HOOVER'S ACCEPTANCE.

THE SPIRIT in which Herbert Hoover, nominated by the Republican party for the highest office in the land, responded to his nomination was beautiful and touching.

The good taste of his message of acceptance must remain unchanged by all, friends and foes alike.

Hoover denied that the party "owed" him the nomination, as some politicians had put it. Hoover said that the country had no obligation to him at all; owed him nothing. Rather, he owed the country a great deal.

He stressed the fact that in no other country could a man coming as he did from a tiny village in Iowa, with no background of wealth or official position, receive the opportunities which he had received in America.

He expressed gratitude for having been able to serve the country in the various posts he has held. His message was a paean of praise for America and the opportunities that it offers all citizens, rich and poor alike.

There was no vainglory in his message—there was simple, straight from-the-shoulder gratitude, and a beautiful reverence for the land that gave him birth.

The rise of Herbert Hoover from an Iowa cottage to the Republican candidacy for the Presidency is but one more manifestation of the democracy and equality of opportunity in the United States.

MEXICO'S GOOD WILL ENVOY.

ALL HAIL to Mexico's own Lindbergh! Captain Emilio Carranza has shown the stuff of which he is made!

He successfully completed a flight from Mexico City to Washington, where he was the guest of President Coolidge. This flight was a touching expression of good will and friendship from Mexico.

The feats of Carranza in the air have been many. Once, when he flew from Mexico City to the border, his engine caught fire.

FARM PROFIT PUBLICITY.

OREGON state grange again took a stand against propaganda the effect of which is to increase production of farm products. Booming by farm land dealers, booklets by immigration departments of railroads, newspaper reports exploiting exceptional profits made by orchardists or other specialized farmers, exploitation of farm successes as made by chambers of commerce—all these were deprecated as tending to stimulate production in advance of market requirements.

This restrictive policy has a great deal of reason behind it, even though it may be futile. Other forces, far beyond the control of organized agriculture, are responsible for exploitation of farm successes. Not only is the successful farmer proud of his success and therefore appreciative of recognition, but other farmers, desirous of moving, are anxious to have a favorable market for their holdings.

Our chambers of commerce in Oregon in recent years have been going about this thing intelligently. They are trying to avoid farm land booms, and are endeavoring to locate incoming farmers where they have a chance to make good.

True, the successful farmer will produce more than will the unsuccessful farmer, and thereby will throw that much more produce on the market in competition with all other farmers. But are not the disadvantages of competent competition more than offset by economic gains which ultimately will be shared by all the farmers?

At the time of displacement, there is temporary hardship, later compensated by the profits of a better adjustment. By clinging too tenaciously to unsuccessful methods we are in danger of defeating our own aspirations for progress and prosperity.—Oregon Voter.

NEWSPAPER REACTION.

NEWSPAPER reaction throughout the country is all favorable to the Hoover-Curtis ticket. The word coming out of Washington, D. C., since there has been time to canvas the comment of the press. In the first place, it was a broad day-light nomination, and while the practical minds may assume a scoffing attitude towards popular slogans or expressions, had any other ticket been named there would have been whispers of inaudible as to plottings in a smoke-filled hotel room.

The delegates arrived at Kansas City with the same determination to nominate Hoover, as did the Coolidge men to name the President four years ago. In both cases, these decisions were the result of sober thinking on the part of the delegates. There was not an ounce of hysteria in either convention, which was one of the underlying reasons for the confidence of the country in 1924, as is already felt as to Hoover's success in 1928. This was not the only point of similarity.

Dr. Frank Crane Says:

CONDEMNED

VICTOR HUGO in his grandiloquent way said: "Nous Sommes tous condamnés." We are all condemned criminals.

The lurid descriptions of Mrs. Snyder and Mr. Gray's last hours before execution gave us all the shivers. The newspaper reporter seems to have the same complaint that some preachers have who at a funeral strive to dwell upon all the effective scenes concerning the death of the departed in order to produce tears from the auditors. It is technically known as boring for water.

The more we think of it, however, we conclude that there was but one terrible thing about this execution. That was the certainty of it.

We are all condemned to death, as Victor Hugo says. We must all walk the plank, sooner or later, or face a firing squad, or die in battle or breathe our last in our beds. Dying is dying whatever be its accompaniment.

And the act of death is probably not so horrible to the actor as it is to the spectators. Dying is simply lapsing into unconsciousness and the worst pains are felt by those about the victim who realize that they will never see him again.

The victim himself probably realizes little or nothing. Also the anticipation of death is worse than death itself. The certainty that they were to die upon a given date was fiercer torment to the souls of these criminals than the passage through them of the electric charge, which occupied but a few seconds.

If we knew that we had to die upon the stroke of a certain hour we should die 100 deaths in anticipation of it.

Shakespeare says:

"Cowards die many times before their deaths; The valiant never taste of death but once. Of all the wonders that I yet have heard, It seems to me most strange that men should fear; Seeing that death, a necessary end, Will come when it will come."

That men turn their thoughts to religion when they think death is certain is a testimony to the influence of death upon life and to the superior and immortal qualities of our spiritual natures.

by any means, and the convention managers at Kansas City were faced time and time again with a very sincere query as to why the Hoover nomination was not being made out of hand. Inasmuch as a first-moment unanimous nomination for President is not legally possible until the organization routine has been accomplished, the therefore necessary delay had to be explained as gently as possible to those who made the inquiry. The finest thing of it all is that the longer the ticket stands, the more it appeals and the stronger it grows. It marks a fusing once again of the great forces which originally made the republican party possible—industry and agriculture.

The county has planned doing a lot of work on the Heppner-Willow creek road this season—work that should have been under way, but delay is caused, we are informed, and grading may not be under way before another season rolls around. There has been a great need for this work these many years past, and when the county road bond issue was voted this was one of the roads to receive a portion of that money, and perhaps there is no other road in the system of market roads mapped out that is of greater importance to the larger number of people than is this few miles up Willow creek to the timber belt southeast of Heppner. We shall not despair, however, for the good time is coming when the grading will be done and a far better road than the one we now have will be built. Just at the present time the road bed is cleaned of loose rock and is in good condition as such roads go, all the way from Heppner to the top of the mountain beyond Ditch creek, and this is appreciated by the large number who seek the shades of the tall timber these hot summer days.

The annual convention of the Cattle and Horsesmen's association will be held at Enterprise, July 2 and 3, and gives promise of being the best held for many years, and will doubtless have the largest attendance of any meeting of the association for many years back. The recent tours of the officers into the heart of the range country, resulting in the adding of many new members, means greater interest, and there is promise of a very fine program which will bring many new faces before the convention. Every stockman should "hit the trail" for Enterprise on the occasion of this gathering there next week, that Morrow county may have good representation.

Hereditarily. Going to College. One Kind of Salesman. The Career of Phipps. Felstead with betting 33 to 1 against him, won the Derby. Horses, more fortunate than men, can inherit a father's qualities. Felstead's father, Spion Kop, also won the Derby.

Rich fathers, ask yourselves what would have happened had Spion Kop left his winnings to his son, to squander as he chose. Would Felstead have won any races?

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells Fisk University students that merely going to college doesn't necessarily mean getting an education. It may mean only "forming habits of idleness, acquiring an unwarranted sense of superiority, or becoming dissatisfied with circumstances and environment in which one's lot is cast."

Mr. Rockefeller's definition of what education ought NOT to do should be posted up in every college. It ought not to cram the mind with dates, facts, figures, produce shrewd, money seeking lawyers, turn out doctors that reckon success in dollars, or "fit men for a business life that is sharp, slick, shady."

The mechanical man, or "talking Robot," has been financed $25,000,000 worth. Manufactured in thousands, he will be used as a salesman, mechanically uttering certain words, handing out cigarettes, etc.

You may say, "But he cannot THINK, how can he be a salesman?" He can be THAT kind of a salesman, and it's a numerous kind.

In Ohio, fifty years ago, an earnest young clerk named Phipps worked all day in a hardware store, then walked eight miles and back to keep books for a blacksmith. Phipps, the blacksmith and young Andrew Carnegie went into the iron business.

Some farmers think they need a low tariff, but don't. Tariff protection makes possible high wages, and high wages make it possible for American workers to buy farm products.

This country produces ninety billion dollars' worth of new wealth every year, thirteen billions from the soil, six billions from mines, sixty-three billions from industry. Cripple that industry with foolish tariff tinkers, and everybody will have trouble.

A survey by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, partly financed by the Carnegie Foundation, says gambling, thoroughly organized for many years, plays a great part in Chicago's crime problem.

Gambling is literally the worst of vices, most dangerous to those that practice it, and to the community on whom they prey.

Those that promoted a revival of Chicago race tracks are responsible whether they know it or not, for much of Chicago's crime.

It is hard to escape the crime wave these days. In one case bandits kidnaped a doctor, ordered him to treat one of them wounded, then beat him cruelly and finally killed him.

Six active bandits in New York City rounded up four taxi drivers among their victims. Taxicabmen are associated with banditry in the public mind. The policeman "meaning it all for the best" shot down two of the innocent taxi men, killing one, knocking a third unconscious with his club.

Old China changes slowly. Chang Tso-lin fled from Peking to Mukden, his stronghold, on the advice of magicians and astrologers. Two astrologers, one called "Prince Benedict," seventy-seven years old, another "Iron Mouth," have predicted things that convinced him.

The Mongolians like magicians. Jenghis Khan was ruled by one of them nearly 700 years ago. Ultimately and wisely, he had the magician's back broken by a strong wrestler.
