

Local Happenings

A large delegation of members of the Christian church of Heppner spent Tuesday afternoon and evening with the church at Lexington. There was also present from the church at Ione another large delegation, the occasion being a district rally addressed by C. F. Swander, state secretary of the Oregon Christian Missionary society and O. W. Jones, pastor of the Montavilla Christian church of Portland, as well as Pastor Wood of the Lexington and Ione churches. The ladies of Lexington spread a sumptuous banquet for the visitors at 6:30, and this feature was greatly enjoyed, as was also the splendid program offered.

J. M. Biggs and Joe Harvey were Hermiton men in the city Saturday afternoon. The former is district committeeman of the 6th Oregon district, American Legion, and was here to attend the meeting of ex-service men at the court house Saturday evening. Mr. Harvey is editor and publisher, reporter, printer, and most everything else of the Hermiton Herald, and this was his first visit to Heppner, a pleasure he had been contemplating for some time. This paper acknowledges a pleasant call from these gentlemen, and enjoyed "talking shop" with Mr. Harvey, who is getting out a fine paper for the people of Hermiton.

Karl L. Beach, implement dealer of Lexington is getting set up in his new quarters and will soon have his place of business in shape. Mr. Beach has taken over the building adjoining his property and formerly occupied by the Lexington State bank, using a portion of the bank fixtures in fitting up a convenient office space, installing shelving and pigeon holes for the proper care of the large stock of machinery extras he carries all the time, the additional room being something he has needed for several seasons as his business in this line has been expanding rapidly.

The women's gym class, being sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary, will open Thursday evening, March 1, continuing every Thursday thereafter for 12 weeks. Classes will begin promptly at 8:00 o'clock and will last about one hour, the work to consist of formal gymnastics, folk dancing and games. All members will kindly wear tennis shoes or soft soled slippers, the suggested costume to consist of black bloomers, middie blouse and dark hose, can be obtained at the store of Thomson Bros.

John Chorubski of Portland was a visitor here during the past week, departing for his home on Friday morning. He accompanied his son-in-law, John Skuzeski, to Heppner on the latter's return from a visit to Seattle and Portland the week previous, and for a little side trip these gentlemen visited Walla Walla and Pendleton one day, finding business just a little slow in these two cities. Mr. Chorubski enjoyed several days visit with his daughter and her husband here.

Hughes & Hughes are adding more conveniences to their store equipment, and the past week installed some up-to-date display baskets for fruits and vegetables. The baskets are built in tiers of four, on rollers, making it easy to move them about. Besides these, a new show case for candies was put in and a large mahogany desk for the office.

Karl Beach, Lexington implement dealer, has this week received a new McCormick-Deering 15-30 tractor, which has been busy plowing on the Otto Ruhl farm just north of that city. Mr. Beach reports that the recent "tractor school" which he put on at Lexington was a complete success, and there were many interested listeners to the lectures.

Walter Rietmann was a visitor here on Tuesday from his farm near Ione. The weather has moderated to such an extent in his locality that the farmers are beginning spring plowing and doing some seeding. Grain has not suffered any from the freezing weather of the past few months, and is coming along all right.

Evangelist Jas. Pointer and Mrs. Mrs. Pointer contemplate leaving two weeks with the Ione Christian church on Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Pointer contemplate leaving Oregon soon for the east, where he will begin teaching in a school. They will go to Indiana.

Gladys Mead, daughter of Geo. Mead of Blackhorse, who has been ill for the past two years, underwent a major operation on Monday at the hands of Dr. McMurdo for the removal of bad appendix and other complications. Her physician reports Miss Mead as doing nicely.

Miss Martha Wilson, primary teacher in Heppner schools, who has been ill for some two weeks, underwent an operation under local anesthesia at the office of Dr. McMurdo on Monday for the removal of her tonsils. She is much improved now.

Attorney Sam E. Van Vector and Mrs. Van Vector arrived from The Dalles Wednesday, Mr. Van Vector being called to the city on account of legal business in circuit court.

L. A. Florence was down from his Willow creek ranch on Saturday and reports that signs of spring in the foothills seem rather slow in making their appearance.

Mrs. Wm. Barnett of Lexington, who has been confined to her home for the past two weeks with influenza, is now able to be up and around.

Judge Alger Fee came over from Pendleton this morning and is holding a short term of circuit court, taking up civil cases on the docket.

Modern Quarantine.

(From State Board of Health.)
Many people think of public health as being a law, a quarantine sign and a health officer with police power. Many people think that the chief activity of a health officer should be in searching for sick victims in order to place them and the members of their families in quarantine. To them, public health administration means persecution of those who are unfortunate enough to have a communicable disease. This is not true, of course. It is true that health officers do and should have the necessary authority to order and require whatever may be "reasonable and necessary" whenever conditions warrant the use of such authority. This authority, however, is to be used in the interest of public welfare and is not to be abused as a showing of mere force and authority. Indiscriminate use and unwarranted abuse of police power by health officers can result only in criticism and discredit of public health work.

The modern use of quarantine should be based upon scientific facts and proven experience. The purpose of quarantine is to isolate the individual who may be a menace to the health of others and thus prevent his contact with others so long as he continues to be a menace to their health. This means that no individual should be placed in quarantine except for good and sufficient public health reason and that no individual should be held in quarantine for a moment longer than is necessary to protect the health of others. Modern science and experience have discovered methods of determining just when the danger no longer exists, at least for many diseases. This is especially true of diphtheria, typhoid and is largely true of scarlet fever, measles and other communicable diseases. Quarantine therefore is not the hardship it once was nor should there be the misapprehension and misunderstanding concerning quarantine which still prevail in the minds of many people.

Quarantine, backed by police power, should not be used as a convenience, as a penalty, as a mere expression of force nor as a cloak for ignorance. Quarantine is a necessary measure which can and should be used intelligently without discrimination, without unnecessary restraint or hardship and with no other consideration except that of co-operating with the sick individual and those in immediate contact with him in an effort to prevent the spread of the disease to others. The mere exercise of police authority by health officers without sympathy and understanding defeats the very purpose of quarantine.

Quarantine therefore is not the hardship it once was nor should there be the misapprehension and misunderstanding concerning quarantine which still prevail in the minds of many people.
