Official Paper for Morrow County.

It is good to have money and the things that money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy. —Lorimer.

9 FOOT ROAD CONSIDERED.

THERE seems to be some question as to whether the county will be able to complete the Eight Mile market road, because of shortage of funds. We understand the county court has made a contract with Ike Dempsey to place 15,000 yards of crushed rock on this road, but whether this will all be spread is not settled. For a distance up Jack Rabbit canyon the road has been finished and surfaced to a width of 16 feet, making it standard. We have been told by road officials that if this policy were followed out, the contract would cover about 7½ miles of 16-foot surfacing. It has been suggested and the court is giving the suggestion serious consideration, that the surfacing cover but 9 feet. The grading is now about completed to the Gilliam county line, and the spreading of 9 feet of crushed rock for that distance would give the farmers tributary as good a road, for all practical purposes, as they will need for some time to come, and to this could be added more crushed rock at some future time as traffic on the road would justify, and finally the road would be standard; this to come when the county was able to meet the expense. In the meantime, the Eight Mile and Gooseberry farmers residing adjacent to this road would be getting the benefit of and have a good highway over which to market their grain. Whether this plan would meet with the approval of the state market road department, we do not know, but it is suggested that Mr. Scott is looking upon it with favor. It should be worked out along this line.

The Heppner-Willow creek road is another that might receive the same treatment. This is entirely in the hands of the county authorities, as that road was withdrawn from the state system. This road is used a lot and is very important, as all recognize, and should the funds permit of its being graded and surfaced as far as the forks of the creek, there would be much rejoicing on the part of not only Heppner people, but a large number of the folks in the north end of the county. The court should be encouraged to work this out along the lines herein suggested, and now that the road crew is on the job up that way, they should be continued there until this much has been accomplished.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

THAT was a fine tribute to the Sperry family given at the funeral of George W. Sperry on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. Earl Cochran, of Salem. He spoke, of course, as a relative of the family and what he said was from knowledge gained from personal contact, and handed down from the early years by those who lived to know all the members of this family of Oregon pioneers. It may have been somewhat of a departure from the usual funeral service—from that habit of making the ceremonies just about as short as possible—yet it was refreshing to have our minds called to the sacrifices and hardships, to the great courage and determination it took to overcome the hardships incident to the making of a new empire, and to the splendid character of those taking part in it. The pioneer members of this family were of this stock, as were hundreds of others who came across the plains in the '40s and '50s. It is well to meditate upon these things when one is taken from our midst that we honor and respect because of the part he had in the making of this state.

KISSING.

OPINIONS on kissing differ.

First the health experts warned us all against it as a promulgator of colds and more serious illnesses.

Now science tells us that kissing is an exercise that makes for health by speeding up sluggish hearts and increasing the circulation of the blood, and recently a group of chorus girls took part in a scientific kissing contest which showed that the stimulus of kissing created a real good response from a health standpoint.

We are waiting for the doctors to begin prescribing kisses, and for men and women to walk about with special doctor's certificates entitling them to spoon in public for the sake of health.

Men who haven't done so for years will begin kissing their wives with great ardor—what difference that will make in matrimony and the entire field of domestic relations!

And then perhaps kissing will be made compulsory in the interests of science and health. What we are afraid of is that once this happens people will begin to lose interest in the time-honored game of osculation.

RHEA CREEK.

Winter stil seems to hold over, making garden planting very late.

J. H. McDaniel moved his sheep to the Stephens brothers farm for a month or so because of grass shortage on his place.

Rhea Creek Grange met for a lively meeting Sunday. They will meet again next Sunday for a clean-up day and also to organize boys' and girls' clubs. All children interested please be present with your parents.

Remember the Grange social night, April 20.

Mrs. J. A. Adams is home after a spell of sickness. She has been staying in Heppner.

E. E. Rugg, rancher residing at the mouth of McKinney creek, was attending to business affairs in Heppner on Saturday.

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD.

2 Chronicles 30:1-9, 25-27

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D.

It is bad enough for individuals to drift into wickedness, but the general situation is far worse when the ruler of a nation actually promotes plans for wrong doing. This was the case in Judah under King Ahaz. The worship of Jehovah was spurned and the people were led into idolitry, with the immoral conditions that attended such devotion. Isaiah's entreaties to turn to and trust in God had been ridiculed and the people were under heavy tribute to the king of Assyria. Meanwhile the Northern Kingdom, Israel, had about run its course and Assyrian captivity resulted.

Hezekiah was the good son of a base father. Here is the signal instance of a child being superior to his environment, and pure in spite of all the filth in home and community. All credit to the boys and girls of today who refuse to be dragged down to the level of unworthy parents, but who make the most of advantages that are open to all, and make good in this world of keen competition.

The king had learned much as regent and began his own reign at the age of 25. His life had been motivated by great fundamental principles. Jehovah was in reality king in his own life. The divine will was indicated in part in the sacred scrolls. Then there was Isaiah the prophet, as spiritual teacher and personal conscience was to be reckoned with.

Basic in the experience of religious life is the observance of ordinances established by the Almighty. The Passover had been neglected. Now the nations were called on to observe this meaningful feast, though a month later than the usual time. Invitations were sent to the ten tribes of Israel as well as to Judah and Benjamin. Many scorned the call but multitudes did attend. The law was studied with great care that the ritual might be exactly observed. Confessions of sin were simultaneous with the offering of sacrifices. Worship was the joy of the hour, and when the seven days prescribed for the Passover had been completed, the king and people were so zealous in the declarations of their new obedience to Jehovah that a second period of seven days was observed with added joy and benefit. As the people returned to their homes and daily life they had a personal consciousness of the meaning in our Golden Text: "Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful."

Thus king Hezekiah led his people back to God. Anyone can be a leader, in fact all are, for each exerts unconscious as well as conscious influence. There are reforms within the ability of each one and we are individually responsible for undertaking them. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper for the Christian, replacing the Jewish Passover, is the fitting place for registering our purpose after new obedience, and proceed thence on the King's business.

Heart to Heart Talk

By John Joseph Haines M.D.

NO! NO! NO!

Once when I was a sentimental youth, my soul was inexpressibly shocked when I heard of an inhuman fiend who had put out the eyes of a helpless little bird, in order to ascertain whether its song would be made sweeter thereby. And the brute had puffed with pride over his heartless experiment!

A greedy theatrical manager conspired to break the heart of a beautiful girl who sang in his troupe in order to develop a pathos which her cheery youth lacked. She walked into the trap—the heart was broken. The pathetic note came, and stayed. The human hog filled his coffers with the proceeds, satisfied with himself. The songs were more tender, more appealing to the emotions—brought a better price.

Bunyan wrote his immortal "Pilgrim's Progress," second only to the Bible in popularity, while he was confined within a dismal, half-lighted dungeon.

Our best collection—ten volumes of "short stories," came to life while the author was an inmate of one of our state penitentiaries.

Does it require privation, duress, suffering, to bring out the very best within the human soul? There are those that seem to think so—but it is not the truth. Solitary confinement may find surcease in active mental occupation; but the human mind works best in an atmosphere of absolute freedom and content.

One of the most brilliant writers I know of, who is blessing people everywhere with his superb talent today, has never, to my knowledge, known misfortune. He is wealthy, his mental poise perfect, his standing enviable. He is at his best in every particular, and could not be improved by any prison, or by the loss of any one of his five senses. Away with the heathenish superstition that bitter duress sweetens the singing in God's kingdom!
