Whatever makes men good Christians, makes them good citizens.
—Daniel Webster

John L.'s Signature

R. F. Dibble in his biography of John L. Sullivan records that once a dainty little miss asked the famous pugilist to write her a few autographs so that she could sell them at a church fair.

"Oh, what're you giving me?" said John L. in a graciously tragic way. "I ain't no good at writing, but I'll have my manager make as many of 'em as what d'you call 'em, as you want."

The damsel told him that this would hardly do. So pens, ink and paper were ordered and after many laborious efforts in which he spilled more than a dozen pens and ruined a quantity of stationery, Sullivan finally succeeded in scratching down about twenty badly blotched but fairly legible signatures.

"I always like to do what I can for religion," he assured her as grasping her hand and most of her forearm between his ink-stained fingers he bade her a courteous good-by.

CHANGE IN ROUTE TO MAIDEN'S HEART

Writer Points to Rise of "New Sex Democracy."

The judgment of time has been that it is an exceedingly difficult problem for men and women to understand each other. The male has on innumerable occasions acknowledged his inability to fathom the workings of the female mind, and this doubtful complicity has in many instances been returned. No longer, it is said, is this sentiment mutual. The modern girl understands men.

This disclosure comes from the pen of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who in a magazine article considers the changes that have transformed the romantic period into the flapper age. Chief among these causes, she says, is that men are no longer able to fool girls. The day of flattery, she believes, has passed, and dashing cavaliers "tall, dark and handsome," no longer fill the heroic role in a young maid's fancy.

Instead, the writer finds a "new sex democracy," which has brought an era of comradeship in which young people "take each other as they are and not as they believe they are," and "ris no longer fall in love with the image, only to come eventually to the day of great disillusionment."

A girl now has some hand in the choice of her husband, if she does not determine upon the man and then proceed to make him hers.

There will be men who will not agree readily with the author. Many there are who will be loath to abandon the soft-turned phrase on the road to a maiden's heart. The language of lovers dates too far back to be lightly dismissed when spring is in the air, the moon is full and two young hearts register a mutual impulse. The day's outward show is more brusque than demonstrative, but it does not tell the whole story.

Nor will all men and women agree that the day has but just arrived when the maid refuses to sit idly by as the man for whom her heart has waited finally comes into her orbit. Maybe today the chase is more direct and impetuous, but there were ways in other days, and who knows but they were more effective. The "way of a man with a maid" is no more puzzling than the way of a maid with a man from the beginning of time.

World Eagerly Seeks Great Men's Letters

Immortality and letter-writing go hand in hand, and those who make it their business to keep green the graves of the departed great pursue an eternal quest.

What wouldn't disciples of the "Shakespeare myth" give to be able to unearth a packet of letters from William Shakespeare to some correspondent in which he settled, clearly and definitely, all the points that have led to controversy?

It is extremely improbable that any such convenient packet will ever be found. But students of Alfred de Musset are slightly more hopeful of one day discovering a set of lost letters written by the French poet to the French actress, Rachel. Having ransacked France in vain, they have now turned to England, with the assurance that "any information as to the whereabouts of these letters will be gratefully received."

First American Jade

Within a year, it is expected, the first American Jade in history will be on the market. It will come from a deposit in eastern Oregon, where Joseph Reusz, a German chemist living in Seattle, says he has found it in all shades of rich green, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Some one has been there before him, several hundred years ago. Mr. Reusz believes, for on approaching the mine from an almost inaccessible quarter, he stumbled on a barrier shutting up the mouth of a cave. Removing the obstruction he found himself in a hillside cavern glistening with mica set in colorful walls. Examination of the walls showed that excavation had been carried on by means of a tiny pick.

Ancients Used Bells for Various Purposes

The use of small bells to summon attendants goes back over 3,000 years. Assyrian tombs, uncovered from the ruins and dust of ages, show that hand bells not unlike our conventional shapes, were used in old-time Nineveh. Egyptian sculptured work in more than one inscription also shows that remote antiquity in this as in many another respect had the same ideas of comfort, and sought to gratify them in much the same manner that we do. We find bells mentioned very early in the history of Israel. The high priest was directed to wear them on the fringes of his official vestments, alternating them with purple, blue and scarlet artificial pomegranates, so that he might be heard when he went in and out of the holy place to sacrifice, as the Book of Exodus has it, "that he die not." Then, as now, all the accessories of divine worship were symbolic, the tinkling golden bells probably typifying the law that ought ever to be open for prayer, and the tongue that ought ever to be crying mercy when concerned about the sacrifices and other services of the sanctuary.

Danger in Depilatories

The use of depilatories, required much by the current mode, may be attended by considerable danger. Drs. H. A. McGuigan and H. N. Eix, of the University of Illinois Medical school, have found that barium sulphide, the essential constituent of hair-removing preparations, will cause serious results in rabbits if a large enough area of the skin is covered with the chemical. When a rabbit's ears were covered with a paste containing 50 per cent barium sulphide, enough was absorbed, said the experimenters, to kill the animal. Death is caused, they believe, by the formation of hydrogen sulphide, a gas that produces more or less toxic effects on human beings. The gas was detected in the animal's breath.

Marries, Recovers Memory

Just after his marriage to an English girl recently, Gabriel Henri Remon, a Frenchman, learned, after many years, his identity, lost as a result of the World war. Twelve years ago, Gabriel, then thirteen, ran in terror when the German troops rode into Merlincourt, his home village. He tramped to Calais, and was put on a ship for England. The vessel was blown up by a mine, and he was wounded and rescued. He landed at Folkestone, where he lost his memory, worked for $1.25 a week, was "adopted" by a milkman, and now has a position with a wine firm in London. When he married it was necessary to communicate with the French consul, who learned sufficient details of his life to bring back the man's memory completely.

Say It With Stories

"If you want a child to remember anything, say it with stories," suggests Dr. John L. Elliott of the Ethical Culture school of New York city, in Children, the Magazine for Parents. In an article in the magazine Doctor Elliott writes: "Notice the next time you are in an audience. When is it that every one is still, when for a moment the speaker has his hearers, when there is a real, though unconscious unity? Nine times out of ten it will be when he is telling a story, reciting some incident. Why do older people rush to the theaters and the oldest and youngest to movies? Simply to see or hear a story. If you regret that the movies have such a strong hold on your child, give him something of the same thing at home."

Happiness in Work

There are social and economic maladjustments, and many of them lead to failures. Failure is unappealing. But no man fails if he likes the job. Ford is right. Life's real thrill is in the job. That is what we mean by the "pursuit of happiness" in America: It was the quest of the men who built this wonderful American government for us, and it still is: a thing which lures us on to larger achievements. Jobs are full of thrills if we wish it so; but we get these thrills only when we fit the job when we like it, and give it the best we have in us! when we put some thing of ourselves into the thing we do.—Mobile Register.

Qualifications

The young miss was filling out an application for a position in one of the city offices.

One of the questions was: "What is the length of your residence in this city?" She answered this: "About 140 feet."

Another question was this: "Any physical defects?" She answered: "Only freckles."

Foxy Medicine Man

Anglers, especially those who seldom have any luck, may glean a novel tip from the methods of "Old Ioguk," medicine man and sovereign of an isolated tribe of Eskimos living on the wind-swept mud flats between the Yukon and Kuskowin rivers in western Alaska, says the Pathfinder Magazine.

Every spring just before the salmon run up the rivers to spawn, Ioguk goes to the river mouths, where he performs queer incantations and magic rites. He wears a wooden mask resembling a salmon trout and dances and chants, commanding the fish to swim up the streams to his people. For this "mysterious" power Ioguk exerts over the fishes he visits every Eskimo home and collects one-fourth of all the fish caught as his share.

Library Books Short Lived

Persons making use of the facilities of the public libraries are not as careful with the volumes as they might be and the consequence is that the books are short lived. This is especially true of the books of reference. In the public library of New York, the most precious manuscripts are kept carefully in reserve and brought out only for accredited purposes. Rare books, though easily accessible, are used only under supervision. A few of them, such as Audubon's "Birds of America," are never touched by readers' hands. An attendant stands by and turns the pages at the reader's signal. But many books, valuable both intrinsically and as records, are kept in the general stacks and trusted to any reader who asks for them.

Sardine's Foe

Hunting the tuna fish was formerly done to protect sardines, which they devour in large numbers, but since the tuna is now popular for food, it is the basis of an important phase of the fishing industry.

In the Mediterranean the tuna are detected by watchmen who sit in chairs on high extension steel ladders on the coast and relay word by telephone when a school of fish is sighted. By means of sardine bait, the net are tured into a bay, called the "death chamber." This chamber is a square inclosure of heavy netting which is closed at the entrance when a number of fish have been caught in it. Then, the men, working from a float around the net, kill the tunnies with spears.
