

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

Serving church suppers in cafeteria style adds a delightful touch of informality and at the same time insures hot food and quick service. Also it saves the women a good deal of work. The guests both serve themselves and clear their own places after the dinner, carrying their dishes to the serving shelf or whatever desired.

In the absence of a steam table or serving shelf, the plan can be nicely worked out by arranging the food on half a dozen oblong tables in the dining room, placed near the wall and convenient to kitchen and guest entrance.

The cafeteria supper should be an inexpensive two-course meal that is plentiful and spicy. Baked smoked ham is very popular, and it is one of several things that can be prepared in the home the day before the supper.

Removing Perfume Spots

If you want to remove perfume spots from linen, rub the spots gently with peroxide and let dry. This generally is successful on linen, but don't try it on other fabrics unless you feel very experimental.

Dyeing Lace

To change white lace to a cream color, dip it in a weak tea. To stiffen the lace, put a cube of sugar into the tea.

For the Teeth

A small amount of powdered pumice mixed with the regular tooth paste or powder and brushed over the teeth every four or five weeks will remove stains.

Saving Stockings

Many find that their silk stockings fade after two or three washings. To prevent this, rinse them when they are new—in water to which a little vinegar has been added. This will keep them from fading for some time.

Tom O'Brien, Butter creek sheepman, accompanied by his family and Mrs. M. S. Corrigan, was looking after business here on Saturday. He reports that his sheep are all in from the summer range in the mountains, and that much needed rain would greatly benefit the range in the lower country.

"Honks" With Glee

Things were so well with this usually somber pelican at the London zoo that he gave vent to his feelings with loud "honks" and attracted the attention of most of the visitors.

Here's How

BY E.W. HOWE
"The Sage of Potato Hill"

Reading. Three Kinds of Men. Surgery.

I occasionally read a book or essay, and, while agreeing in the main, reject certain portions. It has occurred to me that possibly the portions I reject contain precisely the truths I need to correct my errors; whereupon I examine my objections with such care and intelligence as I am capable of. I recommend this course to all readers. A reader is master of the situation; He may be as unfair as he chooses, without chance of reprimand or cross-examination. A reader should not reject conclusions of a writer without consideration. Why read at all if we accept only such conclusions as are agreeable, and meet our own views.

The people abuse bankers very generally, but do the people realize what bankers say about us? Lately I was in the smoking room of a Pullman car, and there were three clean-cut strangers present, who turned out to be bankers from the same section of the country. Presently they began talking of their business, and I have not lately heard a more intelligent resume of life and men. They knew the people as few writers know them, and their comments were fair and charitable, although very candidly admitting our faults.

One of them gave this description of the men of his community:

dividing them into three classes; he was president of a national bank, I learned in course of a conversation in which they did not know I was interested:

1. One-half of them were honest, and entitled to credit; a few were slow, but would finally pay.
2. One-fourth were careless, somewhat shiftless, got into all sorts of difficulties because of these habits, and had to be watched closely.
3. One-fourth were dishonest, lazy and hopeless from every standpoint. I have been wondering since if this country banker did not give a fairly accurate estimate of the men of the world.

The Mayo brothers, at Rochester, Minnesota, are probably our greatest experts in surgery. They say more than half the operations performed in this country are unnecessary. . . I shall believe that; I depend upon the best experts in considering things I do not know much about. Everyone knows of horrible and unnecessary butchering in surgery.

Mrs. Dixon Smith and baby daughter returned to their home at Lone on Tuesday from Heppner hospital.

Camels are for knowing smokers!

It's just too bad if any smoker because of misinformation denies himself or herself the pleasure of CAMELS.

New smokers are not always in a position to have a real preference in cigarettes. But when they acquaint themselves with Camels they develop that sense of discrimination that leads to real smoking pleasure. Camels are made so carefully and of so good a blend of choicest cigarette tobaccos that even those with inexperienced smoking taste quickly recognize their superiority. They are for those who appreciate the taste of choice tobaccos, the fragrance of a perfect blend and the soothing mellowness of a really satisfying cigarette.

when they learn the difference they flock to
