Motorists Warned of Danger to Children

Although the menace of the careless child at play is somewhat lessened by the resumption of schools, the State Motor association issues a warning that there is a particular need of caution to assure the safety of children during the hours when the youngsters are on the way to and from school.

School children, late in the morning and running blindly to school, or just released from school in the afternoon with all the pent up energy of a child free from restraint, must be considered with the greatest care. No matter if the motorist be late for an appointment or however pressing the need for haste, slow down at the first approach to a school zone and keep a cautious eye on every child. Individually or in groups, children move with a speed and abandon impossible for adults. It only takes a moment for the impetuous youth to bring about an unfortunate accident.

Every motorist should watch out for the safety of the school child and govern himself as if every approaching boy or girl meant to run in front of his car.
