MORROW COUNTY'S OFFICIAL PAPER

Foreign Advertising Representative THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Senator Fess as a Prophet.

Volunteer role of political prognosticator landed on the first page of most of the newspapers of the country Sunday with the declaration that "Calvin Coolidge will break another precedent once regarded as very significant. He will be the first man to be nominated and elected to the Presidency to serve longer than eight years."

Fess dealt with the so-called "Third term issue" as follows:

"Coolidge was second to break the precedent that no Vice President who succeeded to the Presidency, was thereafter elected in his own right. If he wishes to do so, he will be the first to break the precedent of an additional election. It is not a third term, but a second elective term in his own right."

"The grounds against a third term were once appealing. The memory of George III despotism was too fresh to permit a semblance of continuous tenure of an executive head. Long ago the fear of the man-on-horseback discontinued. The compelling reasons have ceased to exist. On the contrary, the same reasons which would justify a second term may justify an additional term."

"The force of precedent is weakening in every province of government. The simple reason that a certain course of action has been the rule in the past is not conclusive of its uninterrupted continuance; nor the mere fact that such a course never has been pursued does not mean that it never will be pursued. The truthfulness of this statement can be demonstrated in common experience; and will most likely be observed in 1928 in the case of the nomination and election of President Coolidge."

The Reason for Fair Tariff.

A PROTECTIVE tariff system is necessary in any country where standards of living, wage scales and production costs are higher than in competing countries. It is helpful to workmen, farmers and industries, in two ways. When levied upon importations of competitive articles or commodities, it preserves the domestic markets for the domestic producers. If it similarly protects the consumers of the products, or of the commodity concerned, it builds up that market, stabilizes it, encourages the employment of labor, and greatly increases the

Dr. Frank Crane Says "SYSONBY"

SYSONBY is to be placed in a room in the Museum of Natural History in New York City. To the average American the name means nothing. It might be that of a cigar, a confection, a play or a new author.

In fact it is the name of one of the greatest race horses America has produced, and the skeleton will be placed in a new room devoted to horses and their development as an example of a great race horse.

Nothing drops out of sight quicker than a race horse that has quit winning races, unless it is a man who accomplishes something and then stops.

The applause and interest lasts as long as the accomplishments go on. When they stop, people turn to something else.

Placid old age is usually the least interesting period of life to outsiders. This is because it is a time of reminiscence, of going over and over accomplishments of the past rather than of achieving new victories.

A little over thirty years ago the locomotive Number 999 was familiar to everyone. It was the fastest engine then known and had made a speed of over one hundred miles an hour.

A few years ago, before it was placed on exhibition, it was almost entirely forgotten, used to haul a milk train up and down the rails where it had once been king.

Other bigger and stronger engines had come and its past performance had sunk out of sight.

Napoleon said: "My power would fall did I not support it with new achievements. Conquest has made me what I am and conquest must sustain me."

A little cynicism in regard to applause is a healthy thing.

"As a horse when he has run," said Marcus Aurelius, "a dog when he has tracked the game, a bee when it has made the honey, so a man when he has done a good act, does not call out for others to come and see, but goes on to another act, as a vine goes on to produce again the grapes in season."

purchasing power of the people generally. A protective tariff is beneficial to agriculture in both the ways mentioned.

A tariff frequently protects a domestic article or commodity in its home market, even though there may be an exportable surplus of such article or commodity. The American farmer, under tariff protection does not have to share his domestic market with outsiders. This protected market is by far the largest and best in the world. Unprotected, it would become an international dumping ground.

We do not want to shut out foreign competition, but we should maintain an equalizing tariff which will prevent foreigners from running our own industries out of business.

Like Selling Potatoes.

THE chief problem encountered by the electric power companies in supplying electric service to farms is that of securing enough farmers, living close enough together to use energy in volume large enough to make use of it profitable to the farmers, and to assure the electric companies against loss in giving the service.

"The problems encountered by the electric companies in supplying electricity to the farm are similar to those which the farmer would encounter if he contracted to serve a number of customers with potatoes over a term of one or more years," the statement reads.

"If the farmer can deliver the potatoes in large units to sufficient customers living close together, he can sell the potatoes at a comparatively low price and yet make a fair return on capital and labor involved in the service.

"But if each customer insists upon the farmer delivering a few potatoes for each meal, hauling them several miles, to each customer separately each day, the cost of such service might make the cost of the potatoes prohibitive, although they might have been grown at nominal cost."

"So it is with electric service to the farmers. Electricity, like potatoes, can be produced in large quantities at low cost. The cost of delivery, not of production, is the principal factor in fixing costs of electric service."

"If electricity can be delivered in large volume to sufficient farmers over simple, direct wires, the total cost of electric service will not be heavy to any one customer."

"If electricity must be delivered in small quantities, to a few customers to each mile of line, electric service may become so expensive that neither farmers nor anyone else could afford it."

"The only economically sound process of bringing electricity to the farmers is that the farmer will find use of electric energy so useful and profitable to him that he can purchase it in large volume and accept its delivery, not for a meal, or for a few hours lighting, but for several hours a day for general farm use."

Conserve Soil.

THE world will need fresh water now wasted for irrigation, and rich soil now washed, millions of tons, into the Gulf and the ocean, if Professor A. E. Ross, of Wisconsin, learned sociologist, is accurate in his figures.

He says the earth's population will multiply itself by thirty-two, by 2027. That date is only 100 years away, and when it rolls swiftly around—some children living will see it—the population of the world will be sixty billions, instead of one billion nine hundred millions, as at present.

Those figures are based on the fact that life lasts longer, plagues and famines no longer rage over the earth, even war is milder, since women, children and prisoners are no longer massacred. The figures need not frighten us. "God does not let trees grow into the heavens." Texas alone could feed the earth's present population, with intensive cultivation, and have much left over.

But 60 billions, and later 100 billions, of human beings, will need plenty of fertile ground, and governments should begin to get it ready.

Collections in the police court of Tacoma, Washington, fell off nearly $23,000 in comparison with the total collections for the year 1925. The number of cases of drunkenness dropped by nearly a third. The number of cases of driving while drunk declined nearly fifty per cent.

Nobody takes advice, but evidently everybody thinks it fun to give it away.

Those who have the best qualifications for position and place are often the last to seek it.

An army aviator says man can do everything a bird can. How about laying an egg?

If men were as perfect as their wives expect them to be there would be very little excitement in this world.

MORROW POMONA MEETS AT MORGAN

Interesting and Successful Session, Report of Committee.

Willows, Oregon, April 20.—The Morrow County Pomona Grange had a most successful and interesting meeting at Morgan on Saturday, April 2.

A business session filled the morning hours, at which time each subordinate grange made a report denoting progress in the respective granges. Worthy State Master Geo. A. Palmiter and Brother Geckler, state grange organizer, were present and assisted in making the meeting a success.

The speakers for the public program were Roger W. Morse, retiring county agent, Mr. Smith, the new county agent, and Mr. Dowd. Brother Geckler gave a graphic account of his work with the Juvenile Granges, and Brother Palmiter urged us to stronger organization, citing us to the influence of the Grange in legislative matters.

We are grateful to the Dry Fork Grange for the excellent music furnished by their orchestra, and to Miss Viola Parker for her song number.

The following resolutions were approved: 1. Resolution favoring Oklahoma or Nebraska bank guarantee law. 2. Favoring the pooling of turkeys and other fowl for market purposes. 3. A resolution of sympathy to Worthy Master Chas. Wicklander and family in their recent bereavement, and draping the charter.

4. Resolution wishing Brother Rogers success in his new field and introducing him to the Baker County Granges.

5. A resolution of thanks extended to Morgan school board for the use of the school building; to the L. O. O. F. lodge of Morgan for the use of their hall; to the Willows Grange for their two splendid feeds and entertainment; and to Mr. and Mrs. Bauernfeind, Mrs. Cool, Mrs. Ely, and to the young folks who so kindly assisted in the dining room.

A class of 15 members were initiated into the 5th degree, the work being ably exemplified by the Boardman Grange. On July 2 the Dry Fork and Rhea Creek Granges will entertain the Pomona Grange at Parkers Mill. A three days celebration is planned by the entertaining granges—July 2-3-4. An invitation is being extended to Grant County Pomona to meet with Morrow County Pomona in a joint session at this time. Let's go. Mary Lundell, Ch. Pub. Com.

LONG CREEK MERCANTILE MOVES. From the last issue of the Long Creek Ranger we have the following: "Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Walton, who have been our merchants for the last ten years, and who operated the Long Creek Mercantile store, have departed from among us, having bought a thriving grocery store at Bend. They left Monday and are now busily engaged serving their customers in the new field. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walton are sorry to see them leave and will be glad to hear of their further success in the new field."

It's a Good Old World

I met a friend of mine the other day, And he was chuckling in the same old way He chuckled when I knew him years ago. "Just look at this," he said, "and you will see What fifteen years have done for you and me! A picture always tells the truth, you know."

I looked, and saw a maiden and a man, Designed according to an ancient plan— They were "the snappy stuff" in nineteen-ten! Her dress was long—she had no legs in sight; And, gosh, her waist was corseted so tight She certainly was on a diet then!

And hats were hats in those artistic years! No ruthless "bobber" had applied the shears To what was then her glory and her pride. Of course, no picture taken then would show The things (I pause to blush!) that were below Her dress, whose major function was to hide.

"Ah, yes, old friend, I surely do agree," Said I, "the years have favored you and me— And every other man who isn't blind. There may be some who mourn 'the good old days' But you and I will gaily sing the praise Of all the blessings that today we find."
