EXPENSIVE CITIZENS. CARELESS cigar and cigarette users cause an annual fire loss to this country of $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 a year, according to the Bureau of Standards, but it is difficult to convince the average smoker that he is contributing to this costly carelessness. While 550,000 matches, 160,000 cigarettes, and 13,000 cigars are discarded, according to estimate, every minute of every day in the year, experiments conducted under the direction of S. H. Ingberg, Chief of Fire Resistance Section of the Bureau, have shown that only one out of every hundred thousand is likely to start a fire. It was found that the glow of a cigarette butt, fanned by a mild breeze of three to five miles an hour, would invariably
