

WASHINGTON AND HER LEGISLATURE.

Washington, young as she is, already is a great state. She can justly claim a full share of great men in her population and being so favored it is not wanting in the number of ambitious aspirants to popular favor. Neither is it lacking a full quantum of demagogues whose ambition are purely selfish, and whose every act is stimulated by personal interest.

The masses, of all peoples, favor and desire the adoption of all good measures which tend to the advancement of the state and benefit and protect the people. While exacting they are modest, and through their modesty they become careless and negligent in the performance of their duties as citizens.

It is an aphorism that the ambitious office seeker is not celebrated for any great degree of modesty. He is always found in the front when an office is to be filled, persistent in his claims to recognition by the people.

It is to be regretted that the people are too often the willing victims of this class of ambitious men who obtain offices, which they are totally unfitted to fill to the satisfaction of their constituents. Their personal interests are to be subserved, to the sacrifice of the public good.

When a body, especially a legislative body, is composed in part of members of this class the true welfare of the people suffers.

Unfortunately for the new state of Washington, her convention provided the legislature with too many members. The evil is now apparent that business is clogged and delayed by a preponderance of numbers beyond what is absolutely necessary for a good working body. It should have struck the convention that every member would endeavor to make himself conspicuous, either as a general utility man or as a clown. And that in important deliberative bodies, cannot subserv the public good in the best manner. Experience has shown that better results have been obtained through smaller bodies than from larger. Agreements are attained more quickly and business dispatched more promptly, and upon the whole give better and more general satisfaction to the members and to their constituents.

The present legislature of our neighbor has not sustained the reputation and honor of the state in the estimation of their constituents, simply for the reasons advanced. When the numbers of members are reduced to the minimum it will be to the advantage of the people

FRANCE AND FREE TRADE.

From dispatches received we learn that the government of France adopted the tariff policy of the United States a few years ago, and the French legislative body is discussing the propriety of its continuance or repeal in view of the present commercial treaties expiring in 1892. On Tuesday last Ribot, a deputy, addressed the customs tariff committee on the projected renewal of commercial treaties. He said: "France should know she is bound to the commercial policy of protection. She is not in the same position as Great Britain and Belgium which have a superabundance of industrial production. All the conditions of her political, social and economical order makes it imperative that that wide and efficient protection should be accorded to French manufactures and agriculture."

A committee consisting of thirty nine protectionists, thirteen free traders and three of uncertain views were appointed on the customs tariff. A majority of the deputies have already spoken in favor of a tariff.

THE SUPREME COURT OF MONTANA DECIDES.

The Supreme Court of Montana last week decided that the certificates of the canvassing board are the only prima facie evidence of membership of the legislature. Thompson, the complainant was one of the members elected by throwing out the Tunnel precinct, and brought suit to compel the State Auditor to audit his bill for mileage had per diem.

The decision settles the question as to the legality of the republican legislature and so ends an important issue in the Montana muddle, and relieves the senate of much of the delicacy attached to the question of the contest between Montana's senators. As the points in dispute were questions of law, this decision from the highest court in the state will be authority in the future.

THE CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT ON THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

The Supreme Court of California recognizes the right of all American citizens to equal benefits and privileges granted by the laws of their country, in a decision just rendered that the authorities had no right to refuse a youth admission to the public schools on the ground that he was colored and should attend a school specially provided for colored children. The court says that as the boy's father is an American citizen he has a right to attend any public school.

When the courts and legislatures in the southern states recognize the fact that the negro is an American citizen, and that every American citizen has equal rights under the laws, and is entitled to its protection from violence and interference from others when in the pursuit of the rights which any other citizen is entitled, then the Butler's, the Vance's and others of their school will be awakened to the fact that there is a solution to the negro question, and that is, to all equal rights under the law, and exact justice to all, rich or poor, white or black. It is a plain, simple question of law, and what is necessary to comprehend it, that every American citizen, native or naturalized, whether white or black, is entitled to the protection of the law alike and no more, and when understood, to do justice and love mercy.

SALT RHEUM.

With its intense itching, dry hot skin, often broken into painful cracks, and the little water pimples, often causes indescribable suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla has wonderful power over this disease. It purifies the blood and expels the humor, and the skin heals without a scar. Send for book containing many statements of cures, to G. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

AMERICAN MARINE HOPEFUL.

The American citizen has long beheld with regret the rapid disappearance from the seas of her once active and formidable marine. It is to be hoped that the lowest limit has been reached and that the old time commercial enterprise of the American Merchant will be revived, and that much of the redundant capital will be diverted from present unprofitable channels to the rebuilding of a marine fleet which will prove to the world that the commercial power of the United States is strong enough to maintain its independence of foreign nations in the ocean carrying trade.

As evidence of a hopeful assurance that the good work of revival has begun the Boston Journal says: "The fact that the Maine shipbuilders have had the busiest and most prosperous season in 1889 for many years is another forcible reminder that better days are promised for our merchant navy, and that we had better go to work to encourage its revival, instead of idly mourning its decadence."

SENATOR GORMAN OBJECTS TO BALLOT REFORM.

The objection of Senator Gorman of Maryland to the adoption of the Australian system of voting is that it would result in the defeat of the democratic party, because it would become necessary that the voter should be able to read and write, and this meant the death blow to the party.

Did the senator intend this as a joke, or that he meant to express the idea that the voters of his party were too ignorant to prepare his ballot? It is funny either way you take it.

We do not believe either party would suffer, nor do we care if thereby the people would secure the true and honest expression of the will of the voter, free from the ballot box stuffer or the tally sheet forger. It is the will of the majority, that is the people want, rather than mere party success.

BLOCKING LEGISLATION SHOULD BE PREVENTED.

The scenes which are described by the telegraphic reports, given on the first page of the GAZETTE as occurring in the house of representatives at Washington, are disgraceful to the nation and exhibits a growing contempt which the country's law makers have for the intelligence of the people. It is painful to every good and fair minded citizen to note the fact that congress is fast losing its character as a dignified body deliberating for the welfare of the nation, and becoming an arena where party interests are greater than those of the people.

The increasing disregard to constitutional and statute laws, as well as the expressed will of the majority, by the law maker, and the contempt which they hold all justice and right, when the advantage of party requires, ought to be condemned. When legislators strive to evade the laws and embarrass the business of the representatives of the people they but create an example which the citizen will emulate, by violating and holding lightly the value of laws made by those who are violators themselves.

The fundamental principle which underlies the foundation of our republican form of government is, that the majority in all matters connected with the government, shall prevail. And a majority of representatives elected to our state or national legislatures are expected to express the voice of the people whom they represent, and are responsible to them for a violation of the confidence reposed in them. The majority represent measures which have undergone discussion before the people and been decided by them in the choice of those who favor them. So the minority represent those who are opposed to them.

The duty of the majority to their constituents is to see that their promises are fulfilled and the expectations of the people realized. As the majority are responsible for all the bad as well as all the good legislation it is their right and duty not only to keep themselves within fair and just limits but also all other members, whether few or many, and labor for the true interest of the whole country.

The rights of a minority should always be acknowledged and respected by the majority who should accord to them the same rights and privileges as themselves and no more--no less.

The minority have a right and should always be permitted to defeat any measure, if possible, by all fair and honorable means, through argument, debate, amendment, and vote. But in no case should it be permitted to delay, hinder, or block legislation by means known as filibustering. All such modes are an injury to the public and unnecessarily expensive.

Such proceedings are becoming too common in state legislatures, and measures should be adopted to prevent them by stringent laws. Any rule by which a small or large minority may prevent the business of legislation being done should not be made nor permitted.

In the present case, there was no rule recognizing the action of the minority and they were subject to the constitution declaring what constitutes a quorum to do business.

It is to be hoped that the present case will bring in prominence to the people, a pernicious mode which has been permitted in our legislative bodies to allow members to delay, hinder and defeat measures of importance to the country, session after session, if they so desire to break a quorum. The practice of members sitting in their seats and refraining from voting, and then claim there is no quorum present, is repugnant to good sense and dishonorable to the parties and a fraud upon the people whom they represent. If a member is in his seat he should always be counted as present but not voting, and thus legislation would be hastened, the session shortened, and the expense lessened.

SOUTH AMERICA'S FRIENDSHIP.

The good effects of the Pan American congress are already perceptible in the South American republics, by those who have been temporary residents in those states. There is a strong feeling of friendship for the United States by the populace and a desire for a closer and enlarged commercial intercourse between the two countries.

If American enterprise will avail to take advantage of the present good will there is no doubt that our trade will increase to a large amount. The course pursued by Great Britain with the Portuguese government has alienated the good will of the Brazilians from the English, to the extent of declaring a boycott against English trade, which our merchants will likely turn to their advantage.

Rapid Heating of the Heart.

Whenever you feel an uneasiness in the region of the heart, a slight pain in the shoulder, arm, or under the shoulder-blade, or when you find yourself short of breath when exercising, or your heart beats periods of beating fast, you have heart disease, and should take Dr. FLEMING'S REMEDY. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or, address Mack Drug Co. N. Y.

The Jacksonville Times says there is a big fight in the republican camp in Lake county; there being two factions, one led by W. T. Boyd, county clerk, and the other by C. U. Snyder, the new receiver of the land office. Snyder should retire from politics and attend to the business of the office to which he has been appointed, or be retired therefrom by an immediate removal.

NICK FRAZER MISSING.

He is supposed to have lost his footing.

MR. WILKINS GIVES AN OPINION.

His Father Gives up All Hope of His Return.

The East Oregonian has this to say in regard to Nick Frazer, who is supposed to have been lost while hunting in the mountains. If no favorable news is received by nightfall, Nick Frazer will be given up as lost by the most sanguine of his friends. His father, Mr. Jacob Frazer, has already given up all hope, and returned to town from the mountains last night, a broken-hearted and despondent man. He thinks his son stepped upon a snow drift in his eager chase for the deer, missed his footing and was carried to the bottom of the canyon. The drifts are smooth and solid and by a chance fall a man would slide with fearful velocity down the treacherous surface. Nick, who is a thorough mountaineer, it is thought, could hardly lose himself as he would very naturally follow the slope of the canyons to Menacham creek and Unatilla river. Had he done so, it is thought he would have long ago been heard from.

MR. WILKINS'S OPINION.

Mr. Charles Wilkins, who accompanied Mr. Frazer on the fatal expedition, inclines to the belief that his companion was lost to give up the chase for the deer, and followed the animals until he lost his bearings and tumbled into his way to the Unatilla river, and will be found in the cabin of some hospitable hunter or logger--with frozen feet, perhaps, but still alive. Mr. Wilkins, accompanied by Nels Nelson, the Swede who was nearly killed by a train at Fenclinton, and Indian Tom, a Cherokee, who possesses all the hardihood of his race, followed the supposed trail of the last hunter on snow shoes to a point near Mischea with great difficulty, which was there lost.

HEARD A GUY.

It is said that Wallace Ashbaugh, who is hunting in the mountains, and occupies a cabin on the Unatilla river, heard a very Tuesday night from the hill about his cabin, which might have come from the missing man. Wallace was not acquainted with the news of Mr. Frazer's disappearance until the following day, when he joined the force of searchers.

A FEARFUL STORM.

Was raging yesterday and to-day on the mountains, the wind being so violent that it was almost impossible for the searchers to stand upon the ridges. Many have returned to camp, broken down by their exertions, and only the more hardy are prosecuting the search. The party now numbers about forty, all told. The snow drifts constantly, and it is said that if Mr. Frazer lost his life, his body would have been long since completely overpowered by a mantle of snow.

ANKEKY'S STORY.

Mr. Ankeky has just returned from Hot Springs, Idaho, which Mr. Ashbaugh, who left Friday morning with his dog, secured up a band of deer. The dog ran near and he followed for a few hours. He heard a shot fired at or near the head of Camp creek, near the south fork of the Unatilla, about ten miles from the spot where Frazer was last seen. He returned home and sent Ankeky to Wilbur to report, while he and Mr. Malsbach set out in the direction of the shot. They were to camp over night about the head of Camp creek, and Saturday morning to follow the dog tracks. It is possible that Mr. Frazer is out in that direction, and if so he would not doubt hear the dog bark, and if he had any more cartridges would fire thinking to draw some one to him.

We do not give the story much credit here, however. They found a deer horn in the canyon, but could find no tracks in the snow. It is thought the horn was dropped by an eagle. A party leaves here this morning, some of whom will go in that direction. It does not seem probable that Mr. Frazer could get lost, as he could easily hear the train whistle. We will mention more definite by tomorrow night.

OREGON MAKES A RAID ON THE SURPLUS.

A bill appropriating $75,000, available immediately, for the continuance of the improvements at the mouth of the Columbia river, has passed through both branches of congress. But a disagreement as to an appropriation for the Missouri river improvement, made it necessary to refer the bill to a committee to confer upon an agreement. The Oregon Statesman says:

"This petty jockeying of the utmost importance to the people of Oregon, as it has already given a depth of twenty-four feet at low water mark in the channel of the Columbia at its mouth with a mean width of about five miles, making one of the best harbors in the world."

GRANT COUNTY.

Canyon City News.

Snow is seven feet deep on the Greenhorn, and on the mountain peaks. On the Baker road on Dixie mountain snow is said to lay out six feet. In the timber where it does not drift.

W. H. Sloan is working at present on his Mookingford ledge. He has a tunnel run in on the ledge 150 feet. The ledge at present is about 32 inches wide, and about five or six feet thick. It has got into the quartzite, that will assay up into the hundreds. An assay of the tellurium alone went $57,000 to the ton. He is also working on his tunnel to tap the Cable mine at a great depth.
