Governor Patterson outlined his recommendations to the legislature n plain, unadorned language. The full text of his address follows:

"The same to Heppner to attend a meeting of the sheepmen held here Thursday evening last.

Frank Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Owens of Balm Fork received. Gentlemen of the State Senate and House of Representatives: You have been favored with the rble presentation of the message of Governor Pierce, in which he has given you the benefit of information he has assembled and convictions he has derived from his wealth of experience as chief executive of our state. His recommendations deserve our careful consideration, because they reflect a wide acquaintance with all the affairs of state and a careful study of and comprehensive, but in accordance with the command of the Constitution of the State of Oregon it is my duty and my pleasure to present for your consideration a brief statement reccommending messures and policies which, I believe, will make for the best interests of the state and the increased prosperity of her people.

I appreciate very sincerely the hon-r which has been conferred upon me by my election as Governor of Ore-gon. I feel, however, that my election gon. I feel, however, that my election does not, in any way, represent a per-sonal tribute, but that it has resulted from the demand of a majority of the voters of the state for a sound, economical, efficient administration of the work of the state—an administration founded on business principles and Performed in a business principles and performed in a businesslike way. You, gentlemen of the Thirty-fourth Legislative Assembly, were elected to the offices you hold as a result of the same desire for economy and efficiency which directed the votes of the electors on November 2. Your presence here demonstrates the facthat the people of your districts trust you to carry out such a program, Your election and mine entail a defi-nite mandate from the people—a mandate for carefully considered thought-tul legislation, aiming at economy effected by the only possible means: namely, a reduction, through efficient management, of the cost ment. I hope we may work together effectively and conscientiously thruout this session to discharge the re-sponsibility which the people of the state have placed upon us.

Lexington Garage Man Very Seriously Burned

Emanuel Nordyke, aged 70, pro-prietor of Ventura garage at Lexing-ton, received very serious burns on Sunday evening, the result of an ex-plosion of gaseline while filling a car. In removing the hose from the car a quantity of gasoline was thrown on the clothing of Mr. Nordyke and this was ignited from a cigartte that was being smoked by the customer while the car was being filled.

Mr. Nordyke was so severely burned that all the skin along the side of one leg came off from the ankle to the of the body also. The car owner did nothing to relieve the old gentleman but got his machine out of the way, and in the meantime Mr. Nordyke put out the flames with a fire extinguish cr. Dr McMurdo was called from Heppner and attended to the injured man, whom he reports as doing as well as could be expected, as he is very seriously burned.

No Intention of Disobeying Law.

Thinking this perhaps the best way let everyone know why I continued sending my children to school when one member of the family was taken with chicken pox, I am coming to you brough the paper.
It was well known that there were many cases of the disease in the school and my children were exposed almost daily, and I watched them very closely. Upon the first symptom appearing with one of the boys I put him in a room to himself and called the doctor. No one except Mr. Cox and myself attended him and we were careful to use proper disinfect-ants after each visit to his room, We understood there had been no quarantine declared and as we were iso lating the case the doctor felt there was no excuse for keeping the other children away from their studies at

I only wanted to correct the impression made with teachers and neighbors and the public in general, by sending my children home from their classes that I was intentionally coing that which would work injury to others in the school, neither would Considers Term as Governor Successful; Has Clean Slate.

SEES 5 MAIN ISSUES

Walter M. Pierce, retiring governor of Oregon injected considerable sentiment of human appeal into his farewell address delivered before the thirty-fourth legislative assembly on Monday, in which he stated recommendations on which the assembly should act. His address preceded that of Governor I. L. Patterson, his suc honor that has been conferred upon me, and for the wonderful oportunity for public service which I have en-joyed for the four years last past. I am retiring in the firm belief that in the main my administration has been most successful, and that the real accomplishments will become more apparent as the years go by.

"In the fulfilling of the promise made in my first message, I am today returning the commission given me as clean and untarnished as I received it four years ago.

Issues Pressing.

"The legislature at this time should kelare and outline a state policy on the following issues pressing for setlement:

"(1) Hydro-electric development;
"(2) Reforestation;

"(3) Taxation;
"(4) Law enforcement;

"(5) Irrigation." Mr. Pierce dwelt at considerable ongth on the importance of these as fronting the state, making a plea for such legislation as will benefit the greatest number of people with avoid-ance of control by any small group. Hydro-electric development and reforestation he names first because of their great importance to the state. and the hitherto lack of foresight shown in the proper care and administration of the projects.

Taxation has been Mr. Pirce's main study during his four-year term as governor, and his departing message but reiterates his theories and proposals given out from time to time in the past. He recommended that the present legislature pass a law providing a graduated income tax similar to the tax sponsored by the Grange Income Tax bill appearing on the ballot last November which suffered defeat, while tobacco tax, tax accounts corporate carnings. inproposals given out from time to time

"The situation demands that you enact legislation that will force an equalization of the (tax) burden," he told the legislators.

Law Enforcement Better.

Placing law enforcement as the fourth greatest problem confronting the state for solution, Mr. Pierce outlined the underlying causes of crime giving lack of responsibility as the main cause. "A large number of our people do not realize and appreciate the won-
