SOPHMORE PARTY

The prizes for the best costumes went to Opal Finn as Madam Queen and to Norman Everson as the minister. At the close of a happy evening refreshments of pumpkin pie and cider were served.

Greatest Farming State?
Iowa claims the largest proportion of actually arable land in the United States.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Mary A. Notson, Reporter

Don't be deceived by the wet press who boldly headline and "play up" happenings favorable to repeal of the Prohibition law while any dry success is buried in the inner pages. All this is to deceive and confuse. The wets are frantic in their efforts to get a repeal of the dry law before it is too late.

In the saloon days a prominent Heppner man once stated that it was not an unusual thing for his sheepherders to save until they had as much as $300, draw the money, spend three days in Heppner, then come to him for money to get a meal. How shocked we'd be if we had those days back for a week. We were used to it then. Those were the days when faithful horses took their unconscious masters home.

Even runaway horses got them and dragging them home to keep home somehow.

The roads then were not full of cars. We have changed conditions and as Ford says "A motor doesn't know the way home."

The chief scout, Dan Beard says "I know and you know that prohibition is the finest thing in the world for these kids of ours."

"Why" he went on, sitting bolt upright in his chair. "Why, take it here in these woods. When I was building these cabins I had the time of my life keeping my workmen sober enough to do an honest day's work. Pay them for a day's work and they were drunk for a week. Many's the night I've gone the length of this long road, picking up unconscious men all along it, them from freezing to death.

That hasn't happened in this country for years. Lots of these boys who come up to me for the summer have never seen a really drunk man."

PACIFIC POWER & LIGHT COMPANY SERVICE HAS ALWAYS "COME THROUGH"

TAX PROTECTION IN YOUR OWN HANDS

The time to prevent higher taxes is not when you get your tax bill, but when you are asked to approve measures that will permit higher taxes. Taxing powers are seldom neglected. Study the power district measure for yourself, you'll find it the greatest tax increasing scheme ever submitted.

CUSTOMERS of Pacific Power & Light Company have never suffered from a power shortage. Flood and drought have been anticipated and guarded against.

Back of your electric switch stands an organization—an organization built up only after years of active experience. Hazards of all sorts, physical and financial, have been met and successfully overcome, in developing the Company's responsible service. Its men have proved their courage and capacity, and their value to you—not by politics, but by practical training and long experience in doing the job right.

This responsible, professional service benefits you in many directions. Not the least is its contribution to your ever present tax problem—a problem greatly aggravated by all proposals for political operation and political exemption of industrial property from taxation.
