FREEDOM OF RELIGION

To those who admire former great leaders of this country and adhere to their principles, the words of George Washington will bring an enlightened message of particular significance and peculiarly applicable to present circumstances.

His words teach a distinct lesson of tolerance and a thorough understanding of them will reveal their importance in the present political campaign.

In a letter written about 1795 to the members of the New Church in Baltimore, a Baptist congregation, he said:

"We have abundant reason to rejoice that in this land the light of truth and reason has triumphed over the power of bigotry and superstition, and that every person may here worship God according to the dictates of his own heart. In this enlightened age and in this land of equal liberty it is our boast that a man's religious tenets will not forfeit the protection of the laws nor deprive him of the right of attaining and holding the highest offices that are known in the United States."

Lakes, fiords, waterfalls, mountains, glaciers; volcanoes, fumaroles, boiling geysers and bubbling mud pools; lost underground rivers untold, caverns lighted by glow worms, stalactites and stalagmites; the best fishing in the world, also exciting whale chasing and big game and wild pig hunting; these and many others are the attractions of New Zealand which will be unfolded in a motion picture Travelogue by Miss Aimee Porter in lone School gymnasium on Oct. 19 at 8 o'clock.

Miss Porter, whose home is in Auckland, New Zealand, Pakeha Maori of the third generation, is a noted authority on the wonders of her country.

There is no other country of any size", said Miss Porter "which is so varied and complete as New Zealand. My country, the land of the fern and the southern cross, is, as it were, a miniature of the entire world.

This talk will be illustrated throughout with movies and will be so comprehensive as to include every phase of New Zealand life, from the weird dances and customs of the ancient Maoris to the grandeur of the gorges and glaciers of the Southern Alps; from Rotorua's Thermal Wonder land with its almost unbelievable volcanic disturbances to the lonely, far flung nursery grounds of the Gannets at his toric Cape Kidnappers.

COME, spend an enjoyable evening and help out the finances of our High School.

Destination of Soul

Shown by Odd Signs

The Goures, an ancient African tribe, entombed the bodies of dead friends in tall towers instead of burying them in the earth. During the first three days after the body had been laid in the tower it was thought to be in danger of being carried away by the devil, and kinsmen kept watch to prevent him from tormenting the soul as it winged its way to the celestial regions.

On or before the fourth day the soul was in a place of torment or happiness, and the priests proceeded to prognosticate the future state of the deceased. The body was laid on its back, with the eyes turned toward heaven, and the cultures were permitted to feast upon it. The soul was supposed to have gone to bliss if the right eye was taken first, but it was an equally sure omen that the soul had gone to a place of punishment if the left eye was first devoured.

Another mode of ascertaining the state of happiness or misery of a soul was by the movements of a dog near the corpse. If the animal went close to it, then were the relatives convinced the soul was in a state of bliss, but if the dog could not be tempted to go near the body they despaired
