

FARM MARKET TREND

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Nov. 14.—PRUNES. Latest official information indicates that the French prune crop will be six or seven million pounds less than estimated earlier in the year. Prices on large sizes have advanced materially 40-45 (Fench sizes) in 27-lb. cases being quoted on October 18 at $22.46 a hundred pounds compared to $7.25 for 70-75s.

GRAIN. The grain market was generally steady with coarse grains tending to go higher. Heavy offerings of Canadian wheat were a weakening factor but estimates placed the Canadian crop 14 million bushels lower and the Italian crop about 12.6 million bushels below earlier estimates. Conditions in the southern hemisphere were reported more favorable. Offerings of high protein wheat in domestic markets were limited and premiums were advanced somewhat. Soft wheat was not quite so firm. Northwestern wheat markets were oversupplied with damp wheat and export competition at Vancouver was strong. Western barley markets were dull but eastern markets were firmer. Corn strengthened on light receipts and unfavorable weather for harvest operations.

FOODS. Feed markets had advanced as a result of cold weather which stimulated demand, together with some upward tendency of grain markets.

POTATOES. Official estimates of the United States potato crop were advanced nearly 6 million bushels during October making the total expected production approximately 400 million bushels. This is 44 million bushels more than last year and 6 million more than the five-year average, but it must be remembered that nearly 22 million bushels of the increase over last year is represented by early and medium season potatoes which have already been marketed. The per capita supply of late potatoes is scarcely equal to the average amount, but the western states have relatively more than eastern sections. There is still time for readjustment in the potato situation.

LIVESTOCK. Absence of well finished steers forced prices up on limited arrivals of inbetween kinds in eastern markets last week and everything followed the trend. The hog markets were erratic with most weakness in the east. There was not much change in lamb prices although the market was unsettled.

WOOL. Hand to mouth buying by mills caused the trade in raw wool to continue slow last week, but prices remained very firm and the foreign situation remained strong.

TURKEYS. No. 1 dressed turkeys were quoted in San Francisco last week at 46-50 cents a pound. North Texas producers were reported receiving 28-29 cents for No. 1 and 20 cents for No. 2 turkeys, and South Texas growers 25-26 cents, live weight delivered at dressing plants.

(From School of Home Economics)
Braid rugs, rag carpets and hand-woven rugs are used to best advantage in cottages or "old-time" rooms. Rugs are more sanitary than carpets as they are easily removed from the floor for cleaning.
In rooms subject to constant use, rugs having considerable, though not contrasting pattern, are best used as they do not show footprints or wear as do plain ones.
In rooms having plain rugs and hangings monotony is avoided by having upholstery with a pattern in the weave. Rugs with very large pattern are used in hall, corridors or large offices.
If wide board floors are not hopelessly worn, staining and shellacking is effective. If the cracks are too bad, they may be filled with putty, and then either painted or varnished.
Jute-filled cretonne is a poor investment for curtains, as it gets soft in damp climates and brittle in dry climates, causing it to fall apart.
Scrim, voile and cotton etamine have warp and weft the same size. To test the material before buying, be sure you can pull threads either direction. It is some other material if you can't.
Grenadine and marquisette have locked threads one way and the threads can be pulled in one direction only. Net has locked threads both ways, making it stronger than scrim, voile, cotton etamine, grenadine or marquisette.
More light is let through French doors if the curtains are dropped from the top, covering only the lower three-fifths of the door.
