J. F. M. FARRENS DIES AT AT HARDMAN

Following an illness of several years, J. F. M. Farrens died at the home of his son at Hardman, last Thursday morning. Mr. Farrens was 86 years and 24 days old at the time of his death. His funeral was held at Hardman on Saturday and interment was made in the Odd Fellows' cemetery at that place under the auspices of Lone Balm Lodge of which he was a charter member.

He is survived by the following named children: Mrs. Anna Clement of Tacoma, Wash., Mrs. Laura Ward of Lexington, Willard Farrens of Ione, Ernest Farrens, Yakima, Wash., and Glenn Farrens and Walter Farrens of Hardman and a number of grandchildren.

OPTIMISTIC

Windsor Castle,
June 15, '27.

Editor Independent:

A fine old rain we had last week! Wheat crop a sure thing now! Next month Morrow County will begin to disgorge her wealth into the lap of the world. Elevators and warehouses will groan under the weight of their loads.

Wheat hauling from one to twenty miles to Ione, at an average of 25 bushels per acre. How many bushels? Well it is some wheat, I guess yes. There are worse countries than Morrow Co. We are not flooded out of house and home here, nor do we need a cyclone cellar to run to every time a cloud comes up. Old Morrow County is good enough for anybody, old Morrow County is good enough for me.

HERE is real romance—old-fashioned romance in a modern setting. A story of whimsical, lovable folk—of old love and new love—in a little town in Pennsylvania; and then of Venice with her drowsy, sunny lagoons and the magic of her blue-black nights.
