NUMBER 33

The Christmas Season At Ione

Ione was gay with decorations for the Yuletide season. The large evergreen tree on Main Street with its red, white, blue and green light bulbs gave a touch of color. All business houses were appropriately decorated and from most of the homes shone forth a kindly Christmas greeting. J. E. Grimes as is his custom, brought loads of evergreens from the mountains, and those who wished to buy could have trees of any size. Mr. Grim's yard is a small forest of evergreens.

Many a home in Ione was the scene of a merry gathering on December 25. At the Frank Engelman home 26 gathered at the festive board. Mr. and Mrs. Engelman, Fean and Joel, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roberts, Gene Engelman of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kietmann, Bobby and Billy Joe, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Swanson, Norma and Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lundell and Billy, Mrs. Katie Petyts, G. A. Peter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nicholson and Alice Catherine.

The Balsiger clan ate turkey at the Paul Balsiger home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Paul

IN LEXINGTON SCHOOLS

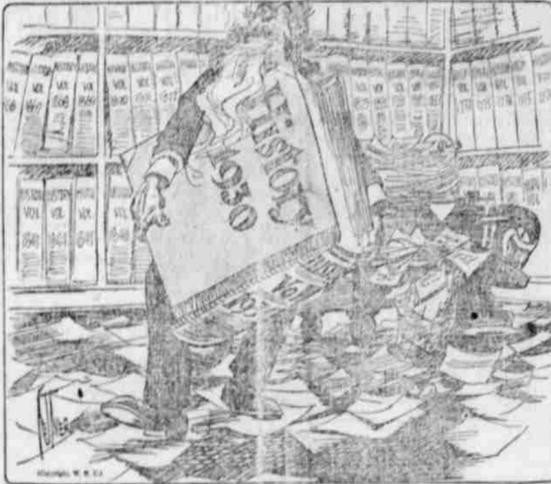

The prizes for book review posters were awarded at assembly on Wednesday by Miss Alice Montgomery, English teacher. First prize went to Earl Bundy, second prize to Veda Bundy and honorable mention was given to Ellis Mayer.

At the same time Prin. Ingles gave football letters to 12 boys who played a number of hard fought games. They were; Capt. Emmet Kuns, Dale Lane, Archie Munkers, Ellis Mayer, Maurice Reany, Llewellyn Evans, James Valentine, Orlow Martin, Harold Peck, Kenneth Warner, Merritt Gray and Vester Thornberg.

In a few days the beautiful Christmas tree which stands at the intersection of Main Street will be taken down for another year. This fourteen foot tree was given to the town by the American Legion of Heppner.

"Joint Tariff"

If a tariff quotes a through rate in which two or more railroads are involved, it is known as a joint tariff and is filed with the interstate commerce commission—that is, if the commodity starts with one carrier and terminates with another a joint tariff is necessary.

Provided for Old Custom

At Sturminster Newton (Dorset), England, Frederick Giles Symonds, retired banker, left $50 in trust in order that the vicar and churchwardens might be paid for keeping alive the old custom of ringing the curfew bell from Michaelmas day to Lady day.

St. Malo, Brittany

Brittany, the "Land of the Sea," is one of the oldest lands in the world, and its Druid stones of colossal size date back thousands of years before the Christian era, and like those at Stonehenge in England are visited annually by thousands. St. Malo on the coast has the appearance of a large ship at anchor. It stands on a rocky peninsula and is surrounded by massive walls which were built in the sixteenth century as a defense against the French and the British. The town is named after a Welsh monk named St. Malo, or Maclon, who held a bishopric here in the sixth century.

Twain Much Like Other

After-Dinner Speakers

Chicago can claim credit for a famous Mark Twain story that has been going the rounds for years and is still good.

Twain was one of the more or less distinguished persons present in Haverly's theater here on the evening of November 12, 1870, when General Grant, fresh from his trip around the world, sat through several hours of speeches in his honor.

This person and that was called for by the chairman and by the audience, and finally a shout went up for Mark Twain. The general indicated that he would like to hear the writer, and Clemens was persuaded to get up. After a few bantering remarks, he accused himself with the remark that: "I never could make a good impromptu speech without several hours to prepare it."—Chicago Evening Post.

Gray Matter in Sports

College boys will not likely agree with the bureau of standards' findings that brains are not so important in sports. But professors will say: "I told you so." After various tests the bureau supports the contention of many professors that "beef and brawn are the things which make the star performer, while intelligence shows low correlation with success in games." An interesting result of the tests is the claim that a coach can now put down an athlete's "SI" (strength index) and chart his "breaking point" in any given sport before he goes on the field. The bureau's study covered a 20-year period in which power machinery, chemical analyses, slow-motion pictures, splining light beams, charts and graphs were used.—Exchange.

Lexington News

Miss AMABELL ESTRODTMAN

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bull spent the holidays in Spokane, Wash., with Mrs. Bull's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. George McMillan are up from Cherryville, Oregon, to spend a few days with friends and relatives.

Miss Alice Montgomery, sponsor of the Sophomore class, presented a small gift to each of its members as a token of Christmas.

Miss Eulah McMillan arrived home the first of the week to spend her vacation with relatives. She is teaching school at Antione, Oregon, this year.

Wedding Bells at Lexington

BALL-SPENCE

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized on Christmas day, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shriever, on the Echo Market road when Miss Elizabeth Spence became the bride of Ernest C. Ball. The house was tastefully decorated, keeping with the season and the immediate occasion.

At four o'clock, as the wedding march sounded, the bridal couple, preceded by the flower girl and bridesmaid and best man came into the living room and made the responses to the simple but impressive marriage service of the Congregational Church, which was read by Pastor Head of Ione.

The Plains of Abraham

By
James Oliver Curwood

One lives in imagination the days of romance and peril in which English and French were struggling for mastery of the American continent—a period of strong characters in which the Indians and hardy frontiersmen furnished personalities no less striking than those of the titled adventurers who plotted with and against them. A powerful story.
