W. C. T. U. NOTES

Mary A. Notson, Reporter
Wanted—Personal Liberty
Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight.
Give us the old saloon just for tonight.
Give us the odor that floats thru the door—
State beer unsteady hands spill on the floor.
Give us the maudlin men staggering out
Fighting the children who're playing about.
Give us the drunkard asleep in the gutter,
Give us the foul words the sodden sots utter.
Backward, turn backward, and let us again
See in our alleys the drink fuddled men
Thrust from the door of the corner saloon.
After his money is spent, all too soon,
Give us the drunkard's home, haunt of despair.
Give us the drunkard's wife, haggard with care.
Give us the children whose father has spent
Over the bar, food and clothing and rent.
Backward, turn backward, Time let us once more
See the saloon keeper stand by the door.
Trying to lure men and boys going by,
Like a fat spider awaiting the fly.
Give the pocket as empty as air,
After the pay check is left with him there.
Backward, turn backward, oh Time, in your flight
Give us the old saloon, just for tonight.
By Artemisia Andrews in News Index Summer, Washington.
These lines bring to mind the places of drink in the old days, places that never could be made decent even by a prominent clergyman who tried opening them with hymns and prayer. It would seem like asking God to bless theft, debauchery and murder. The very men themselves laughed the thing down with scorn. There is something about the selling of booze that defies all attempts at regulation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Grimes left Wednesday, for Portland expecting to return Sunday. They went to visit Mrs. Grimes' son, Louis Pyle, who has been ill for some time and who has been receiving treatment in a Portland hospital for the last three months.

Measured and Tested Service

The measure of Electric Service is accurate as your pocket's weights or your marketman's scales. Every meter is doubly inspected before installation. Periodically it is tested to ensure that you pay only for service you actually use.

No matter what amount of Electricity you make use of, its cost dwindles to nothingness compared to the convenience you enjoy through it. Is there anything that brings you more at less cost?
