MORROW COUNTY'S OFFICIAL PAPER

Foreign Advertising Representative THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Grange Endorses Road.

AT THE joint meeting of the Pomona Granges of Grant and Morrow counties, held Sunday evening at Parker's Mill, a resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing the proposed road leading from Long Creek through Hamilton and Monument to Heppner, this place being the nearest railroad point for the people of Northern Grant county.

We gather from the statements made that Grant county is now ready to act on this road, and as the heavy end of construction lies within their borders the larger cost will be their portion of the burden to be borne, yet it was shown that it would not be many seasons before the people of that section are fully repaid for the outlay necessary in building a road of a permanent nature out this way.

The important feature of this outlet to the railroad from Northern Grant is the distance saved in miles traveled over the present outlet to Condon. The people are not making any complaint of the treatment they now receive by going to Condon, and they have good truck service, but the distance is about 38 miles more and this means a lot of additional expense in the handling of both outgoing and incoming freight.

We hope to see the business men of Heppner get organized to help put this over.

Dr. Frank Crane Says

DON'T HOLD WAKE FOR DEAD ISSUES

THE Rev. Edwin Du Bose Mouzon, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, speaking recently in St. Paul, deplored the division of north and south in his denomination. He said: "It looks as if we Methodists might come to the Kingdom at such a time as this if we might fling our differences away and move like a mighty army. It is now probable that the Methodist Church South will not have the necessary majority to carry out the unification plan at this time. This adverse vote means, not a failure, but simply a delay in getting together."

The Methodist church was split into divisions of north and south by the issue of slavery. That issue is now dead. But the division continues by the force of momentum.

As far as that is concerned, almost all the differences in denominations at present are over dead issues, questions which were once very much alive, but which have now passed out of general interest.

Nobody knows or cares much now about the subjects which separated the Methodist from the Episcopal Church, the Baptist from the Presbyterian, or which otherwise were the original issues upon which denominations were founded. The fences which divide religious people are almost all made of dead timber.

If anyone were to go into a Presbyterian, a Methodist, or a Congregational church at present he could not tell in which convective he was worshipping. Almost all preachers emphasize the same doctrines and stress the same morals. There is no considerable difference in the actual gospel preached in one denomination from that preached in another.

Denominations continue largely for other reasons than doctrinal. It is mostly a matter of machinery.

It is much easier to start a sect than it is to stop it. Our only hope is that as time goes on sectarianism will pass and there will be brought about some kind of workable unity among all the denominations, for they are all striving for the same goal in very much the same way.

All the denominations amount to anyhow is that a man who joins one is in Section B, Pigeonhole A, or Regiment Five and Company Three.

Just why one should be in one company rather than in another it is pretty difficult for the average modern man to say.

Washington Made One July 4th Speech. PROBABLY few people know that George Washington made one Fourth of July speech and only one. There is an interesting story by Henry Olney about this speech in the current issue of the National Republic magazine. The original copy of the address delivered at Lancaster, Pa., is now in the Library of Congress at Washington. Concerning this 4th of July address by the Father of the Country Mr. Olney says in part:

"The diaries of George Washington contain only one reference to the making of a Fourth of July address. This entry was made on July 4, 1791, and reads as follows:—'Monday, 4th. This being the Anniversary of American Independence and being kindly requested to do it, I agreed to halt here this day and partake of the entertainment which was preparing for the celebration of it. In forenoon I walked about the town—at half past two o'clock I received and answered an address from the Corporation and the compliments of the clergy of different denominations—dined between three and four o'clock—drank tea with Mrs. Hand."

"It is the quaint but flourishing city of Lancaster, Pa., that has the distinction of being the only town in this Republic where Washington delivered a Fourth of July speech. Lancaster, at that time, was the largest inland town in this country. It was widely known for the beautiful and fertile farms that surrounded it in all directions, and also by the fact that the Continental Congress had met there for a day when obliged to leave Philadelphia when pressed too closely by the invading British.

Never before nor since has Lancaster had a Fourth of July celebration that compared with the one in which the hero of the Revolution and the then President of the country, was the guest of honor. The news that the 'Father of His Country' would appear in person and talk to the people, spread rapidly throughout the village and up and down the roads in every direction for many miles. All night long on the third of July the citizens' committee was busily engaged in making preparations for the entertainment of the great man and the reception of the thousands of people from far and near who wanted to see the face and hear the voice of the world-famed patriot who had been so largely responsible for winning their freedom from the tyrannical king across the ocean. At the break of dawn the people from the outlying districts began arriving on horseback. Others came in dignified and stately looking carriages drawn by four horses. Those—and there were hundreds of them—who had neither horses nor carriages, gladly walked the long miles over rough roads to meet the most beloved man in all the land."

Railroads in Bus Business. PORTLAND Telegram. ENTRANCE of the Union Pacific into the motor bus field marks a new step in local transportation service. Commodious cars will run between Portland and Pendleton on a convenient schedule, connecting with the motor line already operated by the Union Pacific between Pendleton and Walla Walla.

There is every reason that the railroad companies should welcome and adopt the motor bus as an auxiliary to their through lines, rather than distrust and fight it as a competitor. The real purpose of a railroad is to supply transportation and it need not necessarily be over railed roads. Many elements enter into the transportation business beside the mere supplying of a vehicle, and in all these the great railway systems are experienced and expert. They have capital to inaugurate and trained agents to operate transportation over any highway. It is altogether possible that before long the railroads may run their "Lightning Express" trains through the air and add airports to their terminals.

We may buy one of those multiple folding things that they sell by the yard and call a round trip ticket and find in it sections for travel by airplane, by motor coach, by Pullman car and by ocean steamship, all supplied by the one line.

The Acid Test. Martha—"Your wife tells me that her diamond ring is practically priceless." Arthur—"Yes, that's what the pawnbroker told me when I tried to raise something on it."

A "Regular Guy". Judge—"So you robbed the restaurant because you were starving. Why didn't you take something to eat instead of looting the cash register?" Prisoner—"I'm a proud man, yer honor, and I make it a rule to pay for what I eat."

How It Is Done. "Yes, Archibald, Robert does make more money than he spends. He works at the mint."

One Got Well. Medico—"Anything happen while I was out?" Nurse—"Yes, sir; a patient called."

Not That Kind of a Boy. "Let me get you a job as a hotel clerk." "What does one do?" "Put up people for the night." "I don't care for put-up jobs."

Decreased Overhead. "Splendid, Aloysius, I see by the papers that the price of gasoline has come down." "That's right, Heppsiabah, but I had no idea you had a car." "I haven't but I've got one of those trick cigar lighters."

Rather Unique. A charming young lady from Massachusetts was performing some neat "poses plastique." She departed with speed. Of a pin being in need, One can never depend on elasticity.

Dumb Dora. Flip—"I had a permanent wave put in my hair while I was on the steamship crossing the Atlantic." Flip—"An Ocean Wave, eh?"

He May Be Right. Prof.—"Where would you say the population of our country to be most dense?" Stewed—"Just above the neck, sir."

It Is Like That. A thrifty young fellow named Fred. Hid a quart of gin under the bed. The bottle exploded. And blew the hair off his head.

Hard Liquor. He—"The boys down at Vale aren't holding their liquor so well, this season. I hear one of them passed out after having a bottle of near-beer." Sheez—"Yes, he was hit over the head with it!"

Perhaps Home Talent. "Did that play have a happy ending?" "Yes, everybody was happy when it was over."

At Least Honest. Graduate—"I'm looking for a job, sir." President—"You look pretty good to me, but we can't afford any more help at present." "But I won't be much help, sir."
