of his $15,000 a year salary for the balance of the university year or beyond the date designated by the regents as terminating his services with the institution, which the regents finally fixed as November 30, pending which he is on leave of absence.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE GOOD TREE

"A GOOD tree" cannot bring forth evil fruit," the Good Book says, which I presume means that a man who has based his habits upon right principles is pretty well bound to follow these. We often emphasize the fact that a man who lets himself fall into bad habits finds it difficult or almost impossible to break away from these. The habits are evil; the fruit of them is evil and must continue to be so. There is nothing so difficult to break as a bad habit, it is said—unless it be a good one, say.

Hale has gone to church all his life. He was taken when he was a child, and in spite of this fact of regular necessity of church attendance, he grew to like it. When he left home after finishing high school, he kept on going to church, and he got pretty thoroughly mixed up in doing the things with which many churchgoers concern themselves. He is fifty years old now; he is married, and he has a family. He works hard all week with little time for leisure or recreation. Sometimes he makes up his mind he will not go to church on Sunday, and he says so to his wife.

But as the time draws near for starting to church, he grows restless; he lays aside his paper, and smooths out his hair before the glass.

"I guess I'll go along," he says, "I think the sermon will do me good."

It's the good tree not able to change the character of its fruit.

Lang's father had taught him even when he was in his grades to be generous—to divide his marbles and his candy and his pleasures generally with his brothers and with the other boys with whom he associated.

"If you belong to anything," the older may have always said, "you should be willing to contribute to its support." And so the boy gave to church and Sunday school and to other worthy causes—small sums, it is true, but sums which he had himself earned and the giving of which caused him some sacrifice. Today at sixty he follows the same practice. He is not a man of exceptionally large means, but he neglects no worthy cause; he turns away no one who really needs help. He has a generous heart.

It is a comfort to know that having crowded ourselves in the principles of honesty and virtue and Christian faith that we are not likely easily to get away from the natural results of these principles. The good habit
