A Bank for Brokers.
No Arsenic, Please, F. R.
Usury Unnecessary.
Invest, Do Not Gamble.

In response to warnings from the Federal Reserve, banks withdrew recently, $25,000,000 of call loans. The idea was "to discourage speculation." That speculation keeps big banks and their gigantic profits alive, but that is another story.

When loans were called, the rate moved from 8 to 9 per cent. Banks calling loans sacrificed 6 per cent on $25,000,000 and made an additional 3 per cent on about four billions.

Even a child on the farm could understand that systematic usury must be harmful. Even as base a thing as a speculator, buying American securities, should not be robbed too systematically.

It is probable that investigation of the Federal Reserve Banks and its accidental of intentional promotion of bank profits, through usury, will follow the latest Federal Reserve action, responsible for a loss, widely scattered, of three or more billions in a few hours.

Why do not Stock Exchange men protect themselves and their customers from financial tyranny. They could establish a great bank, especially for their own purposes. Compelling brokers to make call loans at that bank, on conservative margins of security, at a fair interest rate, and dividing profits among stock exchange members, they might do something that the Federal Reserve evidently cannot do.

Controlling a monopoly of call loans, they could sell $1,000,000,000 worth of stock in an hour.

If a father to cure his children of overeating, put arsenic in their food, you would say, "Something wrong with that father."

When a paternal Federal Reserve Board, mistaking itself for the national government, to cure what it considers over-speculation, guins thousands of investors by forcing usurious interest rates, you say, "Something wrong with that Federal Reserve Board."

The board is unnecessarily excited about four or five billion dollars of brokers' loans.

Learned financiers should realize that there is money in this country outside of banks' control.

Mr. Ecker, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Company, has shown that the income of American wage earners is sixty billions of dollars a year. And they spend fifteen billions less than they earn.

Those fifteen billions are three times the total of brokers' loans. A nation that has every year fifteen billions of spending money might borrow a third of its excess annual wealth for investment, or even for speculation, without making criminal usury necessary.

Wall Street went to work last week convinced that the world had not quite come to an end, and even a benevolent regulating Federal Reserve might be endured.

Some for whom this is the beginning of the Spring lamb season, the unhappy wiped-out minority that tried the "faw down, go broke" experience, will know better next time. Others will know better later.

Invest within your means, in America, and you get rich. Gamble here or anywhere, and gambling gets you.

Lady De Bathe died recently at Monte Carlo, in her seventy-seventh year. As Mrs. Langtry, the Jersey Lily, she was known wherever English is spoken. Her reputation was due largely to her marvelous complexion, pink and white, NATURAL, colors. Such complexions have gone out. Even little girls are dabbed and plastered.

Up above, the Jersey Lily has doubtless renewed acquaintance with Albert Edward, who admired her when he was Prince of Wales. Will he look natural, flitting about with white wings and a harp? Probably not. And how painful it must be for a sovereign or a famous beauty to be just like everybody else. Perhaps even ranking below Moody and Sankey.

Teeth are decidedly a permanent part of your anatomy! The skin and its cells change and with the constant process of rebuilding we are practically re-made every few years.

But after baby teeth have gone the permanent set comes; and after that, "your teeth are your teeth, all your life"—unless by your neglect you lose them.

The tooth-buds of the infant develop prenatally, many months in fact, before the child is born. And because of this development the expectant mother must begin to build up in her own body the necessary elements required by the child.

Calcium, which is richly present in milk, is one of the most important ingredients for the mother to introduce into her own system, for calcium is an actual part of the teeth. If in the last three months that the mother is carrying her baby she does not make up the terrific drain made upon her own system for the development of the teeth and bones of the unborn child, her own bones will become soft thru the absorption of the lime salts from them.

After the child is born its milk teeth must be carefully attended to, kept scrupulously clean by brushing with a tiny brush and a little milk of magnesia as early as the first two teeth appear. On the care and the resultant health of these milk teeth depend the strength of the permanent teeth later on.

Lime water is often added to the baby's milk on the physician's advice. The best and simplest way to care for the new baby's gums is to dip a fine piece of sterilized gauze in a little boric acid solution and wash out the inside of the baby's mouth.

One noted medical authority suggests that mixing calcium (precipitated chalk) with common salt in the salt shaker will help to insure both child and adult of the required amount of calcium or lime.

The contour of the teeth is most important, too, to mouth beauty. So much so, in fact, that I cannot advise you too strongly never to permit your baby to form the habit of sucking its thumb, or to allow pacifiers or a too long use of the nursing bottle. Any defect can be corrected in early life when bones and sinews are soft and plastic. When the child's teeth are out of alignment a dentist who has specialized in orthodonty can advise you sanely and sensibly on the best method of correction.

Helena Rubinstein
Prevent Eye Trouble.

From State Board of Health.
The eyes are the agents of one of the most important functions of the human body. The eyes are most delicate and sensitive, and their usefulness is easily impaired. It is estimated that over 90% of impaired eyesight and the attendant discomfort, disease and dependency can be prevented.

The best artificial lighting system is that nearest to ordinary daylight. The light should come over the left shoulder for right-handed people, and over the right shoulder for left-handed people, in order that a shadow be not cast.

Faulty vision is sometimes due to eye disease, but is also often due to defects of the eyes which prevent the rays of light from being properly focussed in the eye. Properly fitted eyeglasses, properly worn, will remedy the defect. Properly fitted eyeglasses not only enable a person with defective vision to see more clearly, but they may improve the general physical condition. The proper fitting of eyeglasses demands expert knowledge and great care. Eyeglasses, the lenses of which are not adapted to the eye, or frames that do not hold glasses in correct position, may do great harm. In the normal eye, by

Results of Thinking

Benefits from never wasting anything are clearly emphasized if we, as scientists would, think about the matter, consider our condition and possibilities of "arriving" if we are prudent.

Just notice how people who save regularly do succeed.

special sense of sight, the images of objects are properly focused and a clear picture thus formed. Myopia, or nearsightedness, is induced by a condition where the distance from the front to the back of the eye ball is too long. This causes distant objects to be blurred, and discomfort, headaches and eye-strain are experienced. Hyperopia, or farsightedness, is induced by a condition where the distance from the front to back of the eyeball is too short. This causes close objects to appear blurred, which in turn brings about eyestrain.

Astigmatism is induced by a condition where the rays of light falling upon different parts of the eye are not focussed at the same point, with the result that objects are indistinct and eyesight is impaired.

Myopia, Hyperopia and Astigmatism can be remedied by properly fitted eyeglasses.

The danger signals of eye disturbances are frowning, watery eyes, fatigue after continued use of eyes, blurred vision, soreness or redness of eyelids, puffiness of eyelids or under eyes, drooping of lid, mild or severe headaches and aching of eyes.

In every case of failing eyesight, inflammation of, or injury to the eyes, if pain or discomfort continues, an expert in eye diseases should be consulted and treatment conscientiously followed.

D. B. Stalter states that he experienced just three days of real winter weather this season, and that was while he was at Seaside, where the snow fell on three days, and then disappeared over night. Mr. Stalter has been absent from Heppner for about three months, putting in his time at Portland, Seaside and Tillamook. He returned to Heppner Tuesday morning, and certainly shows that he wintered well.

While the cold snap was pretty hard on some of the sheepmen, and much work was required in caring for both sheep and lambs, the flockmasters have pulled through in good shape. Orain Wright, of Wright Bros., Rhea creek, who was in town for a short time on Monday, says that while they had their share of the hard work, spring has opened up nicely out that way, grass getting green on the hills, and all is moving along fine now.

Mrs. Ellen Buseick returned home on Tuesday morning from Portland. Since her trip to Honolulu last fall, Mrs. Buseick, with her sister, Mrs. E. F. Day, spent a couple of months at Los Angeles, enjoying the mild winter weather of that part of California, and but recently returned to the home of Mrs. Day in Portland.

Pat Connell, Spring Hollow sheepman, was looking after business matters in this city on Tuesday. He is glad that winter is over with spring opening up so nicely out his way.
