EDUCATIONAL COLUMN, SYSTEM ESSENTIAL IN TEACHING.

[T. C. AUBREY EDITOR.]

The Poetic Cayuse---The Magnetic Teacher. In a communication received the other day, our correspondent splenetically refers to our school system and manner of teaching as "over systemized." "System, system, system," he exclaims, "all is system; we have nothing but system. We dress by rule. We sleep by measure. We eat so many times a day by system. We are surfeited with an over dose of system."

We would advise our friend to urn himself loose beyond the confines of civilization, and take unto his bosom a loving Siwash squaw and live for a while untrammelled by the conventionality of civilized manners and customs. Then as the poet says: "He could rear his dusky races;

They would leap and they would run, Catch the wild goat by the hair

If a teacher desires to be suc cessful he must have system in his cure well-digested teaching material it is neccessary that we use system in its preparation, contact with the ideas that underlie a lesson will produce ideas upon the lesson.
