BOY SCOUTS.

The visit last Thursday of Doug las Hawley, scout executive for the Blue Mountain Council of the Boy Souts of America, brought new life and vigor to Heppner Troop No. 61. In the afternoon Mr. Hawley spoke in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the school and later addressed the high school in the auditorium. We are sure everyone was interested in and enjoyed the things he said. He brought along his bows and arrows, and a miniature airplane, like the Spirit of St. Louis, that would really rise off the ground and sail along of it's own power. In the evening the Scouts had their father and son banquet in the basement of the Christian church. It was some feed and everyone had a fine time. The Cheskchamay group of the Camp Fire Girls served the tables. After the meal Mr. Hawley took charge of the troop and put them through their paces. Friday morning we held a meeting of the troop committee in Mr. Burgess' office. This committee consists of Jas. Burgess, Harold Cohn and Charles Thomson. It was decided to form a larger committee of ten men and call it the district It was also decided that in the future the troop meetings would be held in the Legion hall instead of the basement of the Christian church, Mr. Hawley urges all the boys that can to attend the summer camp south of Milton-Free-water. The charge for fifteen days of real vacation in the big super-vised scout camp will be only $11. REV. STANLEY MOORE, RHEA CREEK.

O. C. Stephens and family accompanied by L. Scott and Mrs. Clyde Wright, spent the week end at Monument, going by way of Condon.

It is reported that Fan Miller and Charle McDaniel of Hardman have bought the Del Allstott farm on Rhea creek and that Bob Owens will move farther up the creek to the Hendrix place which be already has rented.

The Bob Allstott family spent last Sunday at Archie Padberg's home where they joined in celebrating the birthday of Mrs. John Padberg.

Lester Gay who lived many years on Rhea creek, this week visited his old home which is now owned by Bob Allstott.

Sunday morning marks the close Conducted at Case's of the contest for the Bible school. Miss Verna Lindquist, noted home This is the time to make a special conomist and dictician from the and final effort to get out all that chautauqua, pleased with three numbers, the last given in response to the generous encore. Mrs. Thorn acompanied at the piano. Mr. Thorn is local manager of the Pa-offic Power and Light company.

Others whose assistance helped take the production the complete success it was are Wm. Driscoll the school janitor, who helped in many ways; Miss Deloris Pearson and Philip von Lubken, teachers, in charge of makeup and back-stage police; and Valoice Bramer, in charge of lighting effects.

The high school operetta has events in the social life of Heppner. Interest has been exceptionally good this year, as shown by the large attendance, being one of the largest, if not the largest, audiences to attend such a performance here. Miss Ede, the supervisor, has been well pleased with the earnestness and interest shown by members of the chorus and looks forward to greater progress another year. The school extends its thanks and appreciation of the helpfulness received on every hand in making the operetta a success.

In selecting threshing machinery, you are vitally interested in buying a machine that will prove economical, efficient and dependable. The CASE COMBINE is a thrifty machine, designed for long life, ease of operation, and has many exclusive features that raise its threshing standards far above ordinary combines.

Sturdy construction, with rigid steel frame, well braced, prevents twisting and buckling in the field and insures easy running of all bearings.

Grain-tight throughout, prevents loss by leakage in the field.

Self-aligning bearings insure longer life on wearing parts and prevent loss of power.

A sturdy, balanced header that cuts full width at heights ranging from 4 to 36 inches. A worm gear-driven reel.

5 A dependable leveler that levels 50 per cent either way. The CASE COMBINE levels to the hill on the header side instead of leveling away from the hill on the opposite side.

A continuous draper from your head to the feeder house prevents leaks.

A large feeder house that feeds on a level with the cylinder insures positive, even feed without trouble. It also gives easy access to the cylinder.

A 24-inch cylinder with pressed steel head and drop forged hubs. The cylinder shaft is mounted on self-aligning, inclosed, dust-proof bearings, requiring oiling only once a week.

115 cylinder teeth, interchangeable with concave teeth are spaced 2 inches apart with five tooth tracking.

9 An all-steel beater and rotating grain drum ideally handles the grain chaff and straw coming thru the cylinder.

10 A self-leveling recleaner that returns the unthreshed screenings to the feeder house for rethreshing insures clean grain.

1 An improved shoe with a positive travel and even distribrution of air and chaff prevents loss by sloughing or blowing over.

1 The CASE COMBINE is easy to oil as all oilers are brought up to a level of the runways for the operator's convenience.

13 A belt driven machine insures a smoothly operated machine with lower operating costs.

Each man has plenty of room to do his work on the CASE without interfering with each other.

All working parts are easy of access for adjustments and inspection while the machine is operating.

16 A complete stock of repair parts on hand with your dealer and an efficient servicing department is our guarantee that the CASE COMBINE will be a thrifty machine for you to operate.
