

State Market Agent Gives Advice on Farm Problems

Certified Seed in Benton.
County Agent Briggs of Benton county reports that inspection of seed potatoes in that county shows the stock in good condition and with good yields, and that there will doubtless be a considerably increased acreage this year. The potatoes are the low vine Burbank variety, the only main potato crop grown there, and Mr. Briggs says that since the adoption of the grading law in this state this variety has topped the market and sold at a premium in the San Francisco markets.

A Mammoth Organization.
Co-operative egg handling in the Pacific Coast states has made giant strides in the past few years and the allied organizations are outstanding demonstrations of what may be accomplished when producers unite solidly. The Pacific Egg Producers Co-operative, which is the selling agency for the egg co-operatives of this coast, has handled nearly a million cases of eggs the past year, worth more than $10,500,000 for its members. Chicago headquarters have now been opened for the distribution of PEP in that section of the country and a publication, "The Cackler," has been started.

Same Breeds, Same Varieties.
If the farmers of a neighborhood would get together and agree to raise the same breeds and varieties, they would be in far better shape to sell for better prices and to make it worth while for buyers to come to them. The average farm produces too many products and too small volume of any one. Co-operative organizations of the south and middle west centralize on the standard products their localities are adapted to; they exact most stringent grading standards; they sell collectively and the big buyers come to them.

Must Narrow the Gap.
C. E. Newhouse of Yamhill county says that some radical action must be taken to narrow the gap between the producer and consumer either through federal regulation of profit-taking or through control of markets by cooperative associations. He cited for illustration, that a farmer in his county sold a department store in Portland fibers for 18 cents per pound and then later went up stairs and found they were being retailed at 40 cents. This condition is true of very many farm and manufactured products. Co-operation between producers with farm products handled the way from the farm to the retail store, could greatly reduce the middle handling and profit charges, but the west seems to be slow in taking such action that would unite producers with consumers.

The Oregon Outlook.
The Extension Department of the O. A. C. says reports from county agents are optimistic for 1927. Sixteen believed the outlook is better than a year ago; five anticipated the same condition; one reported a mixed situation and one as less favorable. An increase in crop acreage was anticipated in 15 counties; six counties were expecting to remain the same, and a decrease was anticipated in two. Eleven counties reported increase in the number of farms, seven to remain the same and three to lose. Farmers are urged to carefully study the market demands and prices and base their production on these. There will be ample capital for justifiable loans and the credit situation of the state is generally favorable and indications are that long term loans will increase and short term loans decrease.

GRIMM ALFALA SEED.
A small order of certified Grimm alfalfa and sweet clover seed is being sent in by the County Agent. This is the best lot of seed that we have found, and anyone wishing seed of this kind should get their order in at once.
