

Local Happenings

At the parsonage of the Congregational church in Ione on Saturday afternoon, October 12th, occurred the marriage of Miss Tressie Allstott to Charles Wilcox, Rev. W. W. Head, the pastor, performing the ceremony in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Painter of Heppner as witnesses. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilcox of Lexington, and the bride a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. E. Allstott of Rhea creek. Immediately following the ceremony the young couple left on a short honeymoon trip to Walla Walla, expecting to return to Morrow county in a few days. Just where they will make their future home was not determined at the time of their departure.

Mr. and Mrs. Natt Webb of Walla Walla, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hughes of Umpine and Mrs. James Lassater of La Center, Wash., were visitors at Heppner over Thursday and Friday. Mrs. Lassater, formerly Miss Elsie Ayers of this city, greatly enjoyed her visit with many old-time friends, it having been several years since she visited here last. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Webb were guests at the Frank Turner home while here. Elvin Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hughes is attending Oregon State college at Corvallis this year, and their daughter, Miss Anita, has taken up her work again at Whitman college, Walla Walla.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilcox of Lexington were visitors here Tuesday. Mr. Wilcox, because of the dry weather and short range conditions, is selling off a portion of his dairy herd, feeling that hay is getting a little too high in case of a feeding season similar to last winter. At the present time hay is selling on the creek, in the stack, at $16.50 per ton, with baled hay now going at $20, which, of course is not bad for the hay producers.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMillan, who reside near Lexington, visited for a short time in this city Tuesday afternoon.

James Hart, who is with the Hotel Monticello, Longview, Wash., spent a few days in Heppner this week while visiting his sisters, Mrs. Melissa Marlatt and Mrs. Ellen Buseick. Mr. Hart and Mrs. Buseick also visited for a day at the home of Reid Buseick at John Day. Mr. Hart formerly engaged in business at Heppner, and for a time he was in charge of Hotel Heppner when that hostelry was opened to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Vawter Crawford, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hayes and son Leland of Joseph, returned Friday from a trip to Portland and Montesano, Wash. They experienced one of Gray's Harbor's downpours on the way home, but the rain covered only a small territory and they were soon out of it. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and baby son departed Sunday morning for their Joseph home.

Carl Cason, local Union Oil company manager, brought a pretty four-point buck into town Monday evening which he killed back in the rimrocks surrounding the north fork of the John Day. The horns were somewhat mutilated, however, for when it was killed the animal fell over quite a precipice, landing on the horns and breaking off several of the points.

Dr. A. D. McMurdo and W. W. Smead, postmaster, returned Monday from Mount Vernon where they enjoyed a deer hunt of several days. Though they were unsuccessful in getting the meat, they report an enjoyable outing. Mr. Smead left for Portland Monday afternoon to attend the Knights of Pythias grand lodge in session there Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Engelman who reside southwest of Ione where Mr. Engelman is a successful farmer, were visitors in this city Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. McMillan were Lexington people in the city for a short time on Tuesday while looking after matters of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Spurlock returned home this week after spending most of the summer on an automobile trip to the Middle West, visiting at the home of Mr. Spurlock in Missouri and taking in many points of interest both going and coming. They report having had a very enjoyable time.

Percy Jarmon, stockman and alfalfa raiser of Butter creek, attended to business affairs in Heppner on Tuesday. He is sure that the time has arrived when this part of the moral vineyard should be going "wet" with a vengeance. The long dry spell is certainly due to come to an end.

Hugh Shaw, farmer of Clarks canyon, was looking after business affairs at Heppner on Saturday. Mr. Shaw is farming the most of his father's holdings at the present time, N. L. Shaw having retired from the hard labor of ranch work which he has followed for so many years.

O. F. Tate, secretary of the Oregon Retail Merchants association, and a warm supporter of the Lions club, was here on Monday to assist with the preliminary work of organizing a merchants' credit bureau in this city. Mr. Tate has his headquarters in Portland.

Sam Ritchie, Alpine farmer, was looking after business here on Wednesday. He is getting quite anxious to see fall rains set in, fearing that if they hold off much longer the weather will turn too cold, and the results to sown wheat will be disastrous.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Case were over from their home at Fossil on Monday for a short visit with the relatives here while Mr. Case was attending to business affairs.
