ARE FOREST FIRES NECES-SARY?

THE fires raging in the Umatilla forest the last week have aroused considerable discussion concerning the Forest policy, and the necessity of having such fires. Old time sheepmen say that such fires were uncommon in the old days. Fol-lowing the method said to have been originated by the Indians, sheep-men in the free range days used to burn out the fallen timber and un-derbrush every fall, keeping the for-ests clean. Range was better then, these old timers say, and fires, if these old timers say, and fires, if and earth like an angel's robe, started, were more easily controlled. That's huckleberrying, Mr. Strang-

The conservation policy adopted by the national forest service has long enough to get your huckleberprohibited this plan of keeping the forest cleared. Years of accumulated fallen timber, thickly grown underbrush and impenetrable thickets of new growth timber, have increased the fire hazard tremendously, and range conditions have retro-gressed, instead of becoming better under government control, This is the contention of sheepmen.

Forest officials say that the plan followed in the old days destroyed good timber; that sections where the burning off was done, in a few years were covered with a jungle of end desired was not gained

It is not for us to say who is right, for we do not claim to be authority on the subject. However, we do say one does not need to be an expert to see that there is something wrong with a policy that permits fallen timber to accumulate year after year, and underbrush and International Sunday School Lesson for great joy unto all the brethren." thickets to grow so dense as to pre-clude the possibility of the land being used for range at all, as it may be seen in parts of the Umatilla Rev. Br. Frank Crane Says:

THE SPRING

I do not know that I ever heard of a y heathen people worshipping a spring. Why, I do not know. I have read of nymphs and such things haunting springs, but I do not recall any case where a spring was worshipped.

Just why I cannot tell. It seems to me that if I were a heathen man and hunting for something to worship, I should consider a spring very favorably as a good candidate.

To be sure, there is the sun, which is the source of all power, and the mountain which stands for great strength, and other objects of nature that are apparently symbols of the divine ,to say nothing of an egg, which perhaps is the most wonderful of all nature, as it contains the secret of growth.

But the pring is so manifestly other worldly. It just comes out of the ground where it has no business and everything about it

You see a spring on the hillside gush forth from a fissure in the rock. Weeds and lilles grow in the rivulet that is formed, and even trees spring up about it. Men and animals come to refresh themselves of its waters, it is so manifestly a source of life.

Some folks are like springs. When they enter the circle everybody picks up. They are life bringers, conversation makers and thought producers. They stimulate our nerve gangilee. Why I do not know. They may not be particularly pretty or shapely or intellectual. They just have something about them that sets people

Most of us are dead ones lying around like old slabs of dead earth. One of these spring people comes along and grass and flowers immediately appear, and the desert blooms like a rose.

I suppose these people are imbued with a surplus of life. What we all want is life. It may take a thousand forms and ways of expression, but, substantially, it is all the same.
