MORROW COUNTY'S OFFICIAL PAPER

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Trade Can Be Restored.

LAST week this paper called attention to the importance of Heppner being prepared to send a delegation of business men to Portland on the occasion of the December meeting of the state highway commission. This is important, because at that meeting will be considered the question of putting the Heppner-Spray road on the map, and Heppner is vitally interested in this move.

We must begin to realize that other towns not so far away from here are hustling for all the trade the new highways will bring their way. Pendleton on one side and Condon on the other have taken from us much that we formerly enjoyed in the way of trade from the interior section. We are beginning to get in the place where some of this, at least, can be restored to Heppner, and the carrying out of our road program is the thing that will bring this about. It is only necessary for the business interests of this town to wake up and bestir themselves with a little energy and the purpose is accomplished. Putting the Heppner-Spray road on the map at just the earliest possible date now will hasten the day when actual construction will be undertaken. Commissioner Bleakman is very hopeful that the December meeting of the state highway commission in conjunction with the Bureau of Public Roads of the forest service, will see the road placed on the map and he wants to make assurance doubly sure by having as much good assistance from Heppner as is possible to get.

We should not fail to see that a good live bunch are on the job at the proper time.

A Hopeful Prophecy.

CONGRESSMAN NICHOLAS LONGWORTH, Speaker of the House of Representatives, says that the coming session of that august body will not be ruled by blocs but will have a representative working Republican majority. The people of the country fervently hope that his prophecy is a good one. They are tired of the blocking of effective legislation by little interlocking circles of legislators—blocked by the blocs having become something more than a play upon words in our legislative history.

Mr. Longworth recently had occasion to view the working of the bloc system in France and declares that such instability of government in America would not work at all; and that the next Congress will be an effective force for crystallizing into legislation the public will as registered in the 1924 election.

THE HEPPNER LADS did not get the decision in the game with Wasco on Thanksgiving; that was no fault of theirs, for they put up a mighty fine game that was played against long odds. It was hard to beat both the team and the referee. It may be considered good sportsmanship to win a game at any cost, but we have never been able to see it.

OUR county court is having a jolly little time all its own these days. They are besieged by first one delegation, then another, asking that work be started or extended on this market road and that, and one lot of good people appeared during the week asking that work on a certain market road be discontinued and that road not be completed because it was going to take trade away from a line of business they were directly interested in. So it goes, but the court sits tight, and they will try their hardest to carry the program to completion as it has been marked out. When the work is finally done, every section of the county will be properly served and the whole community benefited, and it may develop that no particular section has been caused to suffer by the loss of any trade or business that belongs to it.

MORROW COUNTY is getting a small portion of the moisture that has been long delayed, and the beneficial effects on grain fields and range are being felt. The present mild spell of weather is also helpful and grain should make a good growth before colder weather sets in. We hope for no repetition of that kind of weather experienced last December, however.

IT IS REPORTED that a lodge of Masons in Cincinnati has had its charter forfeited by the Grand Lodge of Ohio because it failed to punish adequately one of its members for violation of the prohibition law. The man was suspended for two months by his lodge, but this was deemed insufficient.

Tuberculosis Is Curable.

(From State Board of Health)

Is tuberculosis curable? Yes, if good medical advice is obtained early and followed closely.

Is it preventable? Yes, by following the rules of hygiene and correct living.

At what age is tuberculosis most likely to occur? It may develop at any age when the physical resistance is low enough to allow infection. It is most likely to occur in late youth and early adult life, that is below the ages of fifteen and twenty-five. The prevention of the disease among children has only recently been appreciated.

How may physical resistance be built up? Keep the body in the best possible condition by good, nourishing food, plenty of fresh air day and night, and abundance of sunshine.

What causes tuberculosis? The tubercle bacilli discovered by Robert Koch in 1882.

What parts of the body do the bacilli attack? The organism may attack any part of the body. Tuberculosis of the lungs is the most common type.

How is human tuberculosis spread? By the infected person who is careless, by dust and by food products, the most important of which is milk.

What are some of the symptoms of tuberculosis? Loss of weight and appetite, a daily afternoon rise of temperature, continued cough and general feeling of fatigue.

What should one do if he has the slightest reason to suspect tuberculosis infection? Go to a physician at once for a complete examination.

Is the infected person a menace to his family? Yes, unless he observes the most careful precautions to prevent the spread of the germ.

What indication leads one to suspect tuberculosis in children? Continued fatigue, loss of weight, irritability and a daily afternoon temperature above 98.6 degrees.

How is tuberculosis in children healed? By the same program of rest, fresh air, and good food that accomplishes results in adults.

Should one go to a sanitarium? The program of rest, fresh air and good food can best be followed in a sanitarium.

What can the people of Oregon do to further the cure and prevention of tuberculosis in Oregon? They can vote to establish a sufficient number of beds to accommodate all needy victims of tuberculosis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dempsey of La Crosse, Wis., are in town spending Thanksgiving with their sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dempsey. Both couples were just recently married.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Hillis and family were in town Friday. They were on their way to Washington where he is preaching now.

Mrs. J. E. McCoy left Friday for Imbler, Ore., to be with her sister, Mrs. R. M. McCoy, who is very ill.

Several of the Irrigon folks were lucky enough at the big turkey shoot Sunday at Umatilla to get two turkeys. J. E. McCoy received two.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Graybeal left Thursday in their new Ford to spend Thanksgiving with their daughters, Mrs. R. M. McCoy and Mrs. C. W. McFall of Imbler. Ira Graybeal acted as chauffeur.

Mrs. N. Seaman and daughter Fritzie returned home Saturday from La Grande where they have been visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths of Kansas are visiting their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Seaman.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brownell of Portland made a short visit with relatives in Irrigon on their way to Umatilla to spend Thanksgiving with their daughter, Mrs. Erven Chapman.

The Thanksgiving program which was given by the school Wednesday afternoon was attended by a number of the parents.

W. E. Wright has found it necessary to purchase a larger car which is a "16-valve" Ford, purchased from N. Seaman & Son. They also purchased a new Star touring car from the same company.

Students of the high school have finished their six weeks' exams.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Glasgow made a business trip to Hermiston Tuesday.

FARMER BENEFITS BY ADVERTISING

Producer to Consumer Route Shortened Through Publicity. Says Agricultural College Expert.

Oregon Agricultural College, Nov. 24.—That the use of newspaper advertising for the sale of agricultural products is rapidly increasing because it is one remedy for the wasteful and unsatisfactory methods of the present distributing system, is the opinion of C. J. McIntosh, agricultural press agent of the college.

"Benefits from advertising accrue largely from shortening the road to market and reducing cost of marketing such as transportation, commissions, and loss from damage in transportation," said Mr. McIntosh. "Farm commodities are handled as often as 16 times when water transportation is used. The result is a loss through damage and handling cost."

"Sometimes growers supply their neighbors with their own surplus production through long, devious, and expensive channels. There are legitimate charges for freight, storage, and commissions which are borne by both producer and consumer. The producer gets less than the terminal price by the cost of haul and storage, while the consumer pays the terminal price plus storage and haul. The newspaper is the ideal medium for cutting across lots from grower to table."

"By putting a want add in a local paper, the farmer may sell in the local market to consumer in town or farm in vicinity who may be in need of such product. If there is not sufficient demand in the community, the advertisement is placed in a general farm paper so that the farmer may be able to sell direct to a more distant consumer."

"It pays to give considerable time and thought to wording announcements. The article to be sold should be placed at the beginning of the advertisement rather than 'for sale.' Leading desirable qualities of the product should be given. Display advertisements are justifiable and profitable for selling large quantities of valuable products."

"The most successful advertisements are based on reputable goods," said Mr. McIntosh. "The quantity, quality, place where inquiry is to be sent, and prices are given. Some additional information designed to create a desire for the product is likely to be worth a great deal more than the cost of publishing it."

"Advertising of this kind aids newspapers and farm journals by making their business more profitable and thus enabling them in turn to spend more money in making their papers better and worth more to their readers and advertisers."

Many newspapers throughout the country have realized the need for farm advertising and are urging the farmers to sell in the local market.

Wanted—To pasture about 50 head good horses for winter. Will feed when necessary. O. T. Ferguson & Son, Heppner.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Slush Pudding

During the day it had been cloudy. Then it had rained. But at the end of the day there was a red sky and a beautiful sunset.

Behind the building Mr. Sun went down to bed, looking over the spires and houses he said to the Sunset Fairies:

"You're looking very handsome this evening, but why not make it an evening of changing costumes?"

The Sunset Fairies love to dress up, so they did as Mr. Sun suggested.

They wore lovely dresses of pale blue and then they changed to dresses that were deep blue. Others were purple and some were scarlet and some were white, fluffy, feecy costumes that looked as though they could float through the air—which of course they could do.

They kept changing their costumes constantly, too.

"It looked today as though we were in for a little rainy weather,"

"We'll fool them," said the Army

"We'll fool them," said the Mist grandchildren.

"We'll fool them," said Nurse Fog.

"Indeed, we will," said the Old Weather Man.

"And we'll fool them," said the Snowflake children.

"Are you going to come, too?" the others asked.

"Indeed, we are," said the Snowflake children.

"We've had a long enough sleep."

"We feel like getting up now."

"So the next day it rained a little and there was quite a good deal of mist and fog."

"And then the snowflake children came along."

"The people were astonished."

"The first snow of the season," they said.

"Well, it does look as though winter had just about arrived," some of the others said.

"Do look at the snow," some shouted.

But the children were quite delighted. While some were grumbling, they were ready to enjoy the snow and the rain. There were not many of the Snowflake children about.

Some of them had turned over and gone to sleep again. But there were enough to make a nice amount of slush.

"Let's have slush pudding for lunch," said Peter Gnome. The Gnomes were in Fairyland watching the snow and the rain—they were just a little distance from where the people were.

"All right," said the Queen of the Fairies.

"All right," said the other Fairies.

They set to work at once.

They made the most delicious slush pudding. If ever you want to make it, this is the recipe:

Take a generous amount of rain water and mix with as much light snow as you can get.

Stir well and mix thoroughly. Put aside in a cool place, yet not too cool, for freezing must be avoided in order that the nice slushy mixture remain.

Then season with baby icicles and serve.

Of course you may not want to eat the pudding, but it is fun to make it, anyway.

As the Gnomes and the Brownies and the Fairies and the members of the Guf family and the members of the Guffy family, Old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch sat around the banquet board and ate the slush pudding, they sang, too.

This was their song:

Slush pudding, slush pudding,
Oh, slush, slush, slush,
Some would call you
Nothing but mush!

But to us you're good,
For Fairyland food
Is different, you know.
Heigh-ho!
Heigh-ho!

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Leftover Foods

IF TAKES real thought and planning to use the leftovers in a palatable way. After company dinners there will always be some foods left and "that nothing be wasted," try some of the following:

Mexican Hash.—Take two cups of stuffing or any that is left, add an equal amount of bread crumbs, any leftover corn, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten the ingredients with leftover gravy, put into a baking dish and bake until well-heated through.

Sauces.—Take two cups of diced white meat of chicken, goose or turkey of any portion, one cup of diced celery, one cup of drained cooked peas, one-half cup of shredded almonds, one-fourth cup of chopped pickles, one tablespoonful of oil, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, a dash of red pepper. Let stand to season until ready to serve, then serve on lettuce leaves with a boiled dressing.

Cranberry and Cottage Cheese.—Put any stewed cranberry sauce through a sieve, if thick enough to mold pour into small molds; if not, add a bit of gelatin. Unmold and serve with a mold of well-seasoned cottage cheese and a spoonful of thick mayonnaise.

Chicken Soup With Rice.—Cut all the meat from the bones of the fowl and chop fine. Put the bones into a kettle, breaking them; add cold water to cover, at least two quarts. Simmer slowly for two hours. Add one cupful of boiled rice to the meat and pound together to a pulp. Strain the broth into this, then stir well and put through a puree sieve. When ready to serve bring to the boiling point, add one cupful of cream, season with a teaspoonful of salt and a dash or two of cayenne.

Potato Croquettes.—Season leftover mashed potatoes with a pinch of mace, salt and pepper if needed. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one beaten egg yolk, a sprig or two of finely minced parsley and mix well. Roll into balls or long rolls, dip into egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve garnished with sprigs of fresh parsley.
