

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

If you are so unfortunate as to have a home without a fireplace, you can acquire the full effect of one by simply introducing a mantle with a false grate to accommodate electric logs or coals. Then, if possible, have bookshelves built into the wall at either side and you will have a charming hearth setting at very little cost.

Go to Bed Stories
By Farmer Smith

All the Birds in the Forest were jabbering away one morning when the two bunnies came hopping down the path.

"I wish we could get even with Mister Jay Bird," said Bobbie. "Revenge is terrible—it's awful. It makes you feel bad when its over," answered Billie Bunny, sitting down and looking very, very thoughtful.

"What would you suggest doing to give him a lesson? He's always playing jokes on us and we ought to do something to him—something he will never forget," said Bobbie, sitting down also.

"Is Mister Jay Bird vain about anything?" Bobbie became very thoughtful before he answered: "I think he is very proud of his head piece—the top of his head. He is always cocking his head this way and that. Perhaps we could—"

"I have it!" cried Billie. "Let's paint his head a different color and see what happens."

"What do you think will happen?" "The other birds will have nothing to do with him, or they will make it hot for him when they see he is different. Nothing in this world attracts attention like something different. You watch and see." With this Billie got up and started off, followed by Bobbie.

Soon they were under the tree where Mister Jay Bird was seated. "We were just discussing you," began Billie. "We were thinking how beautiful you would be if your head were yellow instead of blue. Have you ever thought of that? Come and look at yourself in the brook and see. Then let us put some yellow mud on your head and you will see the handsomest bird in the Forest."

When Mister Jay Bird heard this, he hopped down from the limb on which he was sitting and came over to where the Bunnies were.

"Do you really think I would be handsome—as handsome as the Stellar Jay?" he asked. "I know you would be, so why delay?"

Away flew the bird to the edge of the brook and the Bunnies hopped after him. He looked into the water, putting his head this way and that. Finally he said: "Go ahead—put on the yellow."

The Bunnies took some yellow mud and rubbed it on Mister Jay Bird's head and away he flew to where the other birds were still jabbering away.

Jay Bird and soon they drove him out of the Forest.

"Revenge is terrible, I tell you," said Bobbie. "But a strange thing happened very soon."

Frank Connor was the victim of considerable consternation Tuesday morning when the Union Oil truck driven by him skidded on the slick highway putting the hind wheels in the ditch, stalling him for several hours. The even blanket of snow made it impossible to define the highway.

The proposed bill gives the secretary of state power to authorize any motor club in the state to issue licenses, providing the club has complied with all laws and filed all bonds required by law. Section 3 of the bill states that the sheriff's office and motor clubs are given permission to retain 10 cents for each set of license plates issued.

Heretofore, the law, which was passed in 1913, only included Civil and Spanish-American war veterans.
