RED HAT GIRL.

You're blazing here and blazing there,
You fill the street with lurid glare,
And as you wander up and down
You fairly seem to paint the town.
You light an eight room Harlem flat.
Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red
hat!

When far away a dull red glow
Illumes the sky where'er you go,
They say that if a bull you meet You'd surely need an air ship, yet
"You're not so warm!" They can't say that.
Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red
hat!

You fairly seem to scorch the air;
Into each horse you throw a scare,
Your flaming headlight makes us thrill
And gaze and gaze and glare until We hardly know where we are at.
Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red
hat!

In fear 'tis said you'll scale a house
When fleeing from a tiny mouse,
And yet you wear beyond a doubt
The reddest badge of courage out.
Whenever you don a thing like that,
Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red
hat!

They tell a tale—pray is it true?
About that hat of fiery hue:
It got too near a big machine—
An auto run by gasoline—
And "Puff! Boom! Bang!" Did you do that?
Oh, sweet, sweet girl with the red, red
hat!

—Earle Hooker Eaton in New York Herald.

The Professor.

His Wife—That melody was really fine.
Professor—I thought so too. I will tie a knot in my handkerchief so that I won't forget it.

Goosling and His Sauce.
Once upon a time there was an impudent goosling who was exceedingly saucy.
His kind mother was very patient with him and tried to overlook his falling, hoping that he would improve with age. His father was not so lenient, and one day, when the goosling tried his saucy methods on him, he gave him a sound thrashing.
"That sort of talk may do for your mother, but it will not do for me," said
the father.
Moral—What is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander.—New York Herald.

She Looked It.
"I've a real good idea," said the manager as he pulled the gilt band off a 5 cent cigar. "Going to give the people the old songs and stir up old memories."
"Pretty good," said the friend.
"Well," continued the manager, now lighting the 5 cent cigar, "did you see that lady in my outer office? I've engaged her to sing 'The Last Rose of Summer' for 200 nights."
"Yes?" said the old friend. "Can she sing it? I know she ought to, for she certainly looks it."
And the manager threw away the 5 cent cigar.—New York Times.

Particular.
Mr. Con Seet—I suppose I'm what you might call a gay Lothario, Miss Pepprey.
Miss Pepprey—Indeed?
Mr. Con Seet—Yes. I'm attentive to a number of girls, but I'm not engaged to any particular one.
Miss Pepprey—Naturally, for how could she be engaged to you if she were?—Philadelphia Press.

Pity.
Nell—I'm in a dilemma. Of course I can't think of marrying Jack Lower, but he says if I don't he'll go to the dogs.
Belle—Well, you can't help that.
Nell—That's just it. I know I can't,
and I'm very fond of dogs.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Last Remembrance.
Ethel (ecstatically)—Oh, Charlie, would you just as leave propose all over again, and do it into this phonograph?
Cholly—Why?
"Why, I want to have something to remember you by after you have gone in and spoken to papa about it."—Life.

Subject to Conditions.
Terwilliger—Crisgen claims to have caught a catfish weighing fifty pounds in Cedar creek, does he? Well, it's safe to say he's lying to the extent of about forty pounds.
Jeroloman—Not if he hears you say it.—Chicago Tribune.

A Tomato Tragedy.
A Philadelphia man grabbed a crate of tomatoes and tried to get away with it, but the police caught up with him and shot him down.
Pretty serious case of tomato ketch-up, wasn't it?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Forest Monarch.

A great spruce tree was felled in the state of Washington recently, and it was decided that a piece of it should be sent to Sweden for exhibition purposes. The men who went to see the tree said they would take eleven feet of the butt, but the railroads told them they could leave it in Washington if they did, for it would be impossible to transport the log on any car. The men finally bought fifteen inches, and the section is nine feet in diameter.

Getting On.

"Wallie is learning to play golf very rapidly, isn't he?"
"Yes. He doesn't have to wait any more for the caddy to tell him which club he needs."—Chicago Record-Herald.

If it troubles you to pick up anything from the floor and you are under sixty,
that means you are eating too much—Atchison Globe.

Congratulations.

Mr. John H. Cullum, Editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time.
We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by Slocum Drug Co.
