FACTS NOT GENERALLY KNOWN. It is generally understood that every year divisible by 4 is a leap year. It is not true, as 1900 is divisible by 4 and is not a leap year. The rule that will always determine leap years is as follows: Every year that is divisible by 4 except he centennial years, and every centen nial year divisible by 400, is a leap year. According to this rule, 1600 was the first floor landing of the George Yard was a leap year, and 2000 will also be one; but all intervening centennial years are not leap years.

There is a reason for this which is exdays as one year, the time lost in the min. and 18.8 sec., that is lacking only know a thing or two, are pre- utes we were spinning down King street- 44 min. 41.2 sec. of being a day; hence Passing the King's palace, we turned the first error can be corrected by adding Whitechapel, in the early marning of one day every four years, making the year to consist of 366 days.

If every fourth year be reekoned as lean year, since we add 44 min., etc. too much the time gained in the calendar in four years is 44 min. 41.2 sec., and in 100 years it will be 18 h. 37 min. 10 sec., that is, one day lacking 5 h. 22 min. 50 sec. ence the second error may be corrected ilarly murdered and mutilated. which is 11 min. 10.3 sec. too much, us correction introduced a slight error, which in 1682 had amounted to 10 days—the civil year being 10 days behind the solar year. In 1682 Pope Gregory corrected the error by striking 10 days out of the calender, calling the 50 of October the 15th, and ordering that hence. orth only those centennial years should be leap years which are divisible by 400. De leap years which are divisible by 100.

The Gregorian calendar was soon adopted by most Catholic countries. Great Britain adopted the change in 1752, calling the 3d of September the 14th, the error having amounted to 11 days. Russia and other countries of the Greek change, will adhead to the Mills allows the Mills turch, still adhere to the Julian calen hardon, and the strong new about 12 days behind ours. Kelly. She was a native of Limerick. WHEN MEN CROSS THEIR LEGS. Men usually cross their legs when there is least pressure on their minds.

You will never find a man actually engaged in business with his legs crossed. The limbs at those times are straighter nended on the 25th of March, while the astorical year commenced on the 1st of January, and dates between those days were marked with the number of both years; thus, January 30th, 1649, is frequently found written, January 30th, 1649. The New Style made t e civil any manner where his brain is actually engaged. When at work in a sitting position the limbs naturally extend to the floor in a perfectly straight line. A man may cross his legs when he is sitting in an office chair discussing some proposition with another man, but the astant be becomes really in earnest and perceives somothing to be gained his limbs uncross quick as a flash, he bends forward toward his neighbor and he begins to use his hands. That is a phase that I believe you will always observe. Men often cross their legs at public sectings, because they go there to listen or to be entertained; they are not the factors in the performance, and they naturally place themselves in the most comfortable position known to them, viz, caning well back in their chairs and rossing their legs. A man always resser his less when he reads a newsbe reads a book. He reads the paper, of course, to inform himself, but at the same time the perusal of its contents is a recreation to him, and his body again seeks its position of relaxation. When a man is reading a newspaper and waiting for his breakfast his legs are always crossed, but as soon as his breakfast is brought to him he puts aside his paper, straightens out his less and coes to work that is, to eat-his mind now turning on the duties of the day before him.-Liverpool Courier.
