PENDLETON EAST OREGONIAN.

GEORGE F. MILTON, a news-paper publisher of Chatanooga, Tenn., has been making a trip through the west and upon his return he stopped off in Madison, Wisconsin. That state is supposed to be violently opposed to the dry amendment. There if anywhere a politician seeking office should be safe in espousing the wet cause. Yet a circuit judge who did so was beaten by a two to one vote when he sought reelection. His opponent had declared himself a "dry" and he got the votes of a district in the very heart of Wisconsin.

It is noticeable that the candidate who wishes to be elected almost always declares himself in favor of the dry amendment and for law enforcement. He may be a drinking man himself and not really in sympathy with the law. Yet he is ready to espouse the dry cause because he has observed in the sense of th It is noticeable that the candi-
