RAWLINS POST NO. 51, G. A. R. MEET AT
Odd Fellows' Hall at Heppner, every third
Saturday of each month.
G. W. RIEA, AdJ. G. W. SMITH, Com.

THURSDAY, AUG. 18, 1904.

Within the past week Admiral Togo's fleet has not only met, defeated and very badly damaged the Russian Port Arthur fleet, but the Vladivostok squadron has been almost annihilated by the second Japanese naval squadron under command of vice-Admiral Kimimura, and Japan is again master of the sea. Both the Russian squadrons were so badly damaged it is believed they will not be of further service during the war. With her war vessels all on the shelf, her armies badly demoralized and Port Arthur on the verge of capitulation, it would seem there is not much left for Russia but to sue for peace and endeavor to procure the best terms she can under the circumstances.

We recognize the organization of capital and the organization of labor as natural outcomes of our industrial system. Each kind of organization is to be favored so long as it acts in a spirit of justice and of regard for the rights of others. Each is to be granted the full protection of the law, and each in turn is to be held to a strict obedience of the law; for no man is above and no man below it. The humblest individual is to have his rights guarded as scrupulously as those of the strongest organization, for each is to receive justice, no more and no less. The problems with which we have to deal in our modern industrial and social life are manifold; but the spirit in which it is necessary to approach their solution is simply the spirit of honesty, of courage, and of common sense.—Theodore Roosevelt.

When historians write the true story of the Japanese-Russian war their pages will be illumined by accounts of some of the most daring exploits that have ever taken place on the high seas. There was a skill in planning and boldness of execution in the raids of the piratical crews who sailed under the flag of Sir Henry Morgan, buccaneer, and also the men who "fought with Blake and sailed with Drake." But no coup ever executed by these historical rovers of the seas surpasses some of the work of the little brown men, who are now inflicting such telling blows on the floating property. Fatalists to a man, the Japanese on sea and shore have taken chances of destruction that would never be accepted by the fighters of a highly civilized race, and by sheer audacity have won where more prudent fighters would have been defeated. The old statement that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread" might be amended to include Japanese, for no "front" that the Russians have yet put up on sea or shore has stayed the movements of the Japanese any more than a red flag stays the movements of a mad-dened bull.—Oregonian.

LEXINGTON ITEMS

Rev. J. C. White, of Strawberry, was in town Tuesday.
Fred Beymer is recovering from an attack of the mumps.
Dr. Leach, of Heppner, was in town Wednesday evening.
Mrs. W. P. McMillan returned from the mountains last Friday.
J. M. White and family returned from a trip to the mountains Monday.
T. L. Barnett is suffering from an attack of the mumps. Tom wishes he had had the mumps when a boy.
The fourth quarterly meeting of the M. E. Church, South, South, will be held next Saturday evening at the church. The presiding elder will preach Sunday morning and evening.

Misses Nellie Scott and Elsie Palmer, two of our teachers, took the teachers' examination at Heppner last week.

Your correspondent has been assisting in the harvest field, hence the absence of any communication from this vicinity.

The busy hum of the threshing machine is heard on all sides. Several parties are delivering wheat to the warehouse.

Noted Show Bull Sold.

W. O. Minor sold, yesterday, to J. P. Graves, of Spokane, his premium Short-horn bull, Belted Valentine, for $500 to be delivered at the close of the state fair. Mr. Minor has made the circuit of state fairs the past two years and Belted Valentine has taken first prize everywhere shown. He will take this bull to the state fair at Salem next month, along with eleven others of his show herd. After the fair Valentine will be delivered to Mr. Graves at Spokane. Ten of his other eleven head of show cattle have also been sold to be delivered at the same time, but we did not learn to whom they were sold.

Must Dip Sheep.

The government stock inspector received notice this week from Geo. S. Hickok, the agent in charge of the animal inspection bureau at Salt Lake City, that all sheep leaving the state must be dipped at least once. The notice reads:

"Sheep that are being shipped into other states for feeding or stock purposes or for breeding, must be dipped once as exposed, and twice if infected, in some of the (one) dips approved by this bureau, and under the supervision of a federal employe."
This order holds up a shipment of 13,000 sheep that were to have been shipped from Pendleton this week. While the ruing has created consternation among those interested in the immediate shipment from Umatilla county, on account of having to hold the animals until dipping vats are prepared, at a considerable loss in shrinkage, it will doubtless prove of great benefit in the long run, as it will prevent the shipment into this state as well as out of it of infected animals.

Sold 5000 Sheep.

Douglas Belts has sold to Hunter & Stevens, for shipment to Nebraska, about 5000 fat mutton for immediate delivery, says the E. O.

It appears that the buyers seem to be gaining some slight advantages in the contest now going on, as they paid $1.25 for old ewes and $1.65 for lambs, and all the animals are in the finest condition.

These sheep are on the mountain ranges and finer stock sheep never went out of the state. They will be fed in Nebraska for the Eastern markets. In the event of a settlement of the strikes at any time within several months and the consequent clearing up of industrial conditions, the purchasers of these sheep are reasonably sure of making big profits on the deal.

Sheep sold and shipped from this county a few weeks ago are said to have sold on the Chicago markets at $3 net, a clear profit of $1 per head, so it can be seen what is in sight for the Nebraska buyers if the Chicago situation turns out favorably.

Happened at Baker.

A funny little incident occurred in the office of one of our city attorneys yesterday. A gentleman who had been married to his wife for ten years wished to have a deed to a tract of land made to his wife; whereupon the lawyer proceeded to draw the deed "good and stout." When he came to the place where his name should be inserted he turned to the gentlemen and asked: "What is your wife's name?" The gentleman pondered a minute, walked across the room once or twice and finally, after several moments' reflection, exclaimed:

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. "Well, I'll be darned if I know! I lived with her for the past ten years and never knew her by any other name than 'Sis'" and immediately started home to get at the fact. He soon returned with the requisite memorandum copied from the family Bible, and the real estate was forthwith deeded, conveyed, etc., unto said "Sis," her heirs and assigns forever.—Baker City Democrat.

Use of Manure.

It is the prevailing opinion of chemists as well as practical men that where it is practicable it is best to apply manure and urine to the soil in the freshest possible condition. The fertilizing constituents of well rotted manure, as already explained, are more quickly available to plants, and the manure itself is less bulky and easier to distribute. On the other hand, fresh manure mixed with the soil readily undergoes a fermentation which not only increases the availability of its own fertilizing constituents, but also assists in rendering soluble the hitherto insoluble fertilizing constituents of the soil. In fact, even with special precautions to prevent injurious fermentation under the feet of the animals and in the heap the greater return is likely to be got from manure applied in the fresh condition.—Farm and Live Stock Journal.

Guinea Hens on the Farm.

Guinea hens, both as useful and ornamental birds, should have a place on every farm. The only objection usually made against them is on account of their noisy outcries. One soon becomes accustomed to their peculiar music and hardly notices it or disregards it on account of their many desirable qualities. They are attractive to the sight, amusing in their habits and actions, and by many their flesh and eggs are considered superior articles of diet.—Orange Judd Farmer.

What the Trap Nest Shows.

If poultrymen could be persuaded to use trap nests they would be surprised to discover what differences in egg production exists between hens from the same flock. In the Maine experiment station test one White Wyandotte hen laid 219 eggs in a year and another not one. Of four Plymouth Rocks one laid six eggs and the other three 227, 240 and 251 respectively. The general use of the trap nest would double the profits of poultry keeping within five years.—Poultry Herald.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. ANDREWS, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Slocum Drug Co.
