PICKINGS FROM ALL OVER.

Walter Wells and Turner Graves had some difficulty yesterday, (7th inst.) which ended by the latter drawing a knife on Wells, who afterward swore out a warrant for his arrest. In the meantime, however, Graves had "skipped."—E. O.

Blondin, the famous rope-walker, is willing to repeat his old-time feat of walking across the gorge below Niagara Falls on a rope for the sum of $10,000. It is said that Imre Kiralfy, the theatrical manager, will pay the price and arrange for the exhibition in three weeks.

There is a rumor at Seattle to the effect that the treasurer of a prominent secret order is short in his accounts about $400, and he is liable to be arrested soon. Members of the lodge acknowledge that there is a shortage, but there is evidently an effort making to cover the matter up.

Hugh Medlock, convicted of horse stealing and sentenced to two years imprisonment from Walla Walla, at the December term, 1886, was released from the penitentiary on Monday, sentence having expired by commutation for good behavior.—W. W. Union.

A W. T. editor wrote to a Dakota postmaster inquiring about a delinquent subscriber. The letter came back endorsed, "The man is dead." Some time afterward, in overhauling a list of delinquents, an inquiry was inadvertently sent to the same postmaster about the same man. The reply came back, "Still dead."

W. W. Ross, an old resident of Sparta, and well-known in Eastern Oregon, met his death Aug. 2, near Island City, by being thrown from his buggy while on a canvassing tour. Mr. Ross was aged about 65 years, and quite decrepit. He met with an accident some three years since by a runaway team at his home on Lower Powder, since which time he had never fully recovered.

H. C. Gay, formerly a representative from Morrow county, and a good one, too, was a passenger on Saturday afternoon's east-bound freight on a route with a car-load of horses, shipped from Arlington. Mr. Gay is quite enthusiastic over the prospects of Heppner, and believes that it will knock out Pendleton on the Long Creek trade question. He says that at last reports two miles of track had been laid on the branch railroad to Heppner. He thinks that the new road will be a big thing for the town.—E. O.

Bob Bardette says: "My daughter, when you note that the man who wants to marry is too awfully anxious to learn whether you can bake a loaf of bread, or wash a shirt with Chinese dexterity, before you close negotiations do you just fly around and ascertain if he is either willing or able to earn enough to make a biscuit, and if he has paid for the shirt he wants you to wash. Nine times out of ten, daughter, the man who only wants to marry a housekeeper can be kept more economically in the work house than he can in your father's house."

A few days ago James A. Cooke caused the arrest of Detective Mears, at Seattle, because the latter was injuring him by shadowing his every move. It now transpires that there was a reason for the shadowing. Cook has left town for some unknown point in California, and it is said that wine, women and diamonds were the cause of his sudden departure. Young Cooke arrived here two years ago and worked at the newspaper business for a time, when he associated himself with W. H. Moore in the real estate business. Cook & Moore became very successful operators and did a large business. Mr. Moore refuses to say anything about the amount Cooke took with him, saying he would try and prevent the matter from being made public.

The colored troops at Fort Shaw, near Helena, Mont., it is reported, are engaged with government mules and mowing machines in cutting hay on the government reserve to fill a contract entered into between a civilian and the government. It is said that any one who wants a load can drive his wagon to the hay field in the reserve, and the colored troops fill it with hay, charging therefor a price lower than the farmers or other persons in the business can possibly afford to sell for. It is also alleged that an officer of the post has charge of the colored troops while they are engaged in this business.

The lines written on a postal card by Robert J. Burdette to J. W. Redington, and published in yesterday's Statesman, were the means of causing a good many people to cudgel their brains in an attempt to translate them. H. E. Holmes and B. C. Hopkins are the only ones who did this successfully, as far as heard from. It turns out that the lines were not written in a foreign language at all, but in distorted English, from a well-known song, just as might be expected of Burdette. The lines: Ho Muggin, Ho Muggin! Promas for renshor; Kando! It fills my heart with joy. Being translated, reads: Home again, Home again! From a foreign shore; And oh! It fills my heart with joy.—W. W. Statesman.

Thomas Peterson, a Dane, was arrested at Pasadena, near Los Angeles, Aug. 6, on a charge of committing an outrage on two little girls named Helton, in that city. The victims are sisters and aged respectively five and three years. This afternoon the children were enticed by Peterson to the top floor of a restaurant building, where, it is alleged, he outraged both in a frightful manner. The children have been examined by physicians, who claim that the physical condition of the girls shows repeated acts of violence and the poor children are in a pitiable state. Peterson has virtually admitted his guilt to the officers, although he claimed being drunk at the time of the occurrence.

An old gentleman came into an Augusta marble-shop last autumn with the marks of affliction on his countenance, and after explaining that one of his sons had died, sorrowfully inquired the price of a tombstone. After looking over the various styles and endeavoring to beat down the dealer, he remarked confidentially, with a glance at his consumptive-looking wife who sat on the buck-board outside, that he "didn't think Marthy would winter, and he guessed he'd wait and buy two stones at once," to get a reduction. Marthy "wintered," but she didn't "spring," and a few days ago the old man appeared again, shipped a couple of tombstones home, and went on his way.—Augusta (Me.) Journal.

At Los Angeles, on Aug. 7, the constable of Los Metos brought to the county jail Dick Perry, who was committed by Justice Vanslyck, of Downey, for trial on a charge of assault to murder Jas. Phealan. The affair grew out of a dispute between men who were cultivating some land together. The history of the prisoner is a remarkable one. He is 73 years old, has resided in this section many years, and is said to have acknowledged the killing of nine persons, eight men and one woman. The story is probably an exaggeration, but he has figured in a number of bloody affairs. One that created the greatest sensation was the killing of John See a dozen years ago at Downey. Shortly after this the sister of See attempted to kill the old man, but failed. The man who was killed was the father of Dick See, who murdered William Duncan at old Gallatin several years previously, and is now at Ellensburg, W. T., awaiting extradition.

S. S. McDonnell, of Idaho, recently went to Medical Lake, W. T., and rented a cottage for himself and wife. He was largely interested in sheep raising in the Big Bend country, and business frequently called him away from home. This was the case last week. He returned home Aug. 3, and found his house locked, and that no one would open the door in response to knocks. He climbed through a window, and met his wife at the door of her room. She endeavored to dissuade him from entering the room, but he persisted and found Thomas Karker, who is said to be well-known in Spokane and Warden, in bed, apparently asleep. Not wishing to kill the man in cold blood, he went to the door and demanded an explanation of his wife. They got into an altercation and he struck her with his pistol, wounding her. She fell on the floor in a faint, and the revolver was accidentally discharged, the ball entering the wall. In the meantime Karker made his escape by a window and came to Spokane on horseback. McDonnell immediately collected his effects and will return to his sheep ranch. He does not propose to prosecute the woman, but will simply leave her.

A dispatch from Pittsburg, dated Aug. 2, says: Miss May Patton, of Johnston, Pa., shot and killed Charles DeKnight, a well-known young man of Lawrenceville, this morning and then blew her brains out. The tragedy took place at the Metropolitan hotel, this city. The couple called at the hotel at 5 o'clock this morning and registered as C. Lewis and wife. They were given a room and nothing more was heard from them until 9 o'clock, when the guests were startled by the report of two pistol shots in quick succession. The hotel clerk ran to the room, but the door was locked and it was necessary to break it down to effect an entrance. A terrible sight met the clerk and guests who came hurrying to the scene. On the floor was DeKnight, dead, with a bullet hole in his temple, and lying on the side of the bed was the woman, also dead, with blood trickling down from a wound in her head, and the revolver still tightly clasped in her hand. DeKnight was in street attire, but the girl was in dishabille. It is supposed that they quarreled and that DeKnight was about to leave the room when he was shot. Both moved in good society. The girl was the daughter of a furniture dealer at Johnstown, and has always borne a good reputation. She was quite handsome, and about 20 years old. DeKnight was a Pullman car conductor and lived with his parents in Lawrenceville. He was about 24 years old. In searching the room, a letter was found from the girl, addressed to Jess E. Thurlow, Huntington, Pa., and stating that she was going to commit suicide.

POLICEMEN AS STREET LIGHTS.
General Stevenson, a Southern inventor of note, has at last, after many trials, perfected a machine which bids fair to entirely revolutionize the police and street-lighting departments in those cities which are progressive enough to give the invention a fair trial. Each policeman is to be provided with a patent helmet with a beacon electric light attachment. An apparatus, similar in construction to a pedometer, is attached to a certain part of the policeman's body and by an ingenious system of wires and electricity generated by the movements of the legs is transmitted to the top of the helmet, thus giving a brilliant and continuous light. The well-known rapidity with which every policeman traverses his beat will insure a perfect blaze of light on the streets of the city from sunset until dawn. If the policeman stops he must at least keep his legs in motion or the light will fall and signify that he is loafing. Besides this the General has a contrivance which will act as a spur whenever the policeman stops to interview a servant girl or take a drink. The battery when not supplying a light must act upon a certain portion of his anatomy and thus keep him on the go. The Memphis Avalanche has come out strongly in favor of the invention and is urging its use in every Southern city. As a peace-preserver it would be of great value, and the affection which tipsy citizens entertain for lamp-posts, for instance, would carry them directly into the arms of the police and thus save these officers much unnecessary trouble.

HIDDEN DANGER.
A fourth and happily a successful search by her Majesty's ship has just been made for a reported rock toward the southern end of the Red Sea, on which two steamships—the Avocat and Ted-dington—are supposed to have been struck during the year 1887, both ships afterward foundering. The fourth ship, her Majesty's surveying ship Stork, guided by some slight indication afforded by an insignificant rise in the sea bottom, has found the rock. It is a small coral patch only 15 feet under the surface of the sea, and stands in twenty-eight fathoms of water in latitude 14 degrees, 22 minutes and 8 seconds north, longitude 42 degrees, 41 minutes and 32 seconds east. It lies midway between the set two positions that critical cross-examination had finally settled as most probable for the respective vessels that were lost—Though it is between five and six miles from the direct straight line of the track, the existence at times of strong currents transverse to the axis of the Red Sea causes the danger presented by it to be by no means insignificant, and it is a matter for marvel that it was never before struck. The difficulty of finding such a small rock may be appreciated from the fact that one of the searching ships was at anchor within 400 yards of it, with her boats sounding round her, without its being perceived, and she was driven from the spot was passed over by the boats.—London Times.

Helping the Right Side.
To help the right side is not only commendable in a general point of view, but is judicious and prudent when that help is enlisted in behalf of the right side of the body, just over the lower ribs in the rear of the liver. The most efficient help is afforded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an anti-bilious medicine of incomparable efficacy. Inaction of the liver is accompanied by constipation, sick headache, furred tongue, nausea, occasional vertigo, an unpleasant yellowing of the skin and ball of the eye. The author of these symptoms, liver complaint, is the Bitters is accompanied by them in its flight. Fever and ague, which always involves the liver, dyspepsia, rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles are all maladies to the early relief and final cure of which this standard medicine is adapted. Don't use it by fits and starts, but systematically, that its effects may result in a perfect cure.
