Prosperity Here.

HEPPNER banks, according to statements issued at the close of business October 10, show total deposits of $1,237,827.24, and the general condition of the two institutions signifies that they are on a safe and sound footing. The season has been one of quite general prosperity in Morrow County as indicated by the financial institutions. This has also been reflected in the payment of obligations, and the records at the court house show a very large percentage of mortgages have been liquidated. This is encouraging and presages more general prosperity for this county in the seasons to follow. The wheat crop the county over, as shown early in the season, has been one of the largest if not the largest in the history of farming in this section, and the abundant yield has resulted in a splendid financial return. It may be true that many have not made sufficient money to place them ahead this year, but it must be remembered that we have suffered a succession of hard years during which expenses piled up in the shape of debts, and these have had to be met out of this one year's profitable returns. Given another season or two of like yields, and Morrow county will be on top again in grand style.

Just now the outlook for another year is as promising as it could be reasonable to expect; seasonable rains in abundance have put the summerfallow in excellent shape by bringing along the weeds so they may be killed off and out of the way, and then the seeding can be proceeded with in the full assurance that a good growth will be made before the cold weather sets in. The price of wheat is just a bit discouraging at this time in fact has not been any too good for a number of weeks, with the market generally weak. It is expected, however, that this condition will change, that this condition will change, and those who are still holding their wheat will be able to realize WRITE this on your tablets, and never rub it out. Dr. Frank Crane Says

LEARN FROM ELBERT GARY'S LIFE

THE death of Judge Elbert Gary attracted attention to one of America's most picturesque figures. He drew attention to another one of those remarkable careers so characteristic of America. From a poor boy working for a few dollars a week to a multi-millionaire and to the head of probably the largest corporation in the world.

Judge Gary never discovered anything new. In his resume of the elements of character, we are struck by his emphasis upon the old-fashioned virtues. About all the virtues there are are old-fashioned. There has never been discovered any substitute that was workable for being honest and upright.

Gary's Ten Commandments of Success which he formulated for a man with a reasonably healthy constitution and average mentality, are as follows:

- 1. Be honest, truthful, sincere and serious. Being slippery and tricky may gain you temporary advantage but in the long run it will be your undoing.
- 2. Be considerate of others. Don't try to get ahead by pulling somebody else down. The more progress you make the less you will want to take advantage of others.
- 3. Guard your health, both morally and physically. The main thing to rely upon in a crisis or an emergency is being in
- 4. Get an education . Know the fundamentals, such as arithmetic, spelling, grammar, geography and history. Also get all the techincal education you can.
- 5. No matter how much natural ability you have, it must be stimulated by persistent efforts to improve the mind and store it with useful information. A good memory is of incalculable
- 6. Have clean habits of life and select right companions. You should know men of experience and higher rank than yourself. Nothing saps character like undesirable companions who are only bent on self-indulgence rather than self-improve-
- 7. Be ambitious honorably and back this ambition up with energy, persistence and thoughtfulness. "I have had to fight steadily against laziness all my life," he says.
- 8. Be loyal to employers, friends and country. A reputation for loyalty induces people to give you positions of trust and responsibility.
 - Cultivate stability. Don't be a rolling stone.
- 10. Most important of all: Observe the Golden Rule. This gets you further in the long run than any other maxim of life.

A MERICANS should never cease to be grateful that they are living in a country whose government is not operating the railroads, telpehnoe and electric light services, according to Phillip H. Gadsden, president of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, who recently returned from Stockholm where he represented the United States Chamber of Commerce at the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce.

When asked how thes services compared with the services rendered in the United States, he said that the contrast between Sept. 24, 1927. rates and services of govrnmentowned utilities on the Continent and in England with rates and services rendered by privatelyowned and operated companies in America was very striking, and all

"As an illustration," Mr. Gadsden said, "the report of the Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce on International Telephony, shows that of the 19 principal cities in Europe, London has telephonic communication with five, Paris with nine, and Berlin with 13. The average delays during busy hours on long distance lines between Berlin and Paris is 68 minutes; between London and Amsterdam, 34 minutes; between Paris and Brussels, 180 minutes. The time by rail between Paris and Brussels is 217 minutes. Oh, waving field of yellow wheat Beneath the dancing summer heat, Your golden promises sustain Our hearts, unwearied, and again We hope to cut sun-ripened grain. But if the hail reaps ere we reap, Well, we have farmer's hearts that keep No bitterness from sun to sun; We've lost before, and then begun Afresh;-we know how that is done. We've seen wheat shatter, burn, and mould, Sprout in the shock, and we have sold For half an honest price, and still We plow and harrow, disk, and drill. The key to farming is "I will!"
