Four Week Post Session

An important part of the summer session this year will be the post session, to last for four weeks, and to take place immediately after the regular summer school. Students may make an entire term of work by combining these two. Nine hours credit may be obtained from summer session, and six more from the post session, thus making the 15 usually earned in a regular term. Courses of special interest this summer include principles of Industrial Management, personnel and business policies, to be offered by Dr. E. C. Robbins, head of the university school of business administration.

Monthly bills for electricity are never more than for solid fuel, in most cases less. The Hotpoint oven heats to baking temperature in 10 minutes... while you prepare the dough for breakfast rolls. "Speed" surface units are fastest, too.

THE cooking school will demonstrate other advantages of the Hotpoint range. Most likely there'll be new recipes, too,—for studied menus or hurry-up lunches. You'll see the cleanliness of a Hotpoint, its automatic controls that are like a maid at no cost, letting you come out of the kitchen on torrid days, giving you more time for other things than cooking.
