J. E. Calavan, supervisor of boys' and girls' club work of the state department of education, spent a portion of last week in this county, and in company with Supt. Walker visited many of the schools. He reported to this paper that the prospects for quite a large number of clubs for this county were good, and there would be much activity among the pupils in the various clubs. Irrigon, Boardman, Ione, Hardman and Heppner are especially interested, and other schools will doubtless enter the list.

R. H. Drake was one among the Eight Mile farmers that got through with his threshing just ahead of the rains, having finished just the day before the first rains came in September. Getting that job out of the way, he tied into his seeding and had it all done in record time, then took the family on a visit to relatives in the Willamette valley, where together they enjoyed a short vacation. Ray was in town Wednesday attending to business affairs.

Ora L. Barlow was looking after business affairs in Heppner on Tuesday. He is one of the farmers of the Ione section that has been busy killing weeds as fast as possible of late, getting ready to begin seeding. Mr. Barlow is arranging a public sale of his farm machinery and stock, preparatory to quitting the farming game this fall. The date of the sale is given in his advertisement in another column.

Mrs. Grady B. Seay of Los Angeles was a visitor here for a couple of weeks, leaving for her home in the south the first of the week. She came to visit with her father, Dick Lahue and with old time friends in this county and enjoyed her stay very much, having spent her early girlhood here. With her husband Mrs. Seay is engaged in the publishing of a newspaper at Los Angeles.

Doyle A. Hubbell and Irene Agee, young people of Boardman, were united in marriage on Monday, October 31st, at the home of Milton W. Bower in this city. Mr. Bower performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Agee, parents of the bride, were witnesses to the ceremony. The young couple expect to make their home at Boardman.

Miss Kate Bauman, sister of J. D. Bauman of Heppner, arrived here during the week from Cincinnati on her way to Southern California. Miss Bauman is a deaconess and missionary in the Methodist church, and she and her brother had not seen each other in 32 years.

W. T. Reynolds was here from his home near Hardman on Monday. His section has enjoyed a good season and seems in line for a better one next year.

O. E. Johnson, until recently engaged in ranching on Rock creek south of Hardman, was in the city Tuesday. Mr. Johnson disposed of his holdings in July to Tom McEntire, who has taken charge of the place. Emil states that he has been traveling about quite a little of late, with a view to a new location but has found no section that looks better to him than Morrow county. With his family he expects to reside in Portland for the winter.

E. H. Kellogg is in from the high mountains where he has been for the summer months with the sheep of Jeff Jones & Sons. Mrs. Kellogg, who has been in the hospital at Condon for the past year or more, has greatly improved in health, being now able to return to Heppner and live at home again. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg will spend the winter at the Jones place on Rhea creek.

The Gorgor brothers, who farm extensively several miles northeast of Ione, had a splendid harvest this past season, and Leo states that all their seeding is done for the fall and the grain is coming along well. That part of the county has the best lot of moisture it has received in many years and there would seem to be no preventing a fine yield again next season.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Morse passed through Heppner Friday on their way to Portland to attend the big stock show this week. They came this way to pick up County Agent Smith who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Morse to Portland.

John J. Small, representing New York Life Insurance company at Portland, was doing business in Heppner this week.

Tilman Hogue of Gososeberry says there is a wonderful growth of weeds out his way because of the abundant rains, and farmers in his neighborhood have been killing them off as rapidly as possible. Because of this work, seeding on his place has been delayed. Mr. Hogue was a visitor in Heppner Wednesday.

Mrs. J. B. Cooley of Pendleton, accompanied by Mrs. Josie Jones of Heppner, motored over to this city on Friday afternoon for a short visit. Mrs. Cooley is a sister of Mrs. Vawter Crawford, and was a guest at the Crawford home while here. The ladies returned to Pendleton Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bartholomew of Pine City motored to Portland yesterday, taking with them their little daughter whom they will place in the Shrine hospital for treatment. They were accompanied by Mr. Bartholomew's mother, Mrs. Mary A. Bartholomew of this city.

Mrs. S. J. Jenks, mother of Mrs. K. W. Farnsworth, arrived Sunday from her home at Monument for a visit with her daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth drove to Pendleton to meet Mrs. Jenks and bring her to Enterprise.—Record Chieftain.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Episcopal church meets Thursday, November 10th, at 2:30 in the Parish House. A cordial welcome awaits you.

O. C. Stephens was in the city Friday from his McKinney creek ranch. Feed was better in that section than this fall, and the volunteer wheat in the fields is just jumping. As to moisture, no further orders are going in to the weather man at present, as Old Jude has been overdoing the job already.

Mrs. Frank Turner reports that her father, Sam Cochran of Monument, who recently suffered a very severe stroke of paralysis, is improving slowly, and there seems to be hope that he may quite fully recover. Mr. Cochran has been sick for about three weeks.

Walter Rietmann, Ione wheat raiser, made a visit here on Wednesday. Because of much rain in the Ione country, Mr. Rietmann was delayed with his threshing and just got through with that job on Monday. Weeding and seeding is the order now.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Turner and son John motored to Portland on Saturday and spent a few days taking in the big stock show this week. They also visited Salem on Sunday to see J. O. Turner and family who are residing there this winter.

Carl Rhea, who has been spending several weeks in Heppner, returned to Portland on Sunday.

John H. Williams of Ione was doing business here on Monday.

Mrs. J. H. Gemmell arrived home on Saturday from a visit of about three months in the Middle West. Mrs. Gemmell greatly enjoyed the trip and had a fine visit with relatives in Iowa, Missouri and Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McCarty departed Friday for Hood River where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Livingstone. From there they motored on to Portland to attend the live-stock exposition.

Camel

An honest cigarette honestly advertised

Delightful tobaccos, the choicest grown. Blended with skill and care. Sold without bunk of any kind, and it leads the world by billions.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.
