POWER IS ONLY THE "SEED" OF OUR ELECTRIC SERVICE

ABSOLUTELY FREE electric energy at the power plants would be only a starter on Pacific power & Light Companies intricate and expensive job—the job of bringing dependable electric service to the 8,000 farmers and tens of thousands of town and city dwellers served by its lines. For, despite the fact that costly plants are required to generate electric energy, the far-flung distribution systems, the transmission lines and the operating expenses necessary to maintain this dependable service constitute the major costs in our business.

To serve Pacific Power & Light Company rural users at rates lower than prevail in almost any other similar section of the United States demands also the services of a capable staff of engineers and technical men, working under the direction of seasoned executives who have spent their lives in the power and light industry.

Like the experienced farmer who knows that seed alone is not crop money in the bank, these trained workers realize the need for sound management, as well as expensive equipment, in developing their "seed"—electric energy—into finished service. Their ability to make a good "crop" is proved by the fact that your district enjoys an ample supply of electric energy at unusually low costs. Utilize more Pacific Power and Light Company service—it cuts farm production costs.

Few thinking farmers would contend that free seed would cure all of their business problems. They know the same is true of "cheap power", even if it could be achieved. Both seed and electricity relatively small items in the total cost of production. Stick to sound business principles. Vote down proposals to put politics into the power business with your money.
