A FRIEND IN NEED.

& Story of Man's Weakness and Woman's Couelty, with Several Morals,

"Did you notice that man /" asked a leaning pawnbroker of a friend who chanced to be in his shop. "Poor fellow, my heart bleeds for him. He has just left his wedding ring with

min. No cas just are no wearing ring with me-the last the which bound him to happier days. His is a sad story," "I did not observe him particularly," said the gentleman addressed. "Who is hef" "He is the husband of a well known orders" "which the conclusion who we netress," replied the pawnbroker with some warmth; "and he is the victim of intelerable crualty. Would you believe it, the woman who but a few short months ago swore to chorish and protect him now absolutely re-fuses to contribute more than $25 a week to his support. You seem incredulous, but I assure you it is true."

"Who is the man?" "His name is Brockholzt O'Flynn, and he .s the husband of Miss 5t. Elmo, the burle-que Betreau'

A cry of horror escaped the gentleman's lips "My old friend O'Flynn!" he exclaimed.

"Is it possible that he has come to this! Strange that I did not recognize him." "Ab, sorrow and privation have altered him greatly." "I must hasten and overtake him; perhaps something may be done ere it is too late." So saying, the gentleman hostened from the shop and in a few moments had overtaken the unhappy man. "Brockholst," he said, gently, "what is all this I hear? You reduced to poverty; you, whose wife could gratify your every wish?"

"I know not how you have learned my sad story, doar boy," said O'Flynn, brokenly, "but it is true. I have borne all patiently, uncomplainingly, for her take; for I shrank from the thought of exposing her to its random auro of the world. This a . Tay I pawned my last article of jewelry, our www.wol-ding ring," and the unfortunate mas burst into bitter tears. "Cheer up, cheer up!" c. led his friend. "All will yet be well. I will see her and intercode for you." "You—you do not think," asked O'Fiyna in tremulous tones, "that she would have the heart to require me, who have been so delicately reared, to-to work f"

"No, no, not that-not that," replied his rompanion, shudleringly. "She is not capable eb baseness."

"You have given me new hope," exclaimed O'Flynn, "and now let us step into you sample room, and I will set 'en up." "Good enough."

IIO "It is useless to say any more, Mr. Magin-his; $25 per week and his board are all I will allow my husband." The woman who uttered these words in a cold, hard tone of voice wds Miss St. Elmo, the actress; the person addressed, the friend of Brockholst O'Flynn, to whom the rander has already been introduced. "Come with me, then," sold Maginnis, stornly.

"Where?" demanded the woman. "No matter; come. I would teach you a useful lesson."

Tunifence Miss St. Eino followed him from the nouse. He led her to a narrow, dingy street in one of the lower wards of the city, and finally paused before a building upon which was painted in large letters, "THE NEW YORK WEEKLY HUSTLER."

"We have reached our destination," he said. "Be attentive and you will gain much by this morning's previews. Come." She followed him upsix flights of stairs and into a small, dingy room, where, at a desk, half buried in exchanges and MSS., sat a pale, baggard man. He did not observe their en-traines, for he was writing at the rate of 100 words per minute.

"Copy !" howled a phenomenally dirty boy, rashing into the room. "Great Scott!" shrieked the editor, for, as "Great Scottl' sineked the editor, for, as the talented reader has already guessed, he was one of the fraternity. "I've got to have two columns ready in fifteen minutes, and I haven't got a stlekful yet. Jim, get some ice and the it on my forehead, and then send out the growler. Quick?"

"Who is this wretched being, and what is he doing," demanded Miss St. Elmo. "He is a journalist, and he is working," replied Maginnis. "This is work, and this is what you will drive O'Flynn to ?"

"No, no," shuddered the woman, "I did not know what I was doing. I was mad, mad?" "Now you're shouling. You will give him an order for your entireanlary every Monday"

Gas a la Donan.

Col. "Pat Donan" sees great possibilities in natural gas. Hear him sling adjectives about it: "With a sewer sized main run into the national Capitol and smaller pipes into all our state houses, court rooms, city halls and editorial sanctums, every shaft and spindle and loom, every cogwheel, trip hammer and band organ, every buzz saw, wheat corner elevator, scissor grinder, whiriigig and merry go round in our peerless, four ocean washed empire of liberty can be run without cost, free gratis for nothing without a cent."-New "York Tribuna.

An Aristocratic Pair.

"I tell you, I've moved in mighty swell society," said the boastful traveling man. "I've met the Clevelands and the Whitneys and all of 'em.'

"I've moved in some pretty tony society myself," remarked the quiet looking man to whom the remark was addressed. "I was in-troduced to the Siamese twins." "The Siamese twins! You don't call them

We are the sole manufacturers of the Victor Pumping Wind Mill for the Pacific Coast. This mill is suited to the wants of ranchmen, railroads, villages, suburban houses, lawns, dairies, brick; ards, irrigating, etc.

Before you buy a windmill or take the agency for one we ask you to consider its points of merit, that you may be convinced it always gives satisfaction. It needs

Warranted not to blow down unless other substantial buildings are disalified; to be perfectly self-regulating; to run with less wind and outlast any other mill in the market; equal to any other, and superior to many. Les and sleet does not damage its parts. We will send this mill to responsible parties on 30 days' trial; pumps and fixtures always on hand, tanks complete or shipped ready for putting up, and towers erected at lowest possible prices.
