LIONS COME TO HEPPNER.

The Lions International, one of the outstanding service clubs of the world, has come to Heppner. This will explain unaccountably, guttural roars of the jungle which may awaken local people from the sound slumbers of the small hours of the night. So, don't be alarmed.

It is hoped, however, that the Lions will be the means of disturbing daylight slumbers along with those of the night. If the work of the organization at large is reflected to a degree locally, such will be the case and a new era in the business life of the community may be anticipated.

The work of the Lions will be to seek a better understanding among business men that they may work unitedly for a better spirited, more progressive Heppner. Elimination of competition is not thought of. But the ideal of the Lions is to foster understanding and fair-mindedness that will give business men confidence in their competitors, do away with petty strife and jealousy, and make of competition the healthy, stimulating factor that it should be to trade in general.

The Lions should be of great benefit in building up commercial relationships within the town, and no doubt will be the means of invigorating the commercial life in general. Too much cannot be expected in this regard, however, for the membership is limited. The big hope lies in the founding of a commercial organization with open membership, which it is hoped will not be long in coming, to solve the major trade problems of the city.

The new service organization can be looked to, it is believed, to have a leading part in civic projects of various nature, thus taking the place in a larger way of the Heppner Business Men's Luncheon club, which organization it succeeds. For the real object of the club, in toto, is to be of service to the community through any medium which presents itself, and lends itself most readily to the use of the club.

We welcome the Lions to Heppner. We believe in them. And though H. L. Mencken and Sinclair Lewis have added greatly to their own notoriety by holding such organizations up to ridicule—by belittling these organizations continue to grow and to accomplish good wherever they function.

THE WORLD SERIES.

AGAIN we are confronted with the phenomena of the World Series. No game ever before has held the undivided attention of an entire nation for so long a period. From 1884, when Providence won laurels as the World Series winner, right up to 1928, when the crown went to New York, interest has been intense in every corner of the land. And now everyone is asking: What team will bring home the bacon in 1929? Philadelphia? Chicago?

Since the inauguration of the World Series, many things have happened to captivate the fancy of a curious world. Radio, the modern miracle. The development of Lindbergh and the astonishing feat of the Graf Zeppelin. The growth of motion pictures and the invention of the "talkies."

There are a thousand more things

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for September 29

REVIEW: SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE AND RESTORATION Golden Text Psalm 108:17 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

The review lesson is like clinching the nail. A careful study of this quarterly lesson will help to hold the facts in memory, and especially as you are putting the truths into practice in your life. Something over 150 years in time are covered in the past twelve lessons. The title gives the two subdivisions from the historical standpoint: Exile and Restoration.

Those who are seeking to get all out of this course that is possible will read the entire books from which these lessons are taken, and they are Ezekiel, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah and Malachi. You should read at least the selected portions that were studied in connection with each lesson. Very little success comes without genuinely hard work.

Since history is usually centered about the lives of individual leaders you can get much by giving special attention to the biography of the men whose books are named above. Then look up Esther as she is contemporary, though no lesson was given this quarter of her life. Also look up the secular history of that century and a half. You will to do than there were in the old days. And so perhaps many of the diversions are being forgotten.

But one thing has an eternal charm. Baseball will never lose its place in the affections of the multitude. The World Series of 1929 is looked forward to as eagerly as was the World Series of 1909. Other things may change—but the heart of the American is still the heart of a boy who knows that one of the most important things in the world is to keep right on playing.

No, Sir! Nothing's going to distract us from the World Series.

STUDENTS' SUPPLIES.

Enterprise Record-Chiefman. Through a term of years a system of selling supplies to high school pupils has grown up outside the fold of regular established business. It went swimmingly until its promoters and managers became so bold and greedy that they aroused the suspicion of school authorities and this awakened the local communities to self defense. Thanks to the initiative of Supt. Williams, daylight has been thrown on the system in Enterprise.

On the opening day of school if possible, and at some time in the first week at all events, high power salesmen appear and seek to meet officers of the classes and of the student body. Persuasive insistence, flattery and small gifts are employed to land the order for announcements, cards, diplomas, rings and other supplies which will not be delivered or used for many months. As a rule it is figured that the one agent who shows up will hypnotize or flatter his customers into ordering, and competitors or later comers are out of luck, as they do not even get a "look-in."

When these salesmen now appear, the superintendent refuses to permit them to see the student officers and refers them to local business houses handling the same line of goods they offer. This has developed the fact that the same goods can be bought very materially lower than the agents offer, or that other merchandise of equal merit can be had at a still greater saving. For instance, an agent who sold commencement announcements last year showed up at school Tuesday of last week. Under his scale of prices, 20 announcements and 100 cards would cost $6.30, and that was the burden he laid on parents last year. Another line of announcements is available which is not distinguishable from the first but which can be bought for $2.30 to $2.80 for the same order. The superintendent's action saved the parents of each pupil at least one half on announcements, which certainly is sufficient indictment of the old system.

BANK CATTLE NOT TAXABLE.

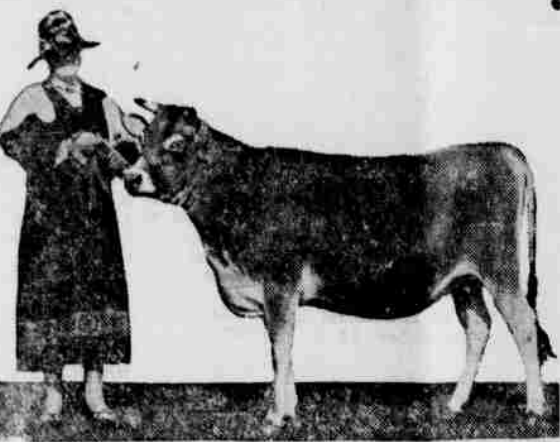

(Oregon Voter) Cattle or sheep taken over by a bank are not taxable as personal property while in bank ownership, even though that ownership is temporary. This point was brought out at the recent assessor convention in Klamath Falls.

Real estate is the only property upon which banks now may be taxed in Oregon. Neither their fixtures, personal property, money, deposits, accounts receivable, securities or any other property, except real estate, is subject to the ad valorem tax.

This is not new. It is a situation resulting from the federal act regulating national bank taxation. Under that act, the states are not permitted to tax personal property of national banks, except through the indirect methods of taxing the value of their shares or income. This deprivation was of little concern to states and localities so long as shares could be assessed by local assessors, who saw to it that little was overlooked in the way of assets; in fact, went so far in Oregon as to assess the banks heavier than most other lines of business. Banks had to pay the same tax rates as other assessed property. But with the share tax abandoned as a result of court decisions in the bank tax cases, the exemption of bank personal property looms up like a discriminating tax.

The small return collectible from banks under the new "excise tax" law will not begin to compare with what other classes of taxpayers have to pay on their personal property. The situation will become more and more apparent as the new tax law is administered. It ought

Proud Owner Shows Champion

"You'll Do's Grey Creampot of W. M." Junior Champion Jersey Cow and its owner Mrs. Edna L. Knight.

Mrs. Edna L. Knight, Willow-meadow Jersey Farm, Willows, California, one of the few women breeders of livestock—and successful, too—will exhibit her prize-winning Jerseys at the 19th Annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Oregon, Oct. 26 Nov. 2, inclusive.

This year, for the first time, the American Jersey Cattle Club has selected Pacific International to be one of the four sectional shows in the United States. This makes available awards for All-American honor in the Jersey division of the West's greatest livestock classic. The Club has also added $1,000.00 to the Exposition's prize money, bringing the total premiums offered for Jerseys alone up to $3,500.00. Total prize money for all classes aggregates $100,000.00.

New features announced for this year's Exposition are the 2000-coop display of the Oregon Poultry and Pet Stock Show; Junior Agricultural activities in the new J. C. Penney Hall; and the Oregon Fish and Game Commission's Exhibit of Wild Life (including a Fish Hatchery in full operation). Altogether, the 1929 program will offer greater variety than ever before—12 complete shows—Pure Bred Live Stock Show; Fat Stock Show; Dairy, Manufacturer's and Land Products Shows; Sheep Show; American National Fox Show; National Wool Show; Industrial Exhibition; Boys' and Girls' Club Work Exhibits; Northwest Hay and Grain Show; and world-renowned Horse Show, including among other spectacular events the Six-Horse Team Driving contest during each of the seven evening programs.

Special reduced fares to the Exposition will be in effect on all leading transportation lines in this territory.

Food for Reflection.

The newspaper is the great educator of the masses today. Where one reads a two dollar book, five thousand read the five cent daily.

Since this is true, the editor should spend a good deal of time on his knees, it seems to me, with his mind fixed on the Giver of all good; none the less should the contributor for the newspaper wrestle in prayer; if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall in the ditch.

I go to my newspaper every day for information—for counsel. Such of it as I don't like, I don't take.

Since humanity is pretty much the same the world over, I assume that you do the same. I am interested in the legislative problem of reapportioning the state for the purpose of securing better representative government; I am not interested in the kind of hosiery worn by the king of Siam or the sultan of Turkey.

Which leads to the thought: If our daily newspapers were shorn of much that is the merest rubbish, there would be less volume, but more that is useful to our people.

The Sunday edition might be cut almost in half. "O," some one says, "we are not all alike; some want to know about the king of Siam—the sultan of Turkey; they must have Sunday reading." I grant it. But our aim, it seems to me, should not be to kill time, but to store our minds with useful information. There would be a better world if there were no prize-fighters in it; there would be a more useful citizenry if men and women busied their minds with things calculated to make the world better.

I'd rather study business, or even politics, on Sunday, than possible championships in utterly useless occupations. Life is too short to waste valuable time in worthless things.

I like my paper to contain, first of all, news. Next, such leisure reading as cannot fail to be instructive to me in things calculated to elevate and uplift a frail and faltering humanity.

to be corrected. It cannot be corrected without permission of Congress. The issue will be before Congress this winter. Bankers recognize the injustice and are cooperating to obtain reasonable amendment of the federal act.

"Jupe" has at last come out of hiding, and his visitation to Morrow county the first of the week was greeted with broad smiles. Folks may now light-heartedly enjoy the Rodeo, with the knowledge that fall seeding may be proceeded with immediately it is over, and the assurance that the new crop will get off to a good start.

It has been a dry summer in eastern Oregon. But then summer is usually dry here. Rains at the proper season is what is needed, and we have got them—in June and September. June rains help the grain to fill; September rains give the new crop a start, as well as bring out the grass on the fall range. Prosperity do smile.

The early completion of the Willow creek market road is hoped for. Now is the time to see that it is done while machinery and equipment are on the ground. It is not asking too much to have one good road into Morrow county's timbered area.

Summer changed to fall on scheduled time this year. Witness the chilly days of the past week.

Welcome to Rodeo, folks!

HAS PARALYTIC STROKE.

Andrew Neal, 81 years of age, suffered a third stroke of paralysis Tuesday night and since that time has been in a critical condition. Thursday evening he had improved practically none and but little hope was held for his recovery. His first stroke was five years ago. Mrs. Neal and his daughter, Mrs. H. S. Perry, and son, Jeff Neal, are at his bedside.

Just the hour the stroke came is not known as no one knew of it until morning. His right side is paralyzed and he can neither eat nor talk.—Condon Globe-Times.

Alison Wright was down from his farm home at Hardman on Saturday. He makes report that many farmers of that section are busy with their fall seeding regardless of the lack of rain.
