Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sargent were week end guests at the home of Mrs. Sargent's mother, Mrs. Rosa Jackson. When the Sargents returned to their home at Kinxua they took with them their small son Marshall who has been spending two weeks with his grandmother.

During the past few days three Wedgewood ranges with Flanto equipment have been sold through the Bert Mason Agency. The ranges were taken by Mrs. C. A. Marquardt, Mrs. Werner Rietman and Mrs. R. W. Lieuten

Road Builders of the Past

Nobody knows who built the first road but remains have been found of a highway laid out in Egypt, father of the great pyramids in Egypt, says the National Geographic Magazine. Babylon had three great highways, and the first levying of tolls in the history of highways took place on one of these Babylonian routes. The Carthaginians were the most scientific roadbuilders of ancient times, but the details of their construction have been lost.

Sand of Sahara Desert Carried Far by Winds

It is now well recognized that the falls of colored rain and also of dry dust that occur at rather frequent intervals in southern and central Europe are due, in most cases, to windborne material blown up from the Sahara desert.

Several cases in which enormous quantities of solid matter have been carried great distances by the wind's have formed the subject of elaborate investigations on the part of meteorologists. Thus during the three days, March 8 to 10, 1901, heavy dust storms occurred in the deserts of southern Algeria, and the sequel of these storms was carefully studied by Hellmann and Meinardus. A widespread cyclonic storm, centered over Tunis at the time, sucked up the dust, which was carried northward by the winds at high altitudes.

Deposits from this dust cloud occurred over an area extending as far as 2,500 miles from the place of origin. Reports collected from hundreds of observers indicated that 1,900,000 tons of dust fell over the continent of Europe, and one-third of this fell north of the Alps. As much more is believed to have fallen over the Mediterranean, while on the African coast itself the deposit is supposed to have amounted to 120,000,000 tons.

Maiden's Heart Won by Suitor's Bank Balance

Bill and Jack, living in the same Long Island town, were rivals for the hand of pretty Betty, but, although she remained neutral and showed no preference, each considered himself the favored one. They remained friends, having made a gentleman's agreement that there would be no hard feelings on the part of the unsuccessful suitor.

However, there was no curb on the manner of courting her—and that's where fate stepped in. Bill continually sent Betty flowers and candy and took her to theaters and the opera. Jack, on the other hand, was decidedly stingy. But one night, after a pleasant visit, he managed to leave his bank book behind him in a chair, as if it had fallen out of his pocket.

Betty, being human and feminine, could not resist her curiosity—and that is why she married Jack. Flowers and candy can be forgotten, but real money in a bank speaks volumes.—New York Sun.

Franklin's God

Benjamin Franklin's god resembled a Jehovah, surrounded by his cherubim, a deity that might have been dreamed of by a disciple of Plato. The supreme being of Franklin is separated from us by a series of beings, superior to us, inferior to him, each installed in a planet of its own, and ruling over the satellites which belong to it. As an inhabitant of the earth, Franklin thought himself obliged to worship the god who lived in the sun, and he made a liturgy for him—a kind of abbreviation of the Anglican prayers—to which he remained faithful. Like a good Platonist, he demanded of this god virtue, knowledge, an after life.—Baltimore Sun.

Hint for the Home

Women may lead in literature, divorce, glass blowing, fat girls, etc., but there is still one province where man reigns supreme.

When I got home last night Mrs. B was listing about 30 degrees to the starboard and complaining of severe pains in her left side.

After much coaxing I got her to tell me what the trouble was. She said she had carried in a bucket of coal.

I lit into her good. I was furious. I told her never to let me hear of her carrying in another single bucket of coal as long as she lived.

Her lips quivered and I thought that perhaps I had gone too far.

Then I told her that if she wanted to carry in the coal it was all right with me, but I wanted her to carry two buckets at a time in the future. I don't want no lopedid wife.—Spokane Spokesman Review.

Chateau of Knowledge

The speculative mind of man is like a colossal chateau set on a hill. It is surrounded by perpetual darkness. The chateau has countless windows facing in all directions. There is, at first, but one light, a flickering glimmer, in one small window level with the ground.

Agnes pass. Another window slowly lights up. Gradually, as time flows away, a thousand windows in the chateau flame with light. Tower windows begin to glimmer. Finally, the whole chateau is a blaze of light. For behind each window a mind labors in a small dark room shaped like a human skull to create a light of its own. From the tower windows the lights gush the dark for a great way. But the most powerful light from the highest window is merely an inch trying to eat the infinite.—The Thinker.

Give Signals For Stop And Turn

And give them properly. These views show an Oakland V-8 sedan, with the driver illustrating the proper arm signals for stopping and turning. The upper photo shows the right turn signal, the arm extended upward. The arm extended horizontally means a left turn, and arm held downward means stop or slow. Use these—they may prevent a serious crash.
