Fattening Beef For Market

An Iowa feeder, Orville Lee, relates in Breeder's Gazette the following experience in fattening a bunch of steers for market:

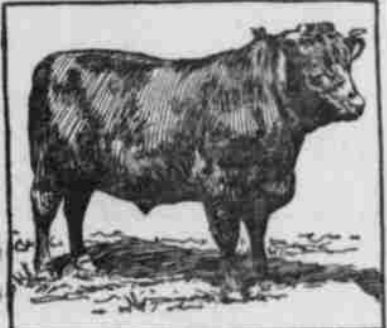

"The steers were a part of a bunch of 180 steers purchased by my brother and myself in the vicinity of Sac City, Ia., during the months of February, March and April of 1903, most of the bunch being bought during the month of April. The 180 head were placed in a well drained twenty acre lot and fed on good tame hay and corn fodder until grass time, May 8, when they were weighed and divided into two bunches. The average weight of this bunch was 708 pounds at this time."

"The ninety cattle which fell to me were placed May 9 in a good clover and blue grass pasture, where they remained until Nov. 1, when they were put on a field of after grass. When the weather turned cold in December they were driven to the yard with a shed at night and given a light feed of fodder, corn and all, until Jan. 2. During this last month they consumed fifteen acres of good corn. On Jan. 2 they were placed in a feed yard with good open sheds, hayracks and self feeders, and during the next ten days were worked up to a full feed of shelled corn and oatmeal, mixed four pounds of meal to every bushel of shelled corn. This was placed in the self feeders, and the ration was never changed except that a light feed of ear corn was given occasionally. For roughness they were given all the wild hay, tame hay and oat straw they would clean up, and on odd mornings a feed of corn fodder. Every steer in the lot made a good even growth, and the fifty-two head averaged 1,319 pounds in Chicago on the day they were sold. I reserved thirty-eight head for another thirty days of feeding."

"It will be noticed that these cattle made an average gain of just about 600 pounds in twelve and a half months from the feed yards to Chicago; that they were on pasture without grain 210 days of that time, were given a light grain ration on pasture thirty days and were on full feed 140 days. During the full feed period they consumed fifty-five bushels of corn per steer. During the thirty days preparatory feed they consumed fifteen acres of good corn, or about eight bushels each, or a total of sixty-four bushels, which, at 49 cents, the average price this corn has cost me in the self feeders, would be $31.92; pasturing for eight months at 75 cents per month would be $6; 708 pounds at 4 cents, May 8, 1903, would figure $28.32, making the cost $65.68. They netted per head $63.20, causing a loss per head of $2.48."

Bridekirk won first prize in the two-year-old class for Shorthorn bulls. He was sold for $11,000.

Preparing Cattle For Shipment.

In preparing cattle for shipment to market it is easier to tell what not to do than what to do, says Wallace's Farmer. Do not give them an overdose of salt and do not fill them up with corn. Do not get them excited, especially if they have to be driven some distance. Experienced shippers frequently take away all the corn from cattle twenty-four hours previous to shipping and give them oats and hay. Some ship on this, and others give a small corn feed before starting. On a hay and oats feed they will be less liable to scour, and cattle managed in this way will get a better bill before being offered for sale and will look better than any other way of which we have any knowledge.

Alfalfa Good For Mares.

In two or three instances I have observed your contributors object to feeding alfalfa to in-foul mares, as it tends either to abortion or to weak colts, says J. M. Caldwell of Nebraska in Breeder's Gazette. I am happy to give an experience not in harmony with this theory. I sold nearly all my hay and have fed alfalfa almost exclusively the past winter and spring. The strongest and most active colt I ever saw came from a mare that had been fed alfalfa during the entire period of her pregnancy. The colt was found the morning after his birth during the night, having in some unaccountable manner gone over both the partitions of the manger on to the feeding floor. He is now a month old and has been a remarkably strong and active colt from the first.

Beautiful Columbia Folder.

The passenger department of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company has just issued a beautiful and costly panoramic folder entitled "The Columbia River, Through the Cascade Mountains, to the Pacific Ocean." From Arlington to Portland and from Portland to the Pacific ocean, every curve of the river, and every point of interest are shown, while Mt. Adams and Mt. St. Helens, perpetually covered with snow, stand out in all their beauty. On the back of the map is an interesting story in detail of the trip from Huntington to Portland, and from Portland to the ocean, not overlooking the beaches and the San Francisco trip by ocean. A copy of this folder may be secured by sending four cents in stamps (to pay postage) to A. L. Craig, General Passenger agent of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, Portland, Ore. By sending the address of some friend in the East, and four cents in postage, the folder will be promptly mailed.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five-cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by Slocum Drug Co."

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Krimsa, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicine.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.
