

"3 BAD MEN" A GRIPPING STORY THAT FASCINATES AUDIENCE FROM FIRST SCENE TO FINAL FADEOUT

J. FARRELL MAC DONALD, TOM SANTOSCHI, OLIVE BORDEN, FRANK CAMPEAU IN "3 BAD MEN" A WILLIAMS FOX SUPER-CLASSIFICATION

The epic photodrama, "3 Bad Men," Fox Films story of the opening of the Indian lands for white settlement in the early 70's will be shown at the Star theater Thursday and Friday.

From the first title to the last fadeout this picture holds the attention of the audience by its masterly portrayal of one of the most glamorous and adventurous epochs of American history. Against a vast background of mountains, deserts and plains, and amid the struggle of thousands of settlers for the best of the virgin lands, is woven a drama that holds an interest seldom equalled. For probably never before have such strangely different characters played their parts in such strange circumstances. Here is a real story of two young pioneers, the orphaned Lee Carleton, played by Olive Borden, and foot-loose Dan O'Malley, played by Geo. O'Brien. And guiding and watching over them like the fates themselves are the "3 Bad Men," the bully, the card sharp and the rustler. Here again three of the best known character actors of the screen give three of the most convincing portrayals conceivable, because these three are J. Farrell MacDonal, Tom Santoschi and Frank Campeau.

The mushroom town of Custer on the edge of the virgin lands is reproduced with historic fidelity, together with the typical characters of the times. These characters are played by some of the best known stars of the day. In fact, Lou Tellegen plays the part of the suave but ruthless gambler, Layne Hunter, while Jay Hunt makes a telling picture as the old prospector. Another star who captures the hearts of the audience is Alec B. Francis. Nor is comedy lacking, for Georgie Harris, the diminutive English comedian, who plays the part of Joe Minsk, and Otis Harlan, who is the printer and editor of a pioneer newspaper, furnish plenty of laughs.

John Ford, who gained fame with "The Iron Horse," has added greatly to his reputation by his direction of "3 Bad Men."

PNEUMONIA IS SAID TO BE PREVENTABLE
(From State Board of Health.)

This is the pneumonia season. The pneumonia toll for 1927 was 606. Pneumonia is one of the most prevalent and fatal of all acute diseases. Pneumonia is a communicable disease and is to a certain extent preventable. In this state pneumonia is a reportable disease and all cases should be placed in restrictive quarantine. Special quarters should be provided and the patient should be isolated from the other members of the family. If these restrictions are not followed the health officer may place an absolute quarantine on the premises. These conditions provide that if the family allow visitors in the sick room or if the family be so careless as to permit contagion to be spread, the case shall promptly be quarantined. However, if your case of pneumonia is isolated, and is kept isolated, you will not be quarantined.

This rule was not written as a joke or without forethought, for pneumonia is a contagious disease. It is not so much as smallpox or diphtheria but still contagious to a degree. It is just another one of those "germ diseases" caused by the "pneumococcus" in true pneumonia and by any one of a number of organisms in other types of the disease.

In common with other throat, bronchial and lung infections, pneumonia is characterized by coughing; and this coughing, defined as "sudden forced expiratory noise," expels by reason of its force not only solid or liquid matter than may be in the throat or lungs, but a fine spray as well. That fine spray, if from a diseased throat, is poisonous and to breathe it into your healthy throat is about as safe a procedure as jay-walking blindfolded across Broadway. You may get across without being pushed over, of course. The law of averages takes care of that, and the law of averages, qualified by the state of your health and resistant force, has a great deal to do with you if you breathe this deadly spray. Keep away from it just as you would keep away from other communicable diseases.

Sleep right, eat right, and live right, and get some joy out of life. You may miss a good time now and then but you can't have everything. Build a good resistance to disease.

from "sneezers" and "coughers" and you and pneumonia will very likely remain strangers.

A CHANGE OF HEART.

One of the things that has caused a great deal of confusion in the minds of some has been a misunderstanding of the question of a change of heart. Like every other subject we have only to consult what the scripture says to make everything clear. This will be the subject at the Church of Christ on Sunday morning.

We rejoice in the new impetus that has been given to the work by our meeting and we hope to see the results in every department of the work. There is a class for everybody in the Bible School which meets at 9:45. Christian Endeavor extends a welcome to all young people at 6:30. At seven-thirty our evening service will begin with a joyous song service. There are still some to be baptized and we will also have this service in the evening. The evening speaker will be furnished by the Episcopal Convocation. MILTON W. BOWER, Minister.
