A Scholar's Advice.

The German historian, Professor Theodor Mommsen, was noted for the facility with which he acquired languages. The tongues of modern Europe as well as the classics were to him not studies, but the familiar tools of his deadly work.

An American reporter who was interviewing him a few years ago asked to have a certain reference put into English, as he did not read German well.

"Not read German well? And you a journalist?" exclaimed the savant. "I do not see how it is possible. Young man, German is one of the four necessities for a student. The other three are English, French and Italian. Without them you can never know the tendency of modern thought. If you have them not, do not rest until you have learned them all."

Mr. Albee's Opinion.

Alpine, Cal., June 6.—Mr. T. M. Albee, our postmaster has expressed an opinion based on his own experience which will no doubt be of interest to many. Mr. Albee is a man of few words, but his well known truthfulness and uprightness of character adds much weight to any statement he makes. He says:

"The first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills that I used convinced me of their good qualities and I used altogether four boxes with the very best results. I can heartily recommend this remedy."

This voluntary expression of opinion will doubtless find an echo in many homes in California for Dodd's Kidney Pills have been making some miraculous cures in this state.

From the evidence already published it seems safe to conclude that this medicine will be found to be a perfect cure for Rheumatism, Urinary trouble, Backache and any and every form or symptom of Kidney Complaint.

Wanted an Experiment.

Mrs. De Style—You must give me time. Mr. Poorchap—Certainly. I have nothing but my heart to offer you, and I do not expect you to decide at once.

"Then give me two or three weeks." "Very well."

"And in the meantime I wish you to show yourself dreadfully in love with me, and I'll let folks see that I am quite interested in you."

"Um—what's the idea?" "I want to see how Mr. Richfello takes it."

Sent to Prison in a Hurry.

A new record for the trial of a jury case was made in Judge Taylor's division of the Criminal Court in St. Louis, when Otis Perceley, charged with stealing $12 from Rufus Phillips, was tried in 21 minutes and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary after the jury had been out 20 minutes. Phillips told his story in four minutes. The cross-examination required four minutes. Perceley testified in six minutes and was cross-examined for four minutes. Neither attorney argued the case and Judge Taylor took one minute to charge the jury.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Done to a Crisp.

A small boy was undressing the other evening before the open fire in his nursery, says the New York Tribune. His mother gave him his nightshirt and told him to hold it to the fire to warm.

She left the room for a minute, but returned quickly when she heard the boy say to his father:

"Papa, is this shirt done when it's brown?"

OLD ST. JOHN'S CHURCH AND WHITE HOUSE.

The above is a sketch made from the photograph of a water-color found among the effects of the late Senator Anthony, of Rhode Island, and presented by his nephew, Rear Admiral John R. Bartlett, to the family of the late Rear Admiral Charles Wilkes. It reproduces a view taken from 1 and 10th streets, including St. John's Church as it was originally built in 1810 and the White House, showing the effects of the conflagration caused by the British troops under General Ross, Aug. 24, 1814.

NEW YORK'S DWARFED SPIRES.

Modern Skyscrapers Belittle the Stately Gothics.

One of the most notable effects of the high and massive modern architecture in New York has been the dwarfing of Gothic church spires. Old Trinity spire, which a dozen years ago was a landmark for the region all about New York bay, has long been made insignificant by the marble packing boxes, some of them exceeding it in height, with which it is surrounded. The noble view up Wall street, which the artists have done much to perpetuate, still remains, but there is hardly another point from which the most beautiful spire in the city can be seen to advantage. Grace spire still dominates the view up Broadway, but that church pays a large annual rental to prevent construction on the front of the lot to the south, which is used in summer for an open-air restaurant.

Everywhere the Gothic spires are being crowded about and belittled by the pressure of business and the many storied architecture of the day. But the most notable victory over the traditional spire is in the case of Dr. Parkhurst's Madison avenue church. The present edifice, hemmed in on two sides by a skyscraping office building, which belittles its spire, has been sold across Twenty-fourth street. Obviously Gothic architecture and a spire would be at the same disadvantage on that lot as the present spire is on the other side of the street. So the architect has designed a church which is Corinthian in its main features, but with the addition of a dome. It will look like a bank rather than the conventional church, but it will suit the situation, and it is only one example of the extent to which the American school of business architecture is modifying the ideals of church builders.

KING OF BELLS.

"Czar Kolokol," Which Now Stands in the Kremlin of Moscow.

In Moscow on a granite pedestal at the foot of the belfry tower of Ivan the Great, in the Kremlin, stands the Czar Kolokol, the King of Bells. In the sixteenth century the art of casting bells was brought to perfection in Russia, and Olearius, Secretary to a Dutch Embassy to Moscow in 1636, asserts that a great bell was cast in the reign of Boris Godunof. During a fire in the reign of Alexis this bell fell to the ground and was broken. In 1654 it was recast and weighed 288,000 pounds. In 1674 it was suspended from a wooden beam at the foot of the tower, from whence it fell on June 19, 1706, during a fire. Its fragments lay on the ground until the reign of the

THE KING OF BELLS.

Empress Anne, by whose orders it was again recast in 1733 by the bellfounder Ivan Matorine. Owing to the falling of some heavy rafters during yet another fire in 1787, the bell fell a height of fifteen feet, buried itself deep in the ground, and a piece was knocked out of its side. According to some accounts, this was owing to an imperfection in the metal caused by jewels and other treasures having been thrown into the liquid metal by the ladies of Moscow. During the reign of Nicholas I., in the year 1839, the architect of St. Isaac's Cathedral at St. Petersburg, M. de Montferand, took upon himself the difficult task of raising the bell, and completed the operation with much skill. Its weight at present is 440,000 pounds, its height from the top of the ball and cross placed upon it by the order of the Emperor Nicholas I. is 26 feet 4 inches, and its circumference 67 feet 11 inches.

Its maximum thickness is 2 feet, and the weight of the broken piece about 11 tons.

The portion of the square at the foot of the belfry of Ivan, where the bell now stands, is named after him—I. a., Ivanovskala. The Otkasas (Edicts) of the Tsars were formerly publicly proclaimed here.

Advice to Young Men.

Remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around you will see that the men who are the most able to live the rest of their days without work are men who worked the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with work, my son. Men cannot work so hard as that on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 6 p. m. and don't get home until 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills. The work gives you an appetite for your meals; it lends solidity to your slumber; it gives you an appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, my son, but the world is not proud of them. The great busy world does not even know they are there. So find out what you want to be and take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less deviltry you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.—Robert J. Burdette.

A Personal Dictionary.

A visitor the other day at the studio of Peter Newell, the artist who makes the quaint pictures of goggle-eyed children, observed a large, new dictionary on a table. He was casually glancing through it when he noticed that the section under the letter N came before that under M.

"Why, see here, Newell!" he exclaimed, "what's the matter with your dictionary—N comes before M? Get it on the bargain counter?" "Oh, no!" replied Mr. Newell, leisurely, shutting one eye and surveying the drawing he was working on, "nothing of the sort. You see, when I first went to school out in Illinois I came before M, so all through life I've gone on repeating the alphabet, 'L, N, M, O,' and so on. It's always made me lots of trouble in looking up words in the dictionary, so when I got this one I just took it around to the binder's and had the two letters shifted about to fit my own impressions. One might as well be as comfortable as possible in this life."

Apparatus for Washing Smoke.

A smoke-washing apparatus is in successful use in London. It is claimed that the apparatus does away with the necessity for chimneys, as it produces the exact amount of draught required for complete combustion and deprives the smoke of its noxious properties. It consists of an electrically-driven fan, which draws the smoke from the fire and passes it into a stream of water, which extracts the sulphurous and unconsumed particles. It works automatically and only requires that the water in its lower part should be changed at regular intervals.

Remunerative.

"Well, Bobby, how do you like church?" asked his father as they walked homeward from the sanctuary, to which Bobby had just paid his first visit.

"It's fine!" ejaculated the young man. "How much did you get, father?"

"How much did I get? Why, what do you mean? How much what?" asked the astonished parent at this evident irreverence.

"Why, don't you remember when the funny old man passed the money around? I only got 10 cents."

The Objectionable Part.

"I see; you object to his hot-air castles."—Philadelphia Ledger.

EACH COLOR TO ITSELF.

How the Cherokee Nation Gets Over the Race Problem.

The race problem in the Cherokee nation is solved to the general satisfaction of the three races concerned and the intermediary mixed bloods. In the location of homes the Cherokees fullbloods and negroes are mostly in settlements. The intermarried whites largely are in towns and territory contiguous to each other. The Cherokee-speaking citizens much prefer to associate together.

In the nation there are thirty schools attended by fullblood Cherokee children and seventeen by negro children. The negro blood schools are not so by legal requirement, but as a corollary of their preference to live near each other. The Cherokee and negro do not intermarry or socially mingle. Two seminaries and an orphan asylum are attended by fullbloods and mixed bloods only, the colored high school by negroes only.

In the incorporated school districts whites and Indians attend the same schools, and race prejudice and undue feeling on either side are being lost in fellowship and friendship cultivated in the class room and on the playground. Both sides are better satisfied in the combined schools than they were when they were kept separate. Fullbloods seem to mingle as freely with white renters and their families of good character as they do with mixed bloods.

Of the 88,500 citizens of the Cherokee nation the best statistical information gives about 8,500 fullbloods, 3,200 intermarried whites, 22,800 mixed bloods and 4,000 freedmen.—Kansas City Journal.

A World-Wide Reputation.

Wherever men are there will be illness and wherever people are ill, Dodd's Kidney Pills will be found a blessing. Solely on their merits have they pushed their way into almost every part of the civilized world. Their reputation as an honest medicine that can always be relied on has been built up by the grateful praise of those who have been cured. The two following letters indicate just how the reputation of this remedy knows no geographical bounds. The sick and suffering all over the world are asking for Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dear Sirs:—I have been suffering for some months from a Kidney complaint. The doctor who attended me has recommended me to take your Pills, "Dodd's Kidney Pills." After two boxes I got some relief. But unfortunately I have not been able to go on with the treatment, being unable to find any Pills in Cairo.

The chemist who sold me the two boxes has informed me that he had sent an order for some, and has been keeping me waiting for more than one month. This is the reason why I am writing to you to request you to have the goodness to send by return of post six boxes for which I will pay as soon as I receive them from the post.

Kindly let me know at the same time where your branch agency in Egypt is to be found. Thanking you in anticipation,

MOHAMED RACHED,

Immeubles Libres de l'Etat, Office of the Minister of Finance, Cairo, Egypt.

Dear Sirs:—I want to purchase six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, but I don't know exactly where to apply at Buffalo or London. I suppose they can be sent by express or registered mail from either place. Please advise me of how to proceed in order to get the pills without delay. Yours truly,

J. F. SIMONSON, Viborg, V., Mark, Denmark.

One on John Kernell.

The late John Kernell, the Irish comedian, liked in his prime to go back to Ireland, whence he would often bring material, gathered in alehouses and on the high roads, that afterward served him well in dialogue upon the stage.

Kernell once said at a little supper party in Boston that he had met on a summer day in Galway an Irishman driving a horse so thin that it staggered as it walked.

"Why don't you put more flesh on that nag?" Kernell exclaimed, indignantly.

"More, is it?" the Irishman answered.

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA

Recommends Pe-ru-na

For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Called Dyspepsia—Something to Produce Artificial Digestion is Generally Taken.

Hence, Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Has Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

Ex U. S. Senator M. C. Butler, from South Carolina, was senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peru-na Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., says:

"I can recommend Peru-na for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peru-na cures catarrh. Peru-na does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods or narcotics.

Peru-na has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peru-na cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peru-na cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peru-na cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

Peru-na is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peru-na is a catarrh remedy. Peru-na cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.
