

HEPPNER, THURSDAY, Feb. 20, 1890

MONTANA AND HER ABSENT SENATORS.

Montana is in a wretched condition arising from the refusal of the recalcitrant members of the senate to perform the constitutional duties which are required of them as senators, the first and most important of which is to meet and organize the branch of legislature to which they have been elected, so that it may be competent to transact the business of the state. The demands of the new state are important and imperative. Every branch of the state government is powerless from the lack of laws and legislation required by the constitution.

The constitutional machinery of the government requires action by the legislature to put it in motion. The judiciary department can do nothing in any but strictly constitutional causes, and the financial department is without authority to issue warrants other than those specially provided in like manner. If the present condition continues the prison doors must be thrown open and the convicts released, for all authorized means for their support are said to be exhausted.

It is humiliating to every law abiding American citizen to see the peoples' representatives fleeing from their lawful place, where they should stand and battle for the rights of themselves and their constituents as they understand them, until they may be determined in the highest manner provided by the laws of the state. When the peoples' lawfully elected and undisputed representatives are seeking hiding places in foreign lands, after the manner of felons, to avoid due process of law, it cannot but impress the honest citizen with the conviction that men, having a just cause, will not flee from the only place where the complaints can be adjusted. The man strong in the belief that his cause is just will stand firm in the defense of his birthright, and it is only him who knows and feels the weakness and wrong of his cause that flies from the jurisdiction of justice. Knowing this to be a truism, founded upon observation of the motives which conscious guilt seeks to avoid, investigation, the people are losing confidence in the justice of the claims of the dodging senators of Montana, for there has ever been a conviction that flight from a peaceful and law abiding community is evidence

JUDGE HANFORD'S APPOINTMENT.

Though the contest over the appointment of United States supreme judge of Washington was warm and exciting, the preferences were rather of a personal nature, than of any lack of ability or fitness of any of the candidates who were supported by their special friends. Now as the appointment has been made and the judicial ermine has fallen upon Judge Hanford, the press throughout the state declare that it will receive the general approval of the citizens of the state of Washington. The Spokane Falls Review gives a fair expression of the views of the press and the people thus: The appointment of Judge Hanford to the office of United States judge for this state will meet with the approval of the citizens of Washington, irrespective of party. One of the first acts of President Harrison, after he assumed the duties of his office, was to appoint Judge Hanford chief justice of the supreme court of the territory of Washington. While acting as presiding justice he gained an enviable reputation as a considerate and impartial judge, and litigants and the bar generally will be glad to learn of his elevation to the United States court.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO THE PRESIDENT.

It is cheerful to be informed of any interest and prompt action by the authorities of a Southern state, to bring to justice blood-thirsty assassins and other inhuman criminals. It gives encouragement to look for better protection to all citizens. It is therefore gratifying to note that last week Governor Fleming and the attorney general of Florida, called upon President Harrison and held a conference with him on national affairs in the state. It is reported they assured the president that the state authorities would certainly assist in bringing the guilty parties to justice.

NOT A CRIME IN TEXAS.

In Texas sparring matches are legalized by licenses to the parties engaged, and thus being lawful, the court released Benzin, who was charged with the killing of Tom Jones in the recent match at Dallas, Tex. The court held that there was no law under which an indictment could be had for killing another under a licensed exhibition.

The victory which Parnell has achieved over his Tory enemies is satisfactory to his sympathizing friends. In view of the recent settlement with the London Times, the Portland Oregonian makes a sensible suggestion which, if carried out would be gratifying to friends and enemies alike. It says: "The story of his neglect of his mother has not been satisfactorily explained, but it is noticeable that it is not she who makes the complaint, but persons who are desirous of making capital against him. Nevertheless it would be well for him to send some of the Times £5000 to Bordenstown."

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Its First Meeting a Decided Success. "Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before." The meeting of the teachers at Lexington to perfect their organization and the success which attended this, their first organized effort, is indicative of the fact that while Morrow county is alive to her prosperity, her educational progress, which is the bulwark and mainstay of our commonwealth is in wide-awake hands. The presence of the delegates and the evident interest displayed during the session shows that they are desirous of knowing something of the capacity of those in whose hands the growing minds of their children are placed.

The Heppner delegation arrived in Lexington sufficiently early to "take in the town" before convention hours, and while doing so made some pleasant acquaintances and ascertained that the citizens had determined to entertain the teachers and friends of our school at the Lexington hotel—and we were right royally entertained.

MONROE SESSIONS. The association convened at 9:30 a. m. at the Congregational church, and was called to order by Superintendent Hanley. A short time was devoted to business orders which the reports of various committees were heard. The committee on constitution and by-laws reported the drafting of the same, which were to be read clause by clause and adopted or rejected as the association saw fit, but the secretary forgot to bring a copy to the meeting, and motion was made and carried to adopt them subject to future revision. Election of officers followed. Miss Josie Miles was chosen vice president, Miss Ella Thomas, secretary; Emil P. Vorz, treasurer; Julius Hodson and T. C. Aubrey, editors. The committee on programme was appointed from members who were present. On motion the association decided that the next place of meeting be at Heppner, some time in August, when an interesting programme will be presented and the session to present but wish to become members, may do so by corresponding with the secretary, whose address is in Heppner.

THE BUSINESS SESSION.

The business session was taken up. Mr. Hodson read an article on associational work, which was good. It made prominent the relation which parents bear to teachers in the education of children, and the fact that about the only way to make parents understand that co-operation is necessary is to make it apparent by our constant iteration of it in our associational work. A talk upon the old and new ways of teaching orthography, by T. C. Aubrey, was to have been followed by Mr. Salting, who was present but remained silent, whereupon Mr. E. R. Beach made appropriate comment upon the subject. Geography was next treated in a very general way by several, some well-timed remarks, however, being made by Mrs. Swinburne and Miss Thomas. Grammar was presented from a very practical standpoint by Mrs. E. R. Beach, the point made being, that a little common sense work with small children in the correction of bad expressions at home as well as at school would obviate the necessity of technical grammar, which falls too frequently to make its attempts even speak or write correctly. Hon. W. R. Ellis related his experience when, as a pupil, he wrestled with grammar, even as earnestly as Jacob of old did with the angel, but with a far happier result, for he abandoned the struggle before it did him any harm. He commented upon the work of the teacher, sympathizing with him in his arduous labor, and stands hand in hand with him for educational progress.

A DEAR FALL OF SNOW. During last Saturday and Sunday fell the heaviest snow of the season—from 14 to 16 inches deep in the Heppner section. Eastern Oregon has not been visited by an deep snow since '84-5. It will benefit every rancher in bringing out the year's crop, but should it remain on any length of time, the loss of sheep, horses and cattle will be greater than any previous year in the history of Eastern Oregon. However, the weather remains only moderately cold, as will be seen by referring to our weather report, and a chinook is expected soon.
