HEPPNER, THURSDAY, APR. 11, '80.

HEPPNER

Is the county-seat of Morrow, located near the center of the county, on Willow creek, and at the terminus of the Willow creek branch of the O. R. & N. It has a population of about 800, and is receiving new residents daily. As a business place, it bids fair to take the lead of any town in Eastern Oregon, having tributary to it an immense agricultural and stock country.

The sum of $10,000 was appropriated at the last session of the legislature for the purpose of improving the Heppner and Monument wagon road. That amount will be expended on this route during the coming summer, rendering it the best mountain road in the state, and one which will accommodate hundreds of well-to-do stockmen, who are bestowing their patronage on merchants in Heppner, owing to its advantages as a trading point. Fully 3,000,000 pounds of wool will find sale, or shipment at Heppner this season.

Real estate is advancing rapidly, and is selling at a figure 20 to 25 per cent higher than prices prevailing three months ago.

One of the best flouring mills in Eastern Oregon is located at this point.

SOME FACTS.

Several years ago, the editor of this paper, while enroute from Portland to Walla Walla, "under foot" made the acquaintance of a horseman from the vicinity of Heppner. Learning that we were bound for the "Garden City," he prevailed upon us to try this region. Arriving at Arlington, which was then a collection of shanties, all desire to see the Heppner section was dispelled by the general aspect of the surrounding country. It was explained to us that Arlington (then known as Alkali) was a trading point for a very large scope of good country. It was impossible at that time to grasp the idea of there being anything behind those rugged bluffs, and so we journeyed on to Walla Walla, only to find ourselves, a few years afterward, in what we had before deemed to be a worthless country. In this respect it has proved itself quite the opposite.

To the immigrant who passes along the line of the O. R. & N. to-day, it must seem but little different from what it did several years ago, and we lose many valuable citizens thereby.

It is necessary for Heppner to systematically distribute circulars and copies of the home paper along the line between Huntington and Pendleton, that the immigrant may have an opportunity to read and reflect before arriving at Arlington. This would be the means of bringing into the country, farmers, mechanics and capitalists, all of which we, as a community, must have, in order to enjoy that prosperity which the country merits. We have a good country, but there must be some means of imparting that information to those westward bound.

Heppner is so situated as to enjoy a much larger trade than formerly. It is the county seat and metropolis of Morrow county, and should be known as it is; a thriving place with the brightest prospects for the future. A thorough knowledge of this valuable section is what we must impart to the outside world.

The organization of a board of trade is needed in Heppner. No town of its size in Eastern Oregon is without such an organization. The GAZETTE urges Heppner to begin work at once.

HEPPNER NEEDS VICE PEOPLE.

The Rogue River Courier in the issue of April 4, has a general description of the town of Grant's Pass and the county of Josephine. The inhabitants of that section want settlers to assist in developing their part of the country, and are telling immigrants what it is, where it is and how it came to be there—all through their home paper. Heppner and Heppner people have spent enough clean cash in advertising their town in foreign papers to have it pretty well known, but it is a plain matter of fact that one short description in a periodical simply amounts to nothing. All the judicious advertising that Heppner has ever received came, gratuitously, from the GAZETTE paper. Advertising in outside papers is money taken out of the community and cash thrown away. Heed the example of the enterprising inhabitants of Grant's Pass. Advise your town and county in the home paper that will give you value received and throw in five times that amount for the general good of the community. Don't expect to bring in people and money by a tin-horn loud of two inches inserted once. Advertise largely, and keep it up for a year, two years, and longer if necessary. When people do come to the place, treat them courteously; introduce them to the representative citizens; see that they fully understand the merits of the town and surrounding country. For goodness sake, don't come around, dead to personal interests, and give the whole county and people a "black eye" because there is no prospect of it being a three dollar in your pocket. Be enterprising and far-sighted. Every cent invested in the country is an indirect benefit to every individual inhabitant. Assist to weed out fogymen and live citizens in the live town of Heppner.

MORROW COUNTY SCHOOLS.

The following are extracts from Supt. Stanley's Annual Report to the Supt. of Public Instruction:

Table with columns: Children between 4 and 21, Male, Female, Total, School during the year, No. under 6 years, Average daily attendance, Income in hands of clerks, Disbursements, Total.

Under the head of remarks, he says: "I have had trouble in obtaining correct statements from a few of our school clerks, who have kept their accounts monthly. I think we shall have but very little trouble in this matter hereafter, as the clerk's record book, furnished by the state, is very complete and will aid in securing correct results. The spirit of progress is abroad in Morrow county, and during the coming year we shall endeavor to awaken more enthusiasm in our schools than ever before."

DEATH OF D. C. ROSS.

Died at his residence near Le Roy, Iowa, at 8 P. M., March 18, 1880. D. C. Ross, aged 62 years, 2 months and 1 day. He was born January 17, 1819 in the State of Ohio, and came to Tazewell county, Illinois, with his parents when about four years of age.

About a year later his parents both died after which he went to live with Alexander Small. At the age of eighteen he went to Washington, Illinois, where he lived with his brother, Wm. A. Ross, until the breaking out of the civil war. During this time he followed the occupation of a blacksmith.

At the breaking out of the war, he was the first man to enlist from his town. Soon after enlisting, he was elected Orderly Sergeant and afterwards was promoted to the rank of Captain of Co. B, 47 Illinois Infantry. After serving three years and three months, he was discharged, soon after which he was appointed assistant Internal Revenue assessor. Afterwards he was appointed Post Master at Washington.

He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church in 1855. Since that time he has been a constant and faithful member of the church and an earnest worker in the Sunday School and died in the glorious hope of an immortality.

In May 1866, he was united in marriage to Miss Eliza A. Kingman to whom were born two children, Frank H. and Lizzie M. who are at present living at home, Lizzie having married Mr. Mac McClary last December.

In November 1870 he and his family moved to Decatur Co., Ia., where he improved and lived on a farm until Nov. 1880, when he and his family went to Heppner, Oregon, in hope of benefiting his wife's health, which hope was realized, though his own health steadily declined and in October, 1887, they returned to the old homestead where he spent his last days.

The funeral services were held at the house on Wednesday, at 2 o'clock, P. M., conducted by Rev. D. H. K. Dix, assisted by Rev. R. Beer, whose list of his friends were gathered to pay the last and rite to their beloved friend and neighbor. After the services the remains were brought to the cemetery at this place and interred with Masonic honors.

These ends the life of another of our best and most honored citizens; and as was said of him, he was always found on the right side of every question.—Jesse Pepp.

THE USUAL RESULT.

It is not to be denied that a good sewing machine is one of the most important appearances of the modern household.

We thought we had a good machine until one day the agent of the New Home presented himself at our door and proceeded to deliver an oration upon its characteristics.

"But," we answered, "our machine suits us well and we do not care for another."

The agent, however, begged the privilege of leaving one of his machines with us, "for the ladies to try."

The request was not unreasonable, so we granted it—but more to oblige the agent than anything else; for we really did not want the machine, and had not the remotest idea of buying it.

The machine came in the house, it was natural that the ladies should look it over; they did so, and as a consequence fell in love with it. They say that with out the slightest wish to do any or discharge any other machine, this all things considered, is, in their opinion, the most desirable one to be had.

This invaluable machine is manufactured by the NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., Orange, Mass., and 28 Union Square, New York.
