A PRAYER

For this one day alone, dear God, I pray:
Help me to walk the straight and narrow way With cheerful mind.
Help me to think, to act, the Golden Rule,
To do my best with hook, or beast, or tool,
To serve mankind.
Help me to think before I speak a word That might, by chance, hurt one who overheard,
And make him sad;
Help me to laugh with clean and wholesome mirth,
To scorn the thought that evil minds gave birth, Or actions bad.
Help me to see in sunshine and in rain,
In daylight and in dark, Thine hand again, Thy love alone;
And then at eve, when work is put away,
Help me, dear Lord, to lift my eyes and say, Thy will be done.

THE CREATOR OF POOR RICHARD

In the month of January, in the year 1706, in the town of Boston, there was born into a numerous family, there were nineteen children, a boy whose name was to become a synonym for thrift, enterprise, patriotism, enlightened statesmanship, and scientific spirit and of whom it was to be said in after time that he snatched the lightning from the skies and the scepter from tyrants.
He was to know both poverty and affluence. He was to stand as an apprentice and a master at the printers case and as the representative of a new born nation, in the presence of royalty, and always to maintain a simple and unaffected dignity, unaffected by the mutations of time, or circumstance or place.
Two hundred and twentyone years have been swallowed in the chasm of the past but the record of Benjamin Franklin's life has been preserved to us and his spirit still marches in the "foremost files of time".
That record and that spirit are still a challenge and an inspiration to the people of the nation whom he rocked; a challenge to the practice of the homely virtues of honesty, sobriety, industry and thrift and an inspiration to pull out of the dead-end of self complacency in matters of business and education, church and state and strongly breast the current of the stream of time.

Now that the legislature is in session why not take initial step towards pruning the dead wood out of the overgrown tree of statute law.

Why not now take some action in the direction of the simplification of court procedure and the limitation of the grounds of appeal.

Judaism through its governing body, has gone on record as declaring that wine is not essential to the celebration of the Jewish sacraments. Worshippers at the shrine of the late John Barleycorn will please notice.

Why should the State of Oregon spend the good money of the taxpayers in maintaining the nuisance of advertising candidates for nomination and election to public office.

It seems to us that the Grand Jury is a moribund organ of public justice; a legalistic an acronym. Why not bury it?

Windsor Castle,
Jan. 17, 1927.
Editor Independent:

I suppose you have heard about the Ione Bank failure. Well it looks like mighty hard times at our house, and treason in the land. The bankers eat the flour bread and the farmers eat the bran.
Bank failures in the United States are getting to be as common as yellow dog fights in nigger town. Looks like its dangerous to be safe anymore, and the failures have no respect for old age, widows, orphans, cripples.
Money all looks alike to them.

In China, when a bank fails, they round up the man or the men responsible for the failure and behead them nor do they stop at that but behead the whole family, consequently there are mighty few bank failures in that country.

Who? was it said "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn"? Well, whoever it was I think he was right.
We in the United States should have stricter banking laws. As it is a bank can go broke and the man responsible for it can get into a high powered car and ride away; perhaps go to a new place and start a fine bank on other people's money.

It doesn't look good at all at all to Yours truly,
Tillicum.
