SCHOOL ELECTION AT HAND.

ANNUAL school election nears and the patrons of School District No. 1 are reminded that this will be an event of Monday, June 17—just a week from this coming Monday. We are calling attention to this important matter in this manner that the voters of this district may have due notice, it having been heretofore asserted by some that this paper was negligent in this regard and that no proper notice of the annual school meeting had been made, thereby creating an excuse on the part of many for not being present when a director and clerk were chosen.

The only interest that this paper has in the school election is one of a citizen and taxpayer in the district. We have always urged the patrons and taxpayers to take more interest in the affairs of the school, and show this interest by attending the annual and special elections. The choice of a director to serve for three years is important—this year it is especially so.

Mr. S. E. Notson, retiring director has been serving the district for a number of terms. He is thoroughly versed in school matters and has been a faithful member of the board, performing his every duty well. Whether he will be a candidate again we do not know, but believe that he should succeed himself on the board, because of his long experience in school work. But whether it is Mr. Notson or some other good man or woman, there should be a large attendance at the school meeting and every voter in the district who can possibly attend should be there. The meeting is called at the council chambers at 2:30 p. m., Monday, June 17 and the polls will be open for one hour, thus giving ample opportunity for every voter to cast his ballot. Don't neglect the annual school meeting.

NEW PROBLEMS COMING.

AUSTRALIA is planning to rehabilitate land, impetus to the movement having been given by the irrigation in America of previously unproductive parts of Texas and Arizona which have become very productive agricultural areas.

In the eastern district of Victoria, an effort will be made to reclaim thousands of acres now given over to rabbits and bracken.

A canal is planned in Central Australia, partly to improve transport, partly because it would so effect the climiate as to increase rainfall.

At the same time an American engineer has incorporated a company to reclaim more than 100,000 miles of the great Sahara Desert.

If the scheme goes through and brings about the effect promised for it, thousands of acres now barren will be made productive.

All of these undertakings are commendable and show what rapid agricultural strides are being made. They are unmistakable, strong signs of a mighty progress.

At the same time the successful completion of these plans, and the subsequent greater area of thriving farm land, will give farmers new problems to solve.

ILLITERACY.

IT IS alarming to consider that there are 5,000,000 men and women in this country who cannot read or write.

Almost a million and a half children of school age do not attend school.

Now the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is conducting a campaign to eliminate illiteracy. They hope to make great strides by 1930. If this association brings home to people the importance of education and literacy, a great deal will have been accomplished. Illiterates are never "free." They are the exploited and oppressed at all times. There should be a minimum of illiteracy in a country such as America, dedicated to the ideal of democracy.

Calvin Coolidge, when president, advocated the establishment of a Deparment of Education with a Secretary in the cabinet to cope with the problem of illiteracy.

The legislation was not enacted, however, and we respectfully submit the idea to the consideration of Herbert Hoover.

Mrs. J. Arthur Craig is in Portland this week enjoying a visit with friends.

Heart to Heart Talk

DOUBTERS

The doubter is in the woods—a lost man. Doubt breeds infidelity, discouragement, failure, despair. I may not be able to afford a costly automobile; I may deny myself everything in the way of luxury on account of a thin purse and a puny income; but least of all can I afford to harbor doubts.

The halting twin of fear is doubt. Fear and doubt will sink any navigator on the sea of life. Therefore, I shall not permit either of them aboard my vessel.

But they must be watched—or they will creep in unnoticed; they take possession while we are not looking for them. And, they have a way of growing every time we trip on a snag or a boulder in our path; that, above all times, is when we must shake off the spell of doubt and indecision.

If doubt ever got folks anywhere, I could be more lenient toward it; but it doesn't; it never did; therefore I will have none of it.

The man who buys a farm, or a house in town—and doubts his ability ever to pay, is pretty sure to go by default in the end. Look about you, and verify the truth of what I am telling you. Then turn and look at the plodding fellow who never had a doubt in his life—who kept pegging away—and heaped a competence for happy old age.

There is room and plenty for all in this world; you know that's the truth. Nobody ever got his share by doubting. Doubt is my worst enemy; if I kill him on sight, he cannot come back to haunt me. There are three stages of failure: Doubt—hesitation—losts! Two to success: Confidence—zeal.

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES.
Jeremiah 35:5-11

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D. D.

Abstinence from the use of alcoholic liquor is not merely a twentieth century issue. The incident of the lesson dates back to a pledge that was taken more than 2500 years ago and it is pertinent for study on this quarterly temperance Sunday. The fact that this is also Children's Day, which will be observed in many parts of the world, suggests that by every means this world should be made a safe place for the children to live in. Youngsters grow up in the environment made for them by the adults of the previous generation.

Jonadab, son of Rechab, had his own ideas about the best ways in which to safeguard life. He thought that the cities should be avoided as so much evil centered therein. So he exacted a promise from his immediate kin that they should, with their successors, always live in tents and give up the pursuit of agriculture, which tended toward settling in homes. Then to enable them to live up to the best in themselves he called for a further vow to drink neither wine nor strong drink. Rechab and his followers thus became nomads.

When Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon became the tyrant oppressing Jurah it became unsafe to rest anywhere in the open in that vicinity. So the Rechabites of that day sought safety, contrary to their traditions, in the city of Jerusalem.

Jeremiah, by command of God, often presented the teaching to Jewry through an object lesson. He was told to invite these refugee Rechabites to a room on the temple area and there set before them bowls of wine and bid them drink. Here was a test of Jeremiah too, for he was not a man to lead any into ways of evil or to undermine their right principles. The crowd eagerly watched the procession and followed to the rendevouz. They heard, as cups were offered and all bidden to drink the alcoholic beverage, which was contrary to their vows. Jeremiah need not have feared the outcome. These Rechabites did not even draw apart to talk over the situation and consider if it would not be wise to partake under the present circumstances. As a unit they expressed their life-long habit and continuing conviction, "We will drink no wine."

While the crowd listened, and doubtless regretted that the invitation had not been extended to them, the prophet made his point by way of instruction from this acted parable. He made it clear that these men thus honored the word and memory of an ancestor, whereas Israel had been totally indifferent to the oft repeated commands of their Jehovah God. There should be greater regard for Him than for the say-so of any human. Again Jeremiah predicted the overthrow of the nation, and Jerusalem was captured about 13 years later.

There is no liver subject in the land today than that of abstaining from alcohol as a beverage. It is still the poison that it always has been and its reactions are constant. Every generation needs to be taught these continuing truths. When they are accepted there will be a greater eagerness to obey the laws on the subject, for these are made only for the protection of the citizenry.
