PIONEERS ARE GIVEN OLD-TIME GREETING

Lexington is Royal Host to Increased Numbers at Annual Reunion.

There is no question whatever as to the growing interest in, and popularity of, the annual reunion of pioneers sponsored by the people of the Lexington community. This was the third year the old timers and former residents of Morrow county were asked to accept the hospitality of the good people of the little city, and they came in numbers far greater than was anticipated. Former residents were there from points far distant in Oregon, Washington and elsewhere in the Northwest, and it was indeed a genuine reunion of those who had formerly been neighbors and pioneers in this part of eastern Oregon. Many were there this year who had not attended heretofore, and it may have been that some faces were missing from among those who were present in former years, for the ranks of the pioneers are becoming thinner as time goes on. But it was very evident to the Gazette Times reporter that the very large number present were enjoying the occasion to the limit. There had been no great effort made in the way of formal entertainment, though a short program was given following dinner in the afternoon, and at night a play was given, followed by a real old-time dance. The splendid feature of it all was the informality, placing everyone on the plane of congeniality. Much time, therefore, was spent in visiting and recalling old times, all of which was a genuine joy to the old and young alike.

At noon the banquet tables were spread in the new I. O. O. F. building. And my! such an abundance of good things had been brought in that the tables were fairly overloaded. The center table had been reserved for those of the pioneers who had passed the age of 70, and when all of these had been seated, it was found that quite a number of plates yet remained, so ribbons were pinned on others not quite so old and the table filled. In the center of this table was the magnificent three layer cake, the handiwork of Mrs. Fred Kuna, which was the object of unanimous praise because of its excellence and being of sufficient size that each individual about the table where 80 were seated had a generous helping. Mrs. Kuna was the maker of this "Pioneer" cake at last year's reunion. As indicating the large attendance, the ladies reported feeding 800 at the noon banquet. Then there must have been gathered up the traditional 12 baskets full, as in the evening supper was served to 700. This exceeded last year's attendance by about 200 at each meal.

The afternoon program consisted of community singing, a talk by Aunt Sarah Booher, telling of some interesting pioneer incidents, some singing by the grade pupils of Lexington school, featuring Halloween, "The Old Family Album" in which Miss Ruth Dinges presented members of the family in various poses and showing styles of dress and photograph of a period somewhere around the early nineties and perhaps beyond, the characters all well sustained by local talent. This feature of the program was thoroughly enjoyed. C. A. Minor gave the chief address of the afternoon which was presented in his usual reminiscent and humorous style. Mrs. Carl Miller was in charge of the afternoon program, and was also instrumental in making the play of the evening the success it was.

The cast for "Aarpn Slick of Punkin Creek" was sustained by the following: Mrs. Rosa Berry, a widow, Helen Christensen; Wilbur Meridew, a sliker, Edward Burchell; Sis Riggs, just a tomboy, Edith Miller; Gladys Meridew, just like her name, Ruth Dinges; Aaron Slick, not so green as he looked, Joe Thornburg; Clarence Green, a detective in disguise, Elmer Palmer; The Girl in Red, a cabaret hostess, Neva Warner; hotel guests. Each character in this play was well presented and received hearty applause from the large crowd present to see it.

It had been planned to hold the old-fashioned dance in the Oddfellows building, also, but the crowd was too large and this was taken to the high school gymnasium where the floor space is more ample, and where some of the old-time enthusiasm was made manifest in the quadrilles and round dances.

The day was perfect, the crowd jolly and good-natured and orderly, and the entertainment excellent, and to bring it all to a grand climax, Mother Nature joined in with her blessing of an abundant rain as the crowds were returning to their

Glen Young and wife are up from the Willamette valley to get some of their personal property at the Alex Young farm on Eight Mile. Mr. Young has rented a farm about three miles out from Mollala, Oregon, and contemplates going into the chicken business there on a large scale. Mr. and Mrs. Young will return home in a few days.

Some Progress Made on Heppner-Spray Road

Judge R. L. Bengt and Commissioners Bleakman and Davidson, accompanied by Roadmaster McCaleb attended the meeting of the state highway commission in Portland on Wednesday and had an opportunity to present to that body their claims for aid on the completion of the Heppner-Spray road. While they did not get the relief prayed for at this meeting, they received encouragement, as the short report carried in the Oregonian's write-up of the commission's work for the day will indicate. We give it herewith:

"Request for more work on the Heppner-Spray road was asked, but as this is not a state route, the delegation from Morrow county was advised that the matter will be taken up with the forest service and United States bureau of public roads at the annual conference in December. Morrow county has money to contribute."

Our county court has been encouraged lately by the attitude of the forest service and bureau of public roads, and this action of the state highway points strongly to cooperation on their part when the matter has been thoroughly worked out, which it should be at the December meeting. Let us encourage the court to keep hammering away, for by so doing the desired result will be accomplished.

The state highway commission at this meeting also made distribution of the market road funds. Out of a total of $548,552.82 in this fund, Morrow county receives this year $7,620.27.

W. L. Norvell, located with the Foster and Kleiser company at Walla Walla, was a visitor here on Wednesday. His company, who are billboard advertisers, have recently issued a pamphlet entitled "The Preservation of Scenic Highways," in which they state their policy and attitude regarding billboard advertising along the roads and highways. This company operates very extensively in Oregon, Washington and California, and they are facing the agitation that is growing rapidly for the doing away with such advertising that has grown to such an extent that much of the beauty of the scenery along these avenues of travel is covered up. Mr. Norvell is interested just now in placing his company's literature on the subject before the people.

On the Huston court Monday evening the championship croquet game was played between W. O. Dix and T. J. Humphreys, the latter being victorious. Tom is now "cock o' the walk," so to speak, and is able to lay claim to being champion for the season, the nights being a little too chilly for the other players, so it is not likely that his claim to this honor will be contested before another season rolls around. We commiserate Mr. Dix and extend congratulations to the new belt owner.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ferguson this week are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hatfield, two sons and daughter, also their eldest son, Arlie Hatfield, wife and young son. They compose an automobile party coming from their home at Subletta, Kansas, for a visit with relatives on the Pacific slope. Mrs. Homer Hatfield is a sister of Mr. Ferguson.

W. H. Tucker moved his family to town the first of the week from the mountains near the foot of Arbuckle where they have resided during the summer while he was getting out wood. He states that there was nearly two inches of snowfall in the timber belt, it having snowed some in the mountains while it was raining over the lower country.

Lon Markham of Freewater and Percy Hughes of Umpine were former Morrow county residents in Heppner on Saturday, spending several hours here on business. They report a woeful lack of rain in their part of the country this fall.

Chas. Thomson left Tuesday morning for Portland to take in the Pacific International Livestock show, going on to Eugene the end of the week for Dad's day at the state university. His son Ellis is a sophomore at U. of O.

E. J. Evans, wheat raiser of the Lexington section, says the rain Sunday night hit just in time to protect the wheat from the quite heavy freeze the following night. He was transacting business in Heppner Tuesday.

John Brossman, who was in town Monday from his ranch above Lena, reports a very heavy downpour of rain over the Butter creek country on Saturday night. This will be of great benefit to range conditions.

Barney Devlin has moved to Heppner from The Dalles where he has resided for some time.

Born, at Heppner hospital Saturday, Oct. 27, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gammell, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Merrill of Monument were Heppner visitors over Saturday.

RESULTS OBTAINED IN WEED CONTROL

Work Still Experimental But Will Bear Watching County Agent Says.

Perennial, noxious weed control which is giving everyone in Oregon considerable trouble, was selected as one of the main extension activities by Charles W. Smith, county agricultural agent, in Morrow county this year. Sodium and calcium chlorates, highly advertised chemicals for the killing of perennial weeds such as morning glory, Russian knapp weed, Canadian thistle and quack grass, have been tried out on 17 farms during the season on 40 different patches varying in size from a few square rods up to four acres. Last year Mr. Smith tried the two chemicals on morning glory in various sections of the county and the morning glory on three of the patches was killed; that is the old plants were killed and the plants which came from the seed were easily eradicated this spring. However, in one case due to some unknown reason, good results were not obtained.

Notes have been kept during the season on the morning glory, a check being made on the number of years the plant had been growing (because it is believed that the longer the plants have been established, the harder they are to kill), date ground had been plowed last, date of last cultivation, the stage of bloom the plants were in when sprayed, time of day spray was applied, etc., on all demonstrations. It is hoped that next year after seeing the results obtained from this year's application, more definite information will be available as to the time and rate of applications of the chemicals.

Some of the experiment stations are recommending as little as two pounds of the chemical per square rod, while others believe that it will take as much as three pounds. Some maintain that when the plant has the largest amount of foliage on it, or just as it comes into full bloom is the correct time to spray, while others state they have had very good results by treating in October just as the plants have started to die down. These questions and many others can be answered next year after the results of this year's applications have been studied. In practically every case where the plants were treated in June, July or August the plants came up after spraying but died down later. According to the manufacturers of the sprays, this happens in almost every case when the spraying is done in the early stages of growth and the largest percentage of kill takes place in the winter.

Although several hundred pounds of the chemicals have been bought by farmers this year and applied by Mr. Smith in all sections of the county, no definite results have been promised by anyone as the work is still in the experimental stage. A survey of the county shows that morning glory is to be found on 20 per cent of the farms and as cultivation seems to cause it to spread by dragging the root stalks from one section of the field to another, the control of these weeds is a problem which needs immediate attention. Morning glory is probably the worst of the four weeds mentioned and is growing on some of the most valuable alfalfa land along the creeks and in the wheat fields.

The following farmers who have cooperated in this work during the past season and their addresses are given by Mr. Smith so that the results of the spraying may be watched another year by their neighbors: Wright Bros., Heppner; D. O. Justus, Heppner; Ed Rietmann, Ione; Roy Neill, Echo; John Brossman, Lena; Oscar Keithley, Eight Mile; W. H. Cleveland, Heppner; Harvey McAllister, Lexington; Thompson & Brown, Ione; O. C. Wageman, Heppner; Missidine Brothers, Heppner; R. A. Thompson, Heppner and J. J. Hayes, Heppner.

"Snap judgment should not be passed as to whether or not these sprays are a success. Late next spring after the chemicals have had ample time to work upon the plant roots will be the earliest that one can tell for sure one way or the other," says Mr. Smith.

Confusion in Weather Starts Molt in Flocks

Continued unseasonable dry weather this fall has been blamed as well as blessed in Oregon, by farmers particularly. Now it is charged with causing an extra molt in many poultry flocks, according to information gathered by A. G. Lunn, head of the poultry department at the Oregon Experiment station.

"Many poultrymen report their pullets getting up to about 60 per cent production and then dropping back, showing a neck molt or even another complete molt," explained Professor Lunn. "Bad management may be at fault sometimes, but we are convinced that the hot, dry fall is largely responsible."

Professor Lunn suggests inducing exercise with bright, clean litter, then changing the ordinary dry mash to a moist feed by mixing with either skim or buttermilk. This fairly moist mash is fed at the rate of 2 pounds of dry mixture to each 10 birds, continued for 10 days or two weeks.

Leach Memorial Hall Soon to be Dedicated

Through the generosity of Mrs. E. D. McMillan, the store building at Lexington occupied for so many years by the general merchandise business of Leach Bros., and the principal owner of which was her former husband, Wm. E. Leach, has been donated to Lexington lodge of Oddfellows, of which he was also a prominent member. The mercantile business was closed up some time ago, and soon thereafter the work of making over the building was undertaken and it has been moving along to the point of completion as rapidly as possible. When the work is done, the Lexington lodge will have a splendid home, containing ample space for the lodge room, ante room and robing rooms, kitchen and dining hall, besides a club room and large annex to be used as a place for parties and public gatherings.

Just as soon as the work of remodeling the building is completed, the building will be accepted by the lodge with proper dedication services. The plans for this service are now being worked out, and we understand that the name adopted is Leach Memorial Hall, to be dedicated to the memory of William E. ("Billy") Leach. The date of this service will be announced through these columns soon.

District Convention O.E.S. to be Held at Ione Nov. 5

The district convention of the Order of Eastern Star will be held at Ione next Tuesday evening, Nov. 5, with Locust chapter No. 119 of that city as host to Jasmine chapter No. 74 of Arlington and Ruth chapter No. 32 of Heppner. The convention will be honored by an official visit from Grand Worthy Matron Elizabeth Tipton of Portland. Locust chapter will have charge of the opening and closing ceremonies, and Jasmine chapter will do flag duty, escort duty and attend to ceremony of balloting. It will be the office of Ruth chapter to put on the initiatory work, which they will do in accordance with the new ritual. Locust chapter will serve refreshments. Members of Ruth chapter who have no way of going to Ione for this meeting Tuesday night, should call Mrs. Charlotte Gordon, worthy matron.

The 'Ails' of the Great Commission.

When Jesus gave his disciples their final commission to preach He spoke of four complete things. Since we today are vitally interested in helping carry on to conclusion the campaign Jesus launched, it is fitting that we should pay attention to his "marching orders." Especially is this true at this time when we are to have a special series of gospel sermons with the new ritual. We will pay attention to this theme on Sunday evening.

The Lord's Supper will be observed at the morning service and the theme will be, "Every Day Religion."

Brother Jones will be here to begin the meeting on Monday evening and we invite everyone to attend from the first what we know will be a feast of good things.

HEPPNER GIRL PLEDGED.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Oct. 30.—(Special)—Patricia Mahoney, Heppner, and an entering freshman at the University of Oregon, has been pledged to Chi Omega, national women's social sorority. Pledging took place at the end of freshman week, with one of the longest lines in the history of the school. Classes got under way Monday of the second week of school, with a full calendar for the whole fall term.

A DAY FOR US ALL.

By ELVA PERRY
You say that our young folks are bound for the devil;
In fact they are jazing to hell;
Well, maybe so, Mister, but say, on the level,
I don't like that phrase very well.

The poor little kiddies, why razz them so roughly;
Why tell them they're wicked and dumb?
For aren't they our children—the pride of the nation?
The hope of the race that's to come?

Perhaps they are wilful and some of them wayward;
But surely the Father above
Is waiting to deal out not stern condemnation,
But mercy and infinite love.

If I thought our young folks were bound for the devil
And riding straight on to a fall,
I'd say we had better just stack up our fire arms
And call it a day for us all.

LIONS GET BEHIND SPRAY ROAD MOVE

Discussion Shows Time is Ripe to Act; Health Nurse Favored.

A rousing pledge to support the Heppner-Spray road, resulting in a message to the state highway commission, featured the Lions club meeting Monday noon. Invited guests took a lead in the discussion. The telegram sent in time to greet the commission at their meeting yesterday, notified that body that the Heppner Lions club favored immediate action on the Heppner-Spray road.

Twenty-five men filled the seats at the luncheon, and with a lively program arranged by Jas. M. Burgess, president, the meeting was one of marked enthusiasm.

Lion L. Van Marter, a president of the old Heppner Commercial club who has had an active part in the work of bringing the Heppner-Spray road to a head, opened the discussion on this project by telling what it is that it may be expected to do for Heppner, and giving some of the history of the work done so far to make it a reality.

"We hear much about the good old days in Heppner, but with all that is said about the good old days Heppner is a better town now than it ever was," declared Mr. Van Marter. "In the good old days, however, a bulk of Heppner's trade, that has since slipped away, came from interior Grant county. Completion of the Heppner-Spray road will afford an avenue through which this trade may be regained, and for this reason the road is more important than any leading to Heppner." Mr. Van Marter pointed out that there is a demand for this road not only at this end but from the other end as well. He was substantiated in this by others who had been told by interior people that they wanted this road to Heppner.

Judge R. L. Bengt told of the county and bureau of public roads money that has been spent on parts of the Heppner-Spray road, the county having so far expended more than $200,000 and the bureau $75,000. Both these agencies have been working for state cooperation, which to date has not been forthcoming because the road was not included in the original state road bond issue and hence is not on the state map. The road is important to the state in that it is a link in a through highway from Mexico to British Columbia. Favorable consideration has been given it by members of the state highway commission and Mr. Bengt declared that it is highly probable some help from this source may be expected in a short time. The commission to build the McKinney creek portion of the road if the state will take over the entire road and maintain it as a state highway.

W. L. McCaleb, county roadmaster, led a discussion on the Heppner-Ritter road, the Morrow county end of which is completed to the Grant county line. He said the Grant county court has agreed to start work on their end just as soon as money is available. Following his suggestion the club authorized President Burgess to appoint a committee to meet with the Grant county court at its next session to see if it may not be possible for the court to include money for it in their budget to be made up at that time.

An entertainment feature of the program was provided by the high school boys' octette, who were given a royal hand on the singing of two songs under the direction of Kate Francis Ede, music supervisor of the school. Included in the personnel were Gay Anderson, Homer Hayes, Duane Brown, Fletcher Walker, missioner, Paul Franz, Eddie Kenny and Billy Cox. Miss Jeanette Turner was accompanist at the piano.

A report of the executive committee meeting last week showed that body in favor of the Lions club sponsoring the Heppner-Spray road, and securing a county health nurse.

S. E. Notson, lion tamer who is attending a national conference of state attorney generals and district attorneys at Memphis, Tenn., wrote that he attended the Lions club meeting at that place, was royally received, and asked to have his attendance counted at home.

Aged Spray Resident Dies at Home of Son

John Collins, aged 74 years, died at the home of his son, Foster Collins, near Hardman on Tuesday, November 29 at 12 o'clock noon. He had taken suddenly ill at about 2 o'clock a. m., and a physician was immediately summoned from Heppner but was unable to check the progress of his ailment, which was pronounced to be an acute attack of pneumonia. Mr. Collins was visiting with his son at Hardman, and on Saturday accompanied him to Lexington to attend the pioneer reunion, being apparently in his usual health. He had lived for long years in the Spray section and was well known in Heppner. The funeral will be held at Spray at 2 o'clock p. m. today.

Lexington Falls Victim as Locals Reach for Pennant

Keeping a clean slate of victories, Heppner High school defeated Lexington 13-0 on Rodeo field Friday afternoon in its stride for the Upper Columbia Athletic association football pennant. Next Friday the boys go to Arlington to clash with the heavy team of A. H. S. They are expecting a tough battle.

With a ragged offensive, due largely to the absence of Elmer Hake, regular plunging back, from the lineup, Heppner was unable to get an edge on the scrappy light Lexington team until late in the last quarter when two touchdowns were made in rapid succession, goal being converted on but one. Lexington is given credit for giving the locals one of the hardest games they have played this season.

Attention is now being centered on the Heppner-Hermiston game to be played here Armistice day. In their first game of the season these teams played a 0-0 tie. The Heppner-Lexington line-up:

Heppner	Lexington
E. Thomson	le	V. Warner
R. Thomson	re	Reaney
Walker	rt	C. Kuns
Brown	lt	Ruhl
Anderson	lg	Martin
Furlong	fg	Peck
Evans	c	Burchell
H. Gentry	q	McMillan
Robertson	lh	Lane
R. Gentry	rh	Munkers
Hayes	f	Hill

Substitution: Lexington, Valentine for McMillan. Referee, May, Pendleton; head linesman, Brunson, Heppner.

Maple Circle, Neighbors of Woodcraft enjoyed a fine Halloween party on Monday evening, following the regular business session of lodge. The hall was appropriately decorated in orange and black, with spooky owls and black cats everywhere. Many games were played and prizes were awarded to Harold Gentry and Rena Quackenbush for stunts presented. The party wound up by the serving of refreshments of apples, salted nuts, pumpkin pie and cider by the refreshment committee, Hettie Brookhouser, Elizabeth Barton and Annie French. One member was initiated Monday evening and 19 applications were balloted on.

C. W. Smith, county agent and Mrs. Lucy Rodgers, county school superintendent, spent much of the past week visiting various schools of the county in the interests of boys and girls club work. Mr. Smith is attending the livestock show in Portland this week, where he has charge of a department. He left Sunday, taking with him the stock judging team of the boys club from the Boardman school.

Mrs. W. J. French will leave on tonight's train for Portland where she will make her home in the future. She has disposed of her residence property here, but still owns the property adjoining which has been rented. Mrs. French will make her home for the present with her daughter, Miss Marjorie French, who is attending Northwest business college.

J. D. French, prominent stockman of the Gurdane section, was transacting business in Heppner on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stevens, residents of the Hardman section, were in Heppner on business Tuesday. A fine Neon light sign was installed this week by Edward Chinn of the Elkhorn restaurant.

FULL DAY PLANNED FOR NOVEMBER 11

Heppner-Hermiston Mix; Address to be Given by Dr. Poling.

Starting at 10:30 in the morning with a patriotic program at Elks' temple, Armistice Day in Heppner this year will be fittingly celebrated. The program will be followed in the afternoon by a big feature parade to Rodeo field where Hermiston and Heppner high school football teams will put on the grid classic of the year. A feed for Hermiston and Heppner Legion and Auxiliary members at Legion hall at 6:30, a picture show and dance will be the evening features. All events are under the auspices of Heppner post, American Legion, and the high school athletic association.

The program for the morning meeting, in charge of C. W. Smith, commander of Heppner post, will be as follows:

Invocation.
Remarks on Armistice Day, C. W. Smith.
Flag drill, children of primary grades.
Song, high school glee club.
Address, Dr. Poling.
Solo, Miss Agodt Frigaard.
Remarks, J. M. Biggs, district commander, American Legion.
Song, high school girls' octette.
Community singing led by Dr. Poling.

Dr. Poling, a member of the faculty of Oregon State college, is much in demand as a public speaker and the members of Heppner post consider themselves fortunate in being able to secure his services for Armistice Day. It is hoped there will be a large audience to hear his address.

The committee in charge of the parade is anxious to have as many cars as possible lined up for the trip to Rodeo field. The line will form at the corner of the Tum-A-Lum company on Main street and will include the high school football team, the ladies' football team and other features in course of preparation.

The game between Hermiston and Heppner high schools is expected to be the best game of the season, played in this part of the country. The teams played a scoreless tie game the first time they met this year and each squad is determined to score in this game. Hermiston played Pendleton high recently, holding the team from the larger town to a 6-0 score in Pendleton's favor. Referee for this game will be Wm. J. Warner, brother of the famous "Pop" Warner, head coach at Stanford university. Mr. Warner, now an attorney at Hermiston, played football in his younger days and coached college football for several years. He is said to be scout for his brother in the northwest.

Following the game a luncheon for Legion and Auxiliary members will be served in Legion hall. Arrangements have been made with B. G. Sigbee, manager of the Star theater, to show a feature, all-talkie picture at 7:30. Owing to the big demand for this type of picture, Mr. Sigbee has not yet been able to announce the picture for this showing, but has several under negotiation, any one of which will be of the very highest type.

The annual Armistice Day dance will be held at Elks' temple. Music with real pep has been secured. The members of Hermiston Legion post and Auxiliary, as well as the entire population of Hermiston, have been invited to come to Heppner and spend the day. There will be no program at that place this year, and it is expected a large number will accept the invitation.

COUNTY GETS RAIN.

Almost an inch of rain fell over Morrow county during Saturday night, to the great joy of farmers and stockmen. It had been about four months since the last real rain in these parts and mother earth was getting fairly well dried out. In many parts of the county the grain sown was coming up in spots where there had been moisture sufficient in the summer-fallow to start it, but the greater portion was lying dormant. The rain of Saturday night will bring it all along now and should help the cold weather hold off long enough it will be in shape to go through the winter. Range conditions will improve also.

FROSH GOING GOOD.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Oct. 30.—The Oregon frosh football team will play its third game of the year next Friday when it meets Centralia Junior college in Eugene. The frosh already have won from the Chemawa Indians and the University of Washington Babes, and will play their first game with the Oregon State rooks at Medford, November 9.
