Adjudged Insane.

Wm. Lefler, a herder, who has been herding sheep for Art Minor the past few months, was examined here Tuesday morning by Judge Ayers and County Physician F. B. Kistner, and was adjudged insane.

It appears that Lefler had left his band of sheep in the mountains some time Monday and started for Heppner. Arriving at P. C. Creswell's ranch on Willow creek, a few miles above this city, he stopped and asked for something to eat. On talking with him a few minutes Mr. Creswell perceived that he was crazy, and asked him to lay down a double-bitted ax he was carrying and come in and get supper. At first he did not want to part with the ax, but finally consented. While he was eating Mr. Creswell harnessed a team hastily and persuaded him to ride to town, where he was turned over to Sheriff Shutt, who, upon searching him, found a bowie knife with a six-inch blade, hidden beneath his shirt, which he said he had brought along for protection, as he had the hallucination that someone was trying to kill him. He stated to Mr. Creswell as they came to town that they, meaning imaginary persons that were endeavoring to kill him, had already killed Art Minor and a couple of other men, and that he needed the ax for protection.

He also stated to the sheriff that some man had been riding about his band of sheep bleating and scaring them and endeavoring to kill him. He said the bleating did not worry him, but it hurt the sheep, so he procured an ax and knife and started out to defend himself. Sheriff Shutt and Joe Boyer left yesterday morning with Lefler for Salem, where he was committed to the asylum by Judge Ayers.

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.
