

IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

The Car of Progress by Rolling On, Rolling On.
No great time is going to elapse before the rumble of the railroad train is heard in the Heppner Hills, and then look out for a healthy and legitimate increase in the value of real property. Judging by the history of other localities it will take no particular boom at all to increase the legitimate market value of Morrow county land from $5 to $15 or $20 an acre. Men who have sold out in other localities at $200 an acre will come to Morrow county and eagerly buy up $25 lands and recognize the fact that they are getting big bargains, and that such lands are afterwards going to double up on their hands.

Railroads are the forerunners of enhanced values of real property and all commodities. The railroad that comes to Heppner has a rich field before it. It will have the trade of the wealthiest wool-producing part of the state. Millions of pounds of wool are annually shipped out, and the producer has to wagon-haul it many long and weary miles. A railroad will place the sheep grower in a better position. A position that can only be attained through rapid transit and close connection by rail with distant points and markets.

Everything goes to show that the few dollars you now have to expend to secure land in the Heppner country amounts to but a trifle. Such expenditure is to-day one of the best investments a man can make, and his property is bound to double up and increase upon his hands. Enhanced values will henceforth be the order of the day.

AT SPOKANE FALLS.

What E. V. Smalley Writes About Entertaining City.

In all the broad northern belt of new country which reaches from St. Paul to the Pacific coast, I know of no scene of rapid development which equals that presented by Spokane Falls to-day; no such striking spectacle of the transformation of a frontier village into a large town, with extensive manufacturing, commercial and railroad activities; with solid business blocks and handsome dwellings, and with a bustling population, recruited on the arrival of every train by a throng of energetic, quick-witted newcomers. The click of the wheels, the rasp of the saw and the resounding blows of the hammer make music over all the broad, forest-griddled plain through which the blue Spokane snakes and leaps on its swift way to the Columbia, and forms a sharp treble to the bass of the roar of the cataracts that furnish the innumerable water-power for the wheels of many mills and factories. This is the music that the western man loves best—the rattle and hum of varied industry, saying the foundations and rearing the superstructure of a new civilization. And gazing in stolid wonder upon this wonderful transformation, one stands the staid, blanketed Indian, who but a few years ago, looked upon the flowery Spokane plain as his choice and exclusive domain, and upon the river as created by the Great Spirit to bring fish to his nets.

I witness the growth of Spokane Falls with special satisfaction, for have I not been predicting, on annual or semi-annual visits, for the past seven years, that here was the predestined site of a large city? And are we not all delighted when events verify our predictions and we can say "I told you so"? It is an egotistical weakness, no doubt, but then it is a very natural one. If an occasional visitor feels such satisfaction at the spectacle of progress this new metropolis of the Northwest presents, how much greater must be the pleasure of the brave pioneers who staked off their claims at the Falls only a little more than a decade ago, and have seen their most sanguine expectations fulfilled. To these men it seems but yesterday when they worked and slept in constant fear of attacks by hostile savages. Now they read the evening newspaper by the glow of Edison's incandescent electric lights, transact business by telephone, attend the opera and make pleasure journeys in Pullman cars. There were times when their hearts grew sick with hope deferred; when progress seemed to halt and skeptics scoffed at their dreams of a city to arise in this remote corner of the American Republic; but looking back on it all they now see how brief is the stretch of time that spans the whole history of the place, and how speedily have their dreams been turned to facts.—[Northwest Magazine for October.]

Benching the Buffalo.

An Eastern Woman Describes her Life in the Far West.
Francis Xavier Grammer, a painter, living on Bartlett street, Brooklyn, was married in Trinity church on September 8, 1885, to Augusta Parson. Mr. Grammer was and is still a sober, industrious man, earning good wages, and his wife, a young woman of twenty-four, is of a masculine kind of beauty. Affairs went on smoothly and happily for a few months, when Mr. Grammer discovered that his wife had developed a passionate fondness for beer, and in his absence the growler was passed rapidly and continuously. He remonstrated but affairs grew worse instead of better, and it often happened that when he came home he could get nothing to eat.

They had a baby, but that did not prevent Mrs. Grammer going to New York twice or three times a week with one Joseph Pfander, and to Coney Island, and enjoy herself generally at the expense of her husband. After this, perhaps, Mr. Grammer was less surprised than delighted when he had come home from work one evening and learned that his wife had gone off with Pfander altogether, although she had taken with her all the money he had saved during the summer and left him the six months' old baby with nothing to eat.

Sheep and Cattle in Chicago.

The cattle receipts continued during the last week to show the usual large increase as compared with the receipts of a year ago, and prices were low and weak for the general run of stock, with many sales at a further decline. The demand was good enough, but with such a glut of common cattle it was hopeless to expect any change for the better, and in a great variety of cases sales were at a very low range of prices. The bulk of the offerings were shipped from the ranges of Texas, Indian Territory, Montana, Wyoming, Dakota, and Colorado, and their quality was exceedingly poor. This made a bad market.

The bulk of sheep from the ranges of Texas and Montana to this market was as lively as ever during the last week and they comprised the greater part of the supplies. There was also a liberal supply of farm-raised mutton, and at all times the pens were well filled. Unfortunately for sellers, the offerings ran largely to common sheep and prices advanced very low. Choice lambs were mostly rather scarce and they sold readily at full prices. Sheep sold at an extreme range of $2.00 to $4.25, but very few sold as high as $4.00. Stock sheep were worth $2.50 to $3.25, and Texas and Montana sheep brought $2.25 to $2.75. Some Texas shorn sheep were sold on Thursday at $3.10. Lambs have been plentiful at $4.00 to $5.35, the latter figure for choice.

A prominent Oregon shipper who markets many thousand each season, said that last year his State sent out 300,000 sheep. These were for the most part driven to market through the summer in New York, and the rest were for a few weeks before finally placing on the market. Thus for this year the number forwarded from Oregon is not over 150,000 with comparatively few yet to come.

Important Ruling.
The great and good interior department has made a good ruling which will save lots of confusion in land titles. A number of patents are now blocked because the general land office is not satisfied with the residence or improvements shown in the proofs. In many cases the land has changed hands and the man who proved up has gone away or don't care a snap whether a patent is ever issued or not. Now it is arranged so that the present owner of the land can come to the Gazette office, and get the affidavits made. If you own land of this kind you had better get your affidavits fixed up or you will never get a good patent title.

Having in our official capacity as members of the Plymouth Co. Hospital Committee, been asked to test and prove the effectiveness of many different articles to be used as disinfectants in sick-rooms and as preventives of infectious fevers, report that Darbie's Prophylactic Fluid has been thoroughly tested during the recent typhoid epidemic in this place. It proved most efficacious in staying the spread of the fever.

Wretched, Indeed.

Are those who have a confirmed tendency to biliousness, subject to the various and changeable symptoms indicative of liver complaint, Nausea, sick headache, constipation, farrowed tongue, unpleasant breath, a dull or sharp pain in the neighborhood of the affected organ, impurity of the blood and loss of appetite, signify to it as one of the most distressing, as it is one of the most common, of maladies. There is, however, a benign specific for the disease and all its unpleasant manifestations. It is the eminent testimony of the public and the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicine which achieves results speedily felt, thorough and benign. Besides rectifying liver disorder, it invigorates the feeble, conquers kidney and bladder complaints, and lessens the consequences of those recovering from enfeebling diseases. Moreover, it is the grand specific for fever and ague.

If you have improvements on railroad land and have used all your land rights come in and make application to buy a quarter-section.
