HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The $360,000 Necklace

Did Marie Antoinette, queen of France, enjoy Cardinal de Rohan to such an extent that she was able to rob him of the famous diamond necklace which formed one of the causes leading up to the French revolution? If not, who was responsible for the scandal which broke with terrible violence over the French court and, finally, what became of the money received for the necklace itself?

These are questions which have excited the curiosity and speculation of hundreds of historians and novelists but which, despite the most rigid investigations, remain still unanswered. Inextricably entwined with the sordid but spectacular story of Louis XV, Madame Du Barry, De Rohan, Madame Lamotte, and Marie Antoinette herself.

In 1774 Louis XV was infatuated with Madame Du Barry and, as an evidence of his affection, commissioned the court jewelers to collect the finest diamonds they could lay their hands on and fashion a necklace that would be absolutely unique. The jewelers exercised so much care in the selection of these stones that, before the necklace was completed, the king died. The work was so far advanced, however, that the gorgeous piece was finished at a cost of some $360,000—equivalent at the present time to practically $1,000,000—in the hope that it could be sold to Louis XVI for his queen.

Then suddenly Jeanne de Valoise (Madame Lamotte) came upon the scene and hoodwinked Cardinal de Rohan—arch-enemy to the queen—into believing that she was Marie Antoinette's most intimate friend. Lamotte even signed spurious notes with the queen's name and worked upon the ambition of the cardinal until De Rohan believed that she had succeeded in overcoming Marie Antoinette's hostility toward him.

Finally Lamotte risked a note to the cardinal—a communication which was supposed to have come directly from the queen of France—commissioning him to borrow 60,000 francs for a certain charitable purpose, the money to be transmitted to the queen through Madame Lamotte. The cardinal borrowed the money and turned it over to the intermediary. A second loan of an equal amount was also obtained and with the money the Lamottes furnished one of the most magnificent houses in the capital and financed themselves for a round of ceaseless gaudies.

The success which had attended this scheme evidently led Jeanne Lamotte to believe that she could put through one of the most daring frauds in history—the theft of the almost priceless diamond necklace which had become a white elephant on the hands of the court jewelers. Jeanne therefore insinuated to Cardinal de Rohan that Marie Antoinette wished to purchase the necklace for her own use, but that she particularly desired that the king know nothing of the transaction, adding that if the cardinal would attend to the details of the transaction it would entirely reinstate him in royal favor. De Rohan hastened to fulfill the mission and, on February 1, 1785, the necklace passed into his hands and his note was accepted by the jewelers for the entire purchase price—it being understood (thanks to Lamotte's intrigues) that the transfer was being made with the full approval of the queen.

The necklace was to be delivered to Marie Antoinette by the cardinal on the eve of a grand fete at which the queen was expected to wear it, and the casket containing the jewels was taken to the home of the Lamottes, by whom it was to be handed to the queen's messenger. Still further to dupe the cardinal, Jeanne Lamotte employed an actress to impersonate Marie Antoinette and, because of the heavy veil which the substitute wore, De Rohan believed that he had actually had an interview with the queen herself.

Lamotte then dispatched her husband to London with the necklace, where it was broken up and the stones sold separately. Unfortunately for the plans of the adventuress, however, the trick was discovered when the jewelers wrote to the queen, thanking her for purchasing the diamonds. Marie Antoinette at once demanded an explanation of their statement and then asked for the original copy of the agreement. De Rohan was immediately arrested and sent to the Bastille, to be followed shortly afterward by Madame Lamotte and a number of her accomplices. But this by no means ended the case, because the actions of Marie Antoinette were so strange and her explanations so strained that many historians have expressed the belief that she herself was more or less interested in the matter and that she had profited directly by the sale of the stones abroad. Regardless of this phase of the matter, however, the affair of the queen's necklace remains one of the most absorbing intrigues as well as one of the most mysterious romances of a court noted for its plots and counterplots.

One Emancipation Few

Are in Hurry to Meet

The emancipation of women, according to one Dr. Olga Stastny, can be attained simply by tilting back in their chairs and putting their feet on the desk—just like a man.

It is an easy way to achieve emancipation, and there is no doubt some kinds of work can be done in this position. A business woman could read her mail with her feet higher than her head; could dictate letters; might even take dictation if the boss were not reduced to speechlessness by the novel spectacle. But for such jobs as cooking, minding the baby, doing the family wash, and so forth, the feet-on-the-table stance would violate all efficiency rules.

As for emancipation, we can only ask: "Emancipation from what?" Probably the doctor never thought of that. Ask anybody, man or woman, if he wants to be emancipated, and it is dollars to doughnuts he will say yes. Ask him what he wants to be emancipated from, and it is a $100 to $1 shot he won't answer.

Work? Not a chance. Man, who has been putting his feet on the desk since desks were invented, never worked harder. He is still bound to the wheel. Why should women, by imitating him in this respect, hope to achieve what he obviously has not achieved? They could not do it even by standing on their heads.

Emancipation? Vain word. There is no such thing. It is a will-o'-the-wisp which it is folly to pursue. Work, worries, cares, responsibilities, sorrow and adversity—there is no escaping them. Some stand them better than others, but only by grace of superior spiritual and moral resources—certainly not by being emancipated from them. Only one thing can do that—and, while it is often spoken of as turning up one's toes, it is not putting one's feet on the desk.—New Bedford Standard.

Frenchman's Great Idea

for Ocean Metropolis

A floating city, anchored in the ocean between the Old and New worlds, is the daring proposal of Leon Foenquinos, a Marseilles engineer. M. Foenquinos wants to build a circular steel ring large enough to contain a population of 200,000 that would be "the most majestic work of man." It would be anchored at a shallow spot, less than 200 feet deep, that is located in the Gulf Stream about half way between Paris and New York, at 43 degrees longitude and 45 degrees north latitude. The ring would be 650 feet high, its internal diameter 3,282 feet and its external diameter 4,600 feet. The idea is to call the place "Atlantis," and it will be a complete city with all metropolitan conveniences, and it is hoped it will be a desirable break in the voyage for tourists between Europe and America. There will be suitable landing places for ships and planes. It will be the "eighth wonder of the world."

Almost Like a Rebellion

A party of United States tourists put up at a Thousand Islands resort recently. They had just got in from Ottawa and had expressed amazement at the beauty of the capital, especially the Chateau and the parliament buildings. Also they had noticed that there was an election on "up there."

"And it must be an important election," said one. "A man named Bennett is running against the king."—Ottawa Journal.

CAUGHT COLD?

IT'S easy to throw off a cold when you know what to do—and do it. Two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin will break up a cold in a jiffy! Take them promptly. Bayer Aspirin will check your cold at any stage, but why wait until you are miserable? These tablets are perfectly harmless because they don't depress the heart. If your throat feels sore, crush three more tablets in a little water and gargle. This will ease your throat instantly and reduce any infection. A cold needn't worry you when you take these simple precautions. But the simplest cold is serious when you don't. Remember that, and remember to get the genuine tablets stamped Bayer. Read the proven directions for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica; and for the prompt, positive relief of periodic pain.

Radio Church Bells

The very latest idea in bell music comes from Tintagel parish church, in Cornwall, England. This church was the first in the country to install a radio-gramophone system, and this proved so successful that arrangements were made recently to reproduce records of bell music by means of a moving-coil loud-speaker placed in the church tower. It is claimed that records of bells played in this way cannot be distinguished from the real thing. And, of course, the loud-speaker installation is much less expensive than genuine bells would be.
