

Staining of Imported and Red Clover Seed.

(Morrow County Farm Bureau News.)
The Federal Seed Act as amended April 26, 1926, requires that all seed of Red Clover and Alfalfa imported into the United States be colored. Hearings have been held and the Secretary of Agriculture has already prohibited the entry of alfalfa and Red Clover seed from a number of countries where their seed is not adapted to conditions in the United States. This will protect the buyer of these seeds from an enormous annual loss. The following types of coloring are required:

(a) Ninety days after the formal determination by the Secretary of Agriculture that seeds of alfalfa and red clover from any foreign country or region are not adapted for general agricultural use in the United States, these seeds are prohibited entry into the United States unless at least 10 per cent of the seeds in each container is colored red. All alfalfa and red clover seed for which the country of production can not be shown is prohibited entry unless at least ten per cent of the seeds in each container is colored red.

(b) Except as provided in paragraph (a), all alfalfa and red clover seed is prohibited entry into the United States unless at least 1 per cent of the seed in each container, if produced in Canada, is colored violet and, if produced in any other country, is colored green.

If the purchaser of seed is in doubt as to whether the seed has been colored or not, an easy method of making a determination is to put a tablespoonful of the seed in a glass half full of wood alcohol or denatured alcohol and stir it up. If the seed has been colored, the characteristic color will appear in the alcohol.

The Federal Seed Act makes it possible for the purchaser of alfalfa and red clover seed to determine definitely whether the seed he is buying is of domestic or foreign production. Samples of these seeds, stained to conform to the requirements of the Joint Regulations of the Secretary of Treasury and the Secretary of Agriculture, will be forwarded to all County Agents in the near future so that the manner of staining will be clearly shown.
